Today

The President Succeeded. Man Prosaic, Woman Soars. Eyes Without Sparkle.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GOOD NEWS today. Thanks to President Roosevelt, and the wise attitude of employers and employed, the automobile strike, that would have taken millions a day in wages from the workers, is adjusted. The President has set up a "board of conciliation," one labor man, one representative of employers, one "neutral."

The main point is the statement that "the decision of the board shall be final and binding on employers and employes."

That means compulsory arbitration, in place of disastrous strikes and inevitable violence.

CREDIT IS due to the President for tactful management, and Mr. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, not boasting of victory, as less sensible men would do, says:

"There is no basis for a claim that either side, employers or employes, has gained a victory over the other."

President Roosevelt is leaving with Vincent Astor on the latter's boat for a few days' fishing and a rest. The people hope he will enjoy it.

MAN'S INCLINATION is to follow the rut. Woman craves independence. Adam would have been satisfied doing nothing forever. Eve WOULD eat the apple. Dr. Mary Walker would wear men's clothes. She once called on this writer while wearing them, and the sight was startling. Now, when you see fat ladies waddling in purple combination pajamas and "pants," you long for thin Dr. Mary Walker, with tight trousers, cutaway coat and stovepipe hat.

THE LATEST cry of independence is a protest against the hair-dressing nuisance. Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas, married four times, who knows her mind, announces a "one-woman revolt." She has shaved her head, and will wear wigs, any color she likes. Says she:

"This hairdressing business has become a racket. They get a woman in, give her a shampoo and a wave, and for the rest of her life she is their slave."

Ten million husbands and fathers, right hands raised, will swear to that.

Philosophical William M. Magraw, Lucy Cotton Thomas' fourth husband (why the difference in name, we don't know), is a philosopher. "It's all right with me," says he, "if she wants to wear red, green or purple hair."

BUT THE hair is not as important as the eyes. And young ladies trying to get thin, or keep thin, should hark to this:

Harry E. Pine, head of the Illinois Society of Optometrists, says dieting to get thin takes the sparkle out of the eyes of girls, makes them dull and lifeless.

Maud Muller, on a summer's day, raking the meadow sweet with hay, would never have made the judge pause and ponder, as he rode by, if she had eaten only dry toast, with tea for breakfast.

You may lay to it that the young lady contained fresh milk, buckwheat cakes, fried eggs, ham and apple sauce, and plenty of them. It is the surplus vitality that shows in the eyes, and is lacking in ten million foolish girls, trying to look like skeletons.

MR. DAVIS, agricultural adjustment administrator, says 40,000,000 acres of land will be "withdrawn from production," made idle and useless by cutting down the planting of corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco.

Half the population of Italy could live well on those 40,000,000 acres, and Heaven knows how many Chinese could live on them. Condemning 40,000,000 acres of land to idleness, and shutting out good immigration that would utilize it, adding to the country's wealth, may soon cause us to be looked upon as the world's champion "dog in the manger" nation.

DR. WALTER WILLIAMS, University of Missouri president, head of one of the most ably managed schools of journalism, back from a trip around the world, tells Universal Service:

"War, anywhere, is a long way off. No responsible statesman of any country wants it, and the people of most countries are warsick."

Dr. Williams on his travels talked to Hitler, Dollfuss, of Austria, the Italian King, Pope Pius and others of importance.

Dr. Williams is a careful observer, his message is reassuring, but war seemed to be a long way off in 1913, and at that time no responsible statesman would have said he wanted it. But most of them soon had it.

IT IS WELL to remember the unhappy French King, Louis the Sixteenth, who went shooting at Fontainebleau on a certain fourteenth of July, killed nothing, and wrote in his diary that evening one French word: Rien, "nothing." And on that same day the prison of the Bastille was torn down, and a little later that king's head was chopped off.

Prophecy is dangerous; keeping yourself prepared is wise.

Battle to Override President Due In House

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today vetoed the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill because it carried increased allowances for war veterans and government workers exceeding his budget by $228,000,000.

Associated Press.

President Roosevelt packed action into every hour today to clean his desk for departure tonight on his fishing cruise in southern waters. The President took these steps:

1—Drafted a message to Congress carrying the first veto of major legislation—a disapproval of the independent offices bill because of its increased allowances to veterans.

2—Signed the Vinson Navy bill, authorizing construction of the American Navy up to full treaty strength and at the same time proposed further reductions in naval limitations in the 1935 disarmament parley. (See story and text of message, Page 8).

3—Called for quick action in permitting immediate bidding by private lines for air mail service and for turning air mail transportation over to them as soon as possible. (See story, Page 8).

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today prepared a voluminous message for transmission to Congress explaining why he could not approve the amounts voted by the Senate and House for war veterans and government employes.

The White House arranged to send the veto message to Capitol Hill this afternoon. It will be the President's first refusal to sign a major piece of legislation.

Meanwhile, House Democratic leaders decided to postpone until tomorrow a vote on overriding the veto of the independent offices' supply bill, which contains the veterans' allowances and pay cut restoration appropriations. Speaker Rainey, told reporters:

"I am not going to recognize anyone today to submit a motion to override the President's veto, because I think the mem-

Woodruff Widow Ill, Misses Burial

HARRISBURG, March 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. George W. Woodruff, widow of the public service commissioner, is so seriously ill that she was unable to accompany her husband's funeral cortege to New York.

Mrs. Woodruff collapsed yesterday after public funeral services in Harrisburg and her physician ordered her to remain in her apartment.

40-Degree Drop Due as Winter Tries Comeback

Heralding the approach of a one-day cold wave the mercury began plunging downward today. By tomorrow, it will sink to 20, a drop of 40 degrees from today's maximum, according to Assistant Observer C. A. Belt.

Snow flurries likely will supplant the rain as the temperature falls. From 3 a. m. to 10 a. m. the mercury fell 24 degrees.

Winter's predicted comeback will be another of a long series of such weather antics this year, according to the records. Because of the lateness of the season the cold will tarry only a short time, the weather man asserted.

From Chicago came reports of of a six-inch snowfall and freezing that tied up ground traffic and suspended flying.

MOVES TO KILL WAGNER BILL

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—A proposal for a nonpartisan tribunal to decide labor disputes in lieu of strengthening the National Labor Board for that purpose was placed before the Senate Labor Committee today as Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, expressed a willingness to make further concessions to opponents of his Labor Board bill.

James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, told the committee fair decisions were not possible by a board which represents employers and employes in a controversy. He said:

"We ought to have a nonpartisan tribunal.

"Boards with arbitrary powers talk in terms of conflict and bitterness in which some party is to be forced to do something against his will."

Chairman Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts, said he was in accord with Emery's proposal, but too often such regulatory bodies as he proposed were appointed "on

Iowa Town Puts End To Petticoat Rule

BRADGATE, Ia., March 27.—(AP.)—Males are in command in Bradgate again after repulsing a determined bid for what they called "petticoat rule."

A political battle of the sexes culminated last night in the defeat of an all-women's ticket, headed by Mrs. Perry Lanning for Mayor. A one-sided victory gave the mayoralty to L. A. Malcolm, and all Council seats were filled by men.

Adolph Edlis Ill, Condition Serious

Adolph Edlis, city treasurer under the first administration of William A. Magee as Mayor, was reported gravely ill today at his home, 1416 North Euclid avenue. He is suffering from pneumonia which developed from a slight cold a week ago.

He is 73, and for many years has been head of the Edlis Barber Supply Company.

THREE TOMS GO ON TRIAL IN RAID

Gambling Devices of Monaca Club on Display

The trial of the Three Toms finally got under way today in Criminal Court.

And quite an entertaining trial it started out to be.

Against one wall of the courtroom were draped the roulette wheel, the dice tables, the "birdcages," the slot machines and the expensive chips (if those chips could only talk!) which District Attorney Earle R. Jackson told the jury were hauled out of the exclusive Monaca Club by state police one midnight 14 months ago.

Against one side of counsel table sat those three boys—Tom Coyne, brother of the Senator; Tom (Goose) Goslin and Tom Dolan, all charged, not only with operating the spot, but with being common gamblers.

They sat there, solemn and decorous, hiding whatever resentment they felt at being classed as common gamblers. After all, if the law must use such language . . .

'RUBBER CHECKS'

In opening to the jury Jackson made a crack or two which will be interpreted here and there throughout the town as threats. The prosecutor said that he had in his possession books of the Monaca which showed just who had given phoney checks—paper that bounced back and paper that never should have been sent to the bank in the first place.

This is news that may cause a lot of the boys to start thumbing their way west.

Mr. Jackson also boasted of having the names of hundreds of the lads and lassies who dropped in at the Monaca for, let us say, a cup of tea and a go at casino.

And that is news which might throw a scare into a few of those debutantes who used to sneak out at night to rub shoulders with the non-debutantes.

LAWYERS UNMOVED

All of which failed to impress Counsellor Al Oliver, who with John Duggan, Jr., and A. Lincoln Cohen, is representing the Three Toms.

Mr. Oliver took the birdcage dice which Mr. Jackson produced and gave it a few twists and twirls for the benefit of the jury. Mr. Oliver said these were things used at picnics, although he did not specify what picnics.

Jackson's first witness was Robert L. Hershman, the state trooper who posed as a customer of the Monaca for two months before the place was raided. Hershman identified all Three Toms with the place.

He said he saw the Goose back of the bar fiddling with the lights.

He said he saw Tom Coyne making change in the register to pay off a guy who had brought in some neckties.

He said he saw Dolan coming out of the second-floor office.

LOST AT GAMES

He said he lost a few dollars gambling, too—but this was no surprise.

Other witnesses, Jackson promised, will testify that the Three Toms committed acts which indicated ownership, that Tom Coyne was once introduced to a customer as an owner, that Dolan, buying furniture for the spot, gave his name in department stores as Howard Johnson.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall is presiding. The jury of seven women and five men is being locked up over night.

'Billy' Sunday's Grandson to Wed

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—(AP.)—George M. Sunday, Jr., 22, grandson of "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, and Miss Dorothy Barrick, 21, both residents of San Francisco, announced their intention to marry in a license application on file here today.

ATTORNEY ALBERT A. MARTIN, 30 DETECTIVE JAMES M'COY, 37

Attorney Martin, City Detective McCoy pictured today as they faced a magistrate in North Side Police Court in their hearing on charges of compounding a felony in connection with the case against former Policeman Irvine T. White, arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property. They were held for further investigation by the police. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

TRIO LINKED TO STOLEN GOODS

Two Get Bail, Third Surrenders Ending Police Hunt

City Detective Edward McEntee, charged with two others, with compounding a felony, surrendered at the North Side Police Station today.

Sought by police, McEntee said he didn't know he was wanted until he read it in a newspaper. A radio scout crew reported they had waited all last night outside his home, 3210 Richardson avenue, but saw nothing of him.

McEntee was wearing a diamond stickpin which he turned over along with other valuables, to the desk sergeant.

He at first denied the pin was made from a ring that was part of the loot in a North Side holdup recently. Later Capt. Anthony Block and Precinct Detective Frank Dodson said McEntee had admitted to them the diamond was the same one that had been stolen.

His release on bond denied by District Attorney A. T. Park, McEntee was lodged in a cell, pending a hearing, probably tomorrow.

The others accused, Detective James McCoy, 37, and Attorney Albert A. Martin, 30, of the Plaza Building, arraigned in North Side Police Court today, were released on bond. Decision as to whether they shall be held for court was reserved until Saturday by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt.

Charges against the three were decided upon after a long conference last night, attended by District Attorney Park, Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall and Capt. Block.

HELD FOR COURT

A former policeman, Irvine T. White, who until recently operated a club in Federal street, told the story on which the charges were based. He has been held for court on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

White testified that a man came into his club and sold him seven diamonds, a watch and pistol. Later the stuff was identified as that taken from Louis Seibert, 59, of 1672 Perrysville avenue, in a stickup.

But White denied that he knew the stuff was stolen. He said he had a jeweler mount the best diamond in a stickpin. He added that later he admitted to McEntee and McCoy, who were investigating the stickup, that he had bought the diamonds.

Then he went to Attorney Martin, who arranged to turn the stuff back to the detectives.

DIAMOND MISSING

And in police court today Block testified that Martin did turn all the diamonds, which had been given him by his client, over to McEntee.

But one of the diamonds—the one in the stickpin—was missing

U.S. IRISH ENVOY SNUBS BRITAIN

International News Service.

DUBLIN, March 27.—Departing from precedent, W. W. McDowell, the new United States Minister to the Irish Free State, today presented his credentials direct to Eamonn De Valera, president of the Free State's executive council, instead of to the Governor General, Donal Buckley.

The Governor General is appointed by the Government of Great Britain. President De Valera is an elected official of the Free State. Previous diplomatic envoys to Dublin have presented their credentials direct to the Governor General. While it was reported that the Governor General had asked De Valera to act for him, Irish patriots, nevertheless, interpreted the incident as another step toward freedom from British control.

LONDON, March 27.—(INS.)—The action of President De Valera, in having the United States Minister present his credentials to De Valera instead of to the Governor General, was described in London newspapers today as "an Irish insult to the Governor General."

2 Night Club Girls Injured In Auto Crash

Three girls were injured early today when an automobile and taxicab collided at Second avenue and Grant street.

They are:

POPE, BETTY, 26 manager of the Show Boat.

REYNOLDS, KAY, bookkeeper and hat-check girl at the Show Boat.

GETSINGER, DOROTHY, 23, of 329 West Lehigh avenue, Munhall, daughter of Charles B. Getsinger, special engineer for the Carnegie Steel Company.

Miss Pope is in Mercy Hospital with brain concussion. The Reynolds girl was treated for a back injury and shock and Miss Getsinger was discharged from the hospital after treatment for a cut below the eye.

The two night club girls were riding in a taxicab driven by Jacob D. Weiland, 2446 Library road, Overbrook, when it was in a collision with an auto driven, police said, by Charles L. Knight, of 98 Ridgewood avenue, West View. Miss Getsinger was a passenger in his car. A girl and boy with them escaped injury.

Both drivers were charged with reckless driving.

3 Reds Beheaded For Killing Nazi

DUESSELDORF, Germany, March 27.—(AP.)—Three Communists were beheaded today for killing a Nazi storm trooper June 20, 1932, during a Communist attack on a storm troop headquarters at Erkrath.

Seven other Communists, also condemned to death for complicity in the slaying, received commutation of their sentences to life imprisonment by Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian Premier.

All state liquor stores will be closed Good Friday, it was announced today by Philip W. Gundelfinger, district superintendent here for the Liquor Control Board. The stores normally are open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

FORD QUITS CAR FOR SLEIGH

DETROIT, March 27.—(AP.)—Henry Ford went sleighing today.

Drifting snow, piled high by a sudden, unseasonable storm, prompted the motor magnate to return to the transportation of his youth as he sent several sleighs to pick up pupils of his Greenfield village school.

Ford could not resist the temptation of jingling bells and an old-fashioned ride, so he climbed into one of his sleighs, helped the driver collect children, and spent more than two hours in one of the heaviest storms in years.

The sleighs made their way over roads covered with unbroken snow which reached a depth of a foot on the level and four feet in drifts. Weather Bureau records showed it to be the heaviest March snow since 1895.

House Backs Probe Of Negro Exclusion

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—An investigation of the exclusion of Negroes from the House public restaurant was approved today by the House Rules Committee.

It voted favorably on a resolution by Representative De Priest (Rep.), Illinois, the only Negro in Congress. When the proposal will be presented for action has not been decided.

U. S. Steel Pay Raise Action Due Today

The executive committee of the United States Steel Corporation, meeting in New York today, was expected to consider a 10 per cent wage increase, with no increase in the 40-hour week, as announced last night by several independent concerns, for April 1.

The American Iron and Steel Institute had been notified by one large Pittsburgh concern that it would grant increases regardless of the action of other companies. About 8,000 men will be affected, it was said.

The Corrigan-McKinney Steel Company, of Cleveland, has notified its employes' association that it will put into force a wage increase to approximate the 1929 level in many companies. This action follows a 10 per cent increase granted last summer. It was indicated that salaried employes would not be affected.

About 4,500 men will be affected by the increase, Corrigan-McKinney officials said. Their plants are now operating about 82 per cent of capacity, on a base rate of 42½ cents an hour, while minimums throughout this district are 40 cents, compared to 33 cents before the steel code's wage scale became effective last July.

One steel official said a general raise would probably amount to $100,000,000 being added to pay envelopes of workers annually, if present production continues.

Dillinger Gang Guarded With Wooden Guns

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., March 27.—The massive steel gates of the Ohio Penitentiary swung shut today behind three members of the Desperado John Dillinger's gang, two of whom are to die in the electric chair on July 13 for the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber, on October 12, last.

Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, who face death in the electric chair, and Russell Clark, sentenced to life imprisonment, were received at the penitentiary at 12:30 p. m.

The caravan of 13 automobiles bearing the Dillinger gangsters, completed the uneventful journey of 95 miles from Lima in approximately three hours.

Brig. Gen. Harold M. Bush, of the Ohio National Guard, who was in personal charge of the troops which guarded the caravan, had a little "wooden gun" joke of his own today on John Dillinger. Bush disclosed that four of six machine guns which had been trained menacingly on the county jail here where the desperadoes were imprisoned, were "nothing but wooden playthings."

Two real machine guns were hidden so as to "take care" of anyone (meaning Dillinger or his gang) who might attempt to stage an attack on the machine gun nests.

when the loot was turned back to North Side police Block related.

And Block quoted White:

"McEntee came to my cell at No. 1 and said, 'Here's the pin they're looking for. I've got it.'"

Block testified:

"They concocted a story that a fictitious fellow by the name of Carney got the stuff in the first place. McEntee still has the stickpin diamond."

There was nothing brought out at the hearing to indicate that any of the diamonds ever were in the possession of McCoy, who has been on the detective force a matter of weeks.

Block said an additional charge of receiving stolen goods will be filed against McEntee.

McCoy was suspended last Saturday.

Kane Confident of Votes For Police Inquiry

The effort to eliminate graft in the police department through appointment of a Police Research Commission was a topic for discussion today in Council's Public Safety Committee.

An ordinance presented by Councilman John J. Kane, which strikes at a number of high-ranking officers who have attained their positions, it is charged, through political influence, was expected to cause sharp debate in Council.

Kane is confident he has enough votes to put through his plan of a merit basis for police promotions.

He added that if the local administration lacks power to carry through all details of the plan, help could be sought in the State Legislature. He said:

"We want to find out why numbers writers can be picked off the streets and made detectives."

Council also has before it an answer by Police Supt. Marshall to charges by police brutality made by William Penn Hotel strikers. Marshall's reply is in the form of a letter to Safety Director Smith.

Smith has forwarded the Marshall letter to Council.

Marshall said police have not interfered with pickets except when the strikers gathered in large numbers and attempted to incite a riot.

Garland Rules Finley Ouster Comes First

A carefully planned effort by Mayor McNair to force Democratic Councilmen to approve the transfer of Safety Director Ralph E. Smith to the Traction Conference Board has failed, and the Mayor is angry.

Councilman John M. Huston acted as the Mayor's floor leader yesterday, and there were indications that his support of Smith's appointment was forced by McNair.

Huston formerly had said he was against the Smith transfer, but yesterday he tried twice to get it before Council for a vote. President of Council Robert Garland ruled that, until Charles A. Finley was dismissed from his $12,000 job as chairman of the Traction Board, the Smith appointment was out of order.

HANNON JOB IMPERILED

Huston, it is reported, had to work hard last Saturday to save the job of City Assessor O. B. Hannon, whom the Mayor is said to have fired and reinstated one hour later. Hannon was sponsored by Huston.

The Mayor's ire was great when he heard of Council's action. He asked particularly about the way the Democratic Councilmen had voted. Then he stormed.

Alternately fingering the pages of the city charter and the traction agreement, the Mayor said: pointments, the Mayor said.

"It says in here that each member shall hold office at the pleasure of the party appointing him. Well, I appoint them and it's my pleasure to remove Finley. Therefore, he's out."

When a reporter suggested that he might make more progress if he sent Finley's dismissal to Council for a vote, the Mayor said:

"Oh, no! They'd turn me down, and then I couldn't send any more appointments to Council."

And there are to be more appointments, the Mayor said.

Smith's name, however, will not go in for the magistrate's appointment, still vacant, after Council yesterday refused to confirm the appointment of Charles E. Jackson, Negro, of 630 Harvard street.

Jackson was turned down, seven to one, William A. Magee voting for him. The Democratic bloc, through Wayne R. Demmler, stated they were refusing to confirm because of Jackson's conviction on an embezzlement charge.

TABLING MOVE FAILS

The Smith transfer caused considerable bickering in Council.

Summing up the objections of Council, P. J. McArdle said:

"The Mayor may remove the chairman of the Traction Board with the consent of Council. Let him ask our consent."

Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher and John J. Kane indicated they are still opposed to the Smith transfer. The entire Democratic bloc, however, might vote for the removal of Finley.

By a vote of five to three Council has named Edward A. Schofield, of 259 Melwood street, as budget controller, the position vacated by the resignation of Robert J. Alvordice.

M'CLURE LIKELY TO KEEP SEAT

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 27.—The freedom given State Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia yesterday may obviate the possibility of the loss of his seat in the upper legislative branch, in the opinion of Senate officials here.

McClure's term expires in 1937. He was not present at the last special session of the Legislature, obtaining leaves of absence weekly. It was believed here that he intends to serve out his term.

The status of Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the State House of Representatives, will be determined at the next convocation of the House. He was voted a leave of absence without pay until the next session of the Legislature.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure over the lower Mississippi Valley extends as a narrow trough to the northeast over Southern Virginia and Eastern Tennessee to the Eastern Gulf, and is being followed over its west side by the high pressure over Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Cold weather prevails from Western Ontario, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa northward to the Canadian border, and eastward to the Atlantic coast. Rain accompanies the low pressure in the eastern and southern areas and snow appears on its western side. Snow on the ground is 4 inches at Sault Ste. Marie, 2 inches at Duluth, Minn., and Springfield, Mo., and 1 inch at Kansas City, Mo. It is much colder over the upper Mississippi and Lower Ohio valleys and eastern Maine, and warmer in the Appalachians and eastward to the coast. Over the western plains the Southern Rocky Mountains, the plateau and the Canadian Northwest, temperatures are the high range between freezing in Southern Texas and zero over Western Ontario.

River Conditions.

Rainfall was light over the Monongahela River basin, average less than .25 inch, while over the Allegheny and the upper Ohio the average was .60 inch. The rivers are rising. There was a fine rain over the area in the Monongahela basin. Except due to rain and melting snow in the Allegheny River the rise was less than a half foot. Blaze at 8 o'clock this morning was 11 feet. Lock No. 7 (Monongahela) 2.7. Dam No. 4, 9.6. Lock No. 6, 9.1. Lock No. 5, 9.6, and Lock No. 3, 9.8. The dams are all out except Dam No. 6, which was lowered for repairs. The rivers will continue to rise. About 13.3 feet indicated at Pittsburgh by Wednesday morning.

Newspaper Man Urged as Sleuth My McNair

Mayor McNair wants a newspaper reporter named on the city detective force.

This, the Mayor holds, would be more effective in finding out what's what than a police commission of prominent citizens, proposed in an ordinance introduced by Councilman John J. Kane.

Said the Mayor:

"I want a newspaper man on the detective force. They get around City Hall and know what's going on. A reporter would soon get on the inside of all this stuff.

"This proposed police commission of Mr. Kane's is too theoretical. How could men like that find out what is going on."

DIES IN WOODS AFTER FIGHT

An autopsy on the body of a man tentatively identified as that of Michael Nasterict, 40, of Gastonville, Washington County, found in a woods in Snowden Township last night, disclosed that he was a victim of exposure.

Nasterict disappeared the night of January 28 after engaging in a fight at a party in a Snowden Township farm house, according to Deputy Coroners Stanley Guzenski and John McQuaid. He left the party hatless and coatless and announced that he would be back. He failed to return.

The body was found by three miners returning home from work.

INFLATION BILL VOTE SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—A scant 22 signatures separated the House today from a vote on another currency expansion measure opposed by the Roosevelt administration.

Opponents of the proposal—the Frazier farm-mortgage refinancing measure—contended it held possibilities of almost unlimited currency expansion.

It was pigeonholed by the House Agriculture Committee last session, but Representative Lamke (Rep.), of North Dakota, filed a petition to force a vote on the House floor.

The petition requires 145 signatures. Today, there were 123 names on the document.

Under the bill the federal government would buy up farm mortgages paying for them with new currency, and reissue them to the farmer, who would pay them off at the rate of 1½ per cent interest and 1½ per cent of the principal each year.

Police Favor Old Pass Day System

Police have asked Council to continue the present arrangement which allows the officers four pass days a month and a two-weeks vacation during the year. Council is considering a measure which would provide two pass days a month. A committee from the Fort Pitt Lodge, No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police, appeared before Council yesterday.

PRESIDENTIAL BACKING AIDS WALL ST. BILL

Drive Against Control Measure Rebuked By Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—The chances for quick passage of the stock market control bill—without any more important changes—were much better today because President Roosevelt is openly rooting for it.

The President served notice last night he would fight to have the Fletcher-Rayburn measure passed speedily.

The Chief Executive, in letters to Senator Fletcher and Representative Rayburn, asserted that the measure as it now stands should not be "weakened," and added:

"It has come to my attention that a more definite and more highly organized drive is being made against effective legislation to this end than against similar recommendations made by me during the past year."

HINTS AT FOES

The President hinted some single organization was responsible for the drive against the bill. He named no names, but said:

"Letters and telegrams bearing all the earmarks of origin at a common source are pouring into the White House and the Congress."

As for the present bill, Mr. Roosevelt said he had looked it over and did not "see how any of us could afford to have it weakened in any shape, manner or form."

Meanwhile a series of proposed amendments to the measure was offered today by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Exchange.

CHANGES SUGGESTED

Whitney said his suggestions, submitted to the Senate Banking Committee while testifying on the revised Fletcher-Rayburn measure, would "eliminate its most dangerous feature while increasing its effectiveness in the promotion of those objects which are vital in the public interest."

Expressing agreement with the idea that "great speculative excesses are an economic evil and that they can and should be prevented," the Stock Exchange head denied that Wall street excesses of 1929 were caused by or due to the stock exchanges.

In a new attack on the legislation, Whitney said the bill in its present form would prevent excessive speculation, but only by seriously interfering with that great system of industry, commerce and finance, "without which there can be neither speculation nor prosperity."

BEAUTY RACKET BAIL JUMPED

Bonds for four men charged with conspiracy in operating the Lady Fair Beauty Salon were ordered forfeited today when they failed to appear in Criminal Court.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich ordered their bonds forfeited, and their arrest will be sought.

The men were arraigned last fall after hundreds of women had complained to the Better Business Bureau that they were being victimized.

The defendants had been listed as Wilbur Freeman, manager; Frank Degillis, J. R. Goodwin and Joseph Devine.

According to more than 100 women, they were enticed into visiting the salon by being told they had won a free permanent wave in a lottery, only to learn they could not have the free premanent unless they took several other costly services.

'TOKEN' ON DEBT TO BE PAID BY GERMANY

Reich Expected to Follow Policy of Britain

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Germany has decided to offer this government a so-called "token" payment on the $50,000,000 due the United States the end of this week on German mixed-claim and army of occupation payments, it was learned today.

Amount of the payment was withheld pending discussions with American officials, but it was believed to be around 10 per cent. This was the approximate percentage of the token payments made by Great Britain and the other debtor nations in the hope of avoiding the stigma of outright default.

Indications are that Germany wishes to meet the payment in the same manner as it did a minor installment last September. At that time, Germany was due to pay approximately $1,600,000 interest on both the mixed claims and Army of Occupation postponed payments. Instead, it set aside the amount in marks in the Reichsbank to the credit of the American Treasury.

This government could draw on this amount for expenditures in Germany, such as the purchase of German goods, but it could not take the money out of Germany owing to exchange restrictions.

American officials are reluctant to agree to any such arrangement in connection with the $50,000,000 due March 31. This form of payment is considered contrary to the terms of the mixed claims and Army of Occupation debt agreement. In fact, officials here consider Germany technically in default in the $1,600,000 payment.

London Seeks New War Debt Parleys

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, March 27.—Tentative maneuvers toward reopening of Anglo-American war debt discussions have been made in Washington by Great Britain.

The British gesture was brought about by the Roosevelt administration's approval of the Johnson bill, barring American private loans to foreign defaulters, and also by the reported impending presentation to Congress of a new American debt agreement with Finland.

To the British Embassy's inquiry whether the State Department is ready to take up the question of inter-governmental debts, the State Department is understood to have replied that nothing could be discussed regarding the war debts while the administration is drawing up its legislative debt program.

EX-BANK HEAD INDICTED

CLEVELAND, March 27.—(AP.)—J. Arthur House, former president of the Guardian Trust Company, today had been indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of making false entries and misapplication of the bank's funds.

Harry C. Robinson, former executive vice president, and William R. Green, former vice president and controller, were indicted jointly with him. The indictments contained 27 counts.

The true bill was the first fruit of a year of investigation by Department of Justice agents. It charged a total of $76,122 in the bank's trust department was misapplied and that false entries were made to cover the acts. At one time, the Guardian's trust department was the largest in the state, with $300,000,000 in assets.

The bank, now in the hands of a liquidator, was closed in the spring of 1933.

BANK RECEIVER SUES OFFICERS

JOHNSTOWN, March 27.—(AP.)—Receiver John Vallely, of the closed First National Bank, today had filed suits against David Barry, president, and other former officers of the institution, seeking recovery of approximately $720,000.

The action was taken in the form of bills of equity, suits in assumpsit and judgment notes filed in the County Court at Ebensburg.

Barry headed the list with $150,488 sought in suits of assumpsit. Gertrude S. Barry was made defendant in a similar prosecution involving $138,581. P. F. McAneny, former vice president, was sued for $92,857 and two members of the prominent Swank family—George and Harry, both business leaders—were asked for $109,000 and $138,881 respectively.

There were 17 separate judgments listed, naming several other prominent Johnstown residents.

ONLY 12 PROFS IN N. Y. HELD 'INSANE'

Doctor's Charge 1,500 Teachers Are Crazy Explained

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—This city is very fortunate that it has so few mentally incompetent school teachers moulding youthful, plastic minds, Dr. Emil Altman, chief medical examiner of the Board of Education, declared today.

Dr. Altman yesterday caused a major sensation by announcing that of New York City's 36,000 teachers, 1,500 or more are "mentally or emotionally unstable."

There is really nothing alarming about such a situation, Dr. Altman explained:

"In fact, New Yorkers have reason to congratulate themselves for their happy lot.

TO BE CONGRATULATED

"As a matter of fact we in New York can congratulate ourselves because the percentage of mentally and emotionally unstable persons in our teaching staff is well below the average for teachers generally, and is about the average to be found in a cross-section of the entire population."

Dr. Louis Marks, member of the Board of Examiners, and original author of the estimate of unstable pedagogues, deplored what he termed a wide-spread and faulty interpretation placed upon the figures. He said:

"It is untrue to conclude that there are 1,000 to 1,500 crazy teachers in our school system. Normally you would expect 3 or 3 per cent of any large group to develop in stability."

'12 MAY BE INSANE'

Perhaps a dozen teachers in New York are really insane, he said, adding:

"Among 36,000 persons anything may happen."

Dr. Altman said that although some of the teachers constituted a menace to pupils, most of them were suffering from nervous illnesses which did not make them dangerous.

From Dr. A. A. Brill, well-known psychiatrist, came the assertion that a touch of dementia praecox and other mental disorders was a boon to any school system.

Persons with certain psychological afflictions are efficient teachers, he added.

ZOO ENGINEER OUSTER BALKED

Indicating a new deal for city employes, the Civil Service Commission today blocked efforts to dismiss Thomas J. Gallagher, boiler engineer at Highland Park zoo.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston had attempted to oust Gallagher for alleged insubordination and neglect of duty.

But Miss Julia Marie Doyle, chairman of the commission, declared that the Public Works Department had not notified the commission of the specific charges against Gallagher. She added:

"It's no fault of the defendant that the department erred."

Angered by the turn of events, Director Johnston said "damn" and left the hearing.

Raids Trap Woman As Rum Violator

Twenty-four hours after her arrest in a liquor raid by city detectives, Mrs. Anna Impilliccieri, 43, of 428 Williams street, was arrested by Mt. Washington police last night in a similar raid. She was held for court on charges of violating the liquor laws in both cases.

Her son, Dominic, was fined $10 or 30 days in jail on a charge of interfering with an officer.

'Bad Wolf' Laughed Out By Films, Hays Says

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Motion pictures "literally laughed the big bad wolf of depression out of the public mind" last year, Will Hays said today in his annual report to the motion picture producers and distributors of America. The screen "czar" declared:

"No medium has contributed more greatly than the films to the maintenance of the national morale during a period featured by revolution, riot and political turmoil in other countries.

"It has been the mission of the screen, without ignoring the serious social problems of the day, to reflect aspiration, achievement, optimism and kindly humor in its entertainment.

"Historians of the future will not ignore the interesting and significant fact that the movies literally laughed the big bad wolf of depression out of the public mind."

In the belief of Hays, the movies are growing more artistic and indications are that classics of literature and history will play an increasingly important part in the future. He said:

"It is a significant phase of the screen's upward progress that rival producers should contend, as they have done this year, for priority claims to the production of one of the classic works of Charles Dickens."

Hays said that among the classics to be transferred to the screen during the coming season are Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice," Dickens' "David Copperfield," Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," Washington Irving's "Rip Van Winkle" and others.

JEAN NASH ALERT AT MENTION OF GALLOWS IN SON'S TRIAL

YOUTH DENIES SLAYING ON HIGH SEAS

G. M. Cohan's Ex-Wife, 'Friend of Family,' In Court

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—A jury to try Andrew Donaldson Kirwan for alleged murder on the high seas was sworn in the court of Federal Judge Robert A. Inch today.

The panel presented a day and a half of effort on the part of attorneys with a venire that seemed uniformly reluctant to serve.

No alternate jurors were chosen or requested and the government's first move was to carry into the courtroom a large black board with a chalk chart of the cabin arrangements of the S. S. President Garfield, the ship upon which Gilliam Sessoms, of Seattle, was mortally stabbed.

The jury studied the chalk chart intently as Conboy explained the layout of the staterooms occupied by Kirwan and Sessoms. Conboy said:

"On the afternoon of February 10," Conboy said. "Cross (an assistant purser) and Kirwan met on the boat deck and agreed to buy a bottle of gin.

"At about 5 o'clock Cross went to Kirwan's room for a drink. They invited Sessoms to come in. Sessoms had a part of a bottle of gin in his room and invited them in there.

"Then Sessoms went into Kirwan's room and had a drink. Cross left to do some work and left Sessoms and Kirwan in the latter's room."

DRANK AND DRANK

The prosecutor went on in detail, shifting the three from one room to another and telling how they drank and drank in each.

Mme. Paul Dubonnet, mother of the accused youth, was again in court—and again dressed in the manner that brought her fame as "best dressed woman in Europe." She wore a brown wool dress, beaver coat and halo turban of silk straw fabric.

M. Dubonnet, her fifth husband, sat by her side.

The entire first day of the trial in the court of Federal Judge Robert A. Inch was given over to the questioning of prospective jurors. Many failed to qualify in the face of the government's insistence that they be not prejudiced against the death penalty "in the event the facts warrant it."

The defense indicated in its questions that it might seek to prove that Kirwan was intoxicated at the time of the sea slaying and unaccountable for his actions.

MOTHER ALERT

Near the counsel table yesterday were John P. Kirwan, the youth's grandfather; Mrs. Emma Donaldson, his maternal grandmother, and Mrs. Paul Graham-White, the former Ethel Levy, who at one time was married to George M. Cohan. Mrs. Graham-White said she was a close friend of the family.

Jury selection was monotonous to all in the court except Dubonnet. She stared intently forward whenever Martin Conboy, federal district attorney, mentioned the death penalty.

The charge, murder on the high seas, is a rare one in New York's Federal Court. The last was in 1928, when a ship's cook was convicted of manslaughter.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

A death penalty would have to be carried out in the Southern District of New York by hanging. Since the state no longer hangs, and since the federal gallows, which once stood on Governors Island, have long been broken up, a special gallows would have to be constructed.

Following usual custom in federal courts, Kirwan was called upon to renew his plea of not guilty soon after the case was called.

The court read the entire indictment to him, beginning:

"Andrew Donaldson Kirwan, you are charged with murder on the high seas."

Kirwan, stiffly erect, jerked back his chin, worked his eyebrows convulsively and sputtered:

"I plead not guilty."

RAFT INHUMAN, WIFE CHARGES

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—George Raft, screen star, was called "cruel and inhuman" by his wife today in a separation suit in which she asked $25,000 counsel fees and $1,200 a week alimony.

Raft's cruelty, she said, consisted of "constantly associating in public with other women." She married Raft in 1923, the affidavit states, when he was a comparatively obscure vaudeville performer.

His present income is reputed to be in the neighborhood of $300,000 a year.

FRENCH POLICE ROUND UP ARMS

PARIS, March 27.—(AP.)—French police smashed at political factions which, they say, are arming themselves against the government in a widespread series of raids today throughout Paris and the suburbs collecting hundreds of rifles and pistols and a huge stock of ammunition, swords, and bayonets.

The raiders searched for evidence that the extremist groups of the Right and Left political parties were arming in anticipation of a "civil war" as their rival newspapers have repeatedly charged.

It was reported 40 guns were found under beds and behind cupboards in an apartment in Saint Ouen, a working-class suburb where many radicals are known to live. In another hall, 30 automatic pistols, a quantity of bayonets and swords, and a number of rifles were taken.

CANNES, France, March 27.—The entire population of Cannes was awakened early today by a terrific bomb explosion which wrecked a large Masonic temple.

The explosion was given unusual significance in view of the recent political disorders which have resulted in violence in various parts of France.

SPIES LINKED IN SKY JUMPS

PARIS, March 27.—(AP.)—Securing secrets of French stratosphere flights constituted the assignment of one of the members of an international spy gang, on the theory that the stratosphere will play an important part in the next war, it was indicated today.

Investigations by Judge Andre Benon showed, police said, that all possible information regarding the chemistry of the stratosphere was gathered by one suspect in the ring in order to facilitate experimentation. Police declare this information was particularly sought by Russia.

While pushing their own investigations, Paris police said they were in full touch with authorities in the United States, and intimated arrests in America may be expected.

Mrs. Robert G. Switz, of East Orange, N. J., held with her husband, was reported to have had a secret process for developing photographic plates, which, developed in a normal way, resulted in blanks.

No Divorce Planned Yet, Film Actress Discloses

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—(AP.)—Ruth Chatterton, screen star, disclosed last night her separation from George Brent, leading man of the films. There are no immediate plans for a divorce, she said in a statement telephoned from New York.

Miss Chatterton telephoned the statement to her personal representative, Paul H. Conlin. She was quoted as saying:

"After a week in New York to think things over, I find that a separation is necessary. There are no plans for an immediate divorce."

Brent verified the separation but said he had nothing to add to Miss Chatterton's statement.

The couple married in New York August 13, 1932.

The marriage of Miss Chatterton and the Irish-born actor took place just 24 hours after she was divorced from Ralph Forbes, also an actor. The divorce was granted in Minden, Nev., Forbes testifying conflicting interests had led to the gradual separation, especially since her ascendancy to film stardom. They were married eight years.

Miss Chatterton recently ended her contract with Warner Brothers-First National Studio and had gone to New York to appear on the stage. Her film vehicles include such productions as "Frisco Jenny," "Lily Turner" and "Madame X."

Only yesterday it was announced Brent and Warner Brothers-First National Studios have patched up their differences. Neither Brent nor the studio would comment other than to say that the controversy had been settled satisfactorily.

SON IDENTIFIES AUTO VICTIM

When Arthur Kleitz, 21, called the East End police station today to inquire concerning his mother, Mrs. Clara Kleitz, 42, of 409 North Euclid avenue, who was missing, the sergeant read him a description of an unidentified woman struck by an automobile last night at Rippey and North Beatty streets.

The son went to the Pittsburgh Hospital where he identified the woman as his mother, a widow. She is suffering from a probable skull fracture. Her condition is serious. Alex L. Josselein, 26, of 712 North St. Clair street, driver of the car, was arrested.

Boy Struck by Auto Gets Head Injury

George Ryden, 10, of 5802 Rural street, was recovering in West Penn Hospital today from a head injury received when struck by an automobile last night.

The boy was crossing at Broad street at Negley avenue when an auto driven by Walter Metzger, 1263 Jancey street, struck him, according to police.

Mayor to Sponsor Easter Egg Party

Mayor McNair will be host to Pittsburgh youngsters at an Easter egg party in Schenley Park Easter Monday afternoon. The party, to be held at the bandstand, is planned along the lines of the Easter egg roll on the White House lawn. A special program of interest to small children is being prepared.

'KIDNAPED' SON FOUND AFTER 15 YEARS

Boy Stands By Pair Accused of Abduction By Mother

TOLEDO, O., March 27.—(AP.)—A kidnaping warrant for the arrest of a man and his wife was sworn to here by Mrs. Edith F. Smart, of Galion, O., over the protest of the couple that the boy Mrs. Smart claims for her son was adopted by them here in the presence of the complainant years ago.

The records in the case, police announced, showed that Arthur Ferguson, now 16 years old, was found recently living in Detroit with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Coyle.

Mrs. Smart alleged the child was abducted in 1918 while she was working in a Toledo restaurant. Coyle asserted in reply that he and his wife adopted the child with the permission of Mrs. Smart while the mother and the foster parents were living side by side here. The Coyles said they were not certain Mrs. Smart was the mother of the child, as they did not recognize her.

Mrs. Smart alleged that the Coyles departed suddenly with Arthur, and that she had hunted for the boy for 15 years.

As for Arthur himself, interviewed, he said he loved the Coyles as his own parents and would stay with them.

Mrs. Smart was aided in finding the boy by Pittsburgh City Detectives Edward McEntee and James McCoy and Mrs. Daniel Burke, of Pittsburgh, sister of Mrs. Coyle.

VISA AID ASKED BY MRS. INSULL

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ATHENS, March 27.—Mrs. Samuel Insull today appealed to Lincoln MacVeagh, United States Minister to Greece, for aid in obtaining a British visa to her passport. She also asked him to assist her in obtaining a French residence permit in place of the 30-day transit visa she now has. At present she cannot leave Greece.

The British government yesterday refused to issue a passport visa to Mrs. Insull. No reason was given.

George Xiros, her attorney, had charged, however, that the United States legation here was responsible for British reluctance, and threatened to take the matter to the League of Nations.

Mrs. Insull telephoned Minister MacVeagh at noon, making a personal appeal for his assistance. At present she cannot leave Greece, since she has only transit visas.

Her husband's whereabouts on the high seas is still a mystery.

Officials in Canada For Martin Insull

TORONTO, March 27.—(AP.)—Lieut. Frank K. Johnson of the Chicago police and Lawrence Ryan of the Cook County (Ill.) State's Attorney's office arrived today to take Martin J. Insull back to face trial for larceny and embezzlement.

Meanwhile their prisoner, brother of Samuel Insull, Sr., who is supposed to be aboard a Greek tramp steamer somewhere in the Mediterranean, paced the long gray and white hospital ward of Don jail waiting for the Chicago authorities to claim him.

BEAUTY DENIES KILLING MATE

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Under arrest in connection with the mysterious murder of her husband, Eric D. Madison, 40, film studio attache, his beautiful young widow today maintained silence except to deny that she had shot and killed him.

A statewide search for the widow, Mrs. Nellie Madison, ended when police found her hiding in a closet in a lonely mountain cabin.

Mrs. Madison admitted buying a pistol last Saturday, a few hours before six shots were fired into Madison's body in their luxurious Hollywood apartment, but police were puzzled over the fact that the pistol found in Madison's car, in which she fled, was not the one a receipt indicated she had purchased.

Detectives sought a second woman.

Man Killed When Struck By Engine

Nicholas Bemedenko, 45, of Coketown, near Groveton, was killed last night when struck by a shifting engine in the Montour Railroad yards at Coraopolis, according to the coroner's report. He was walking across the tracks when struck.

Cleveland Lawyers Get Garment for Old Bill

CLEVELAND, March 27.—(AP.)—Sobs, screams, a shower of coat-hangers and flying cold cream jars greeted Deputy Sheriff Robert Montjoy when he sought to serve a writ of attachment on Fifi D'Orsay, French-Canadian film actress, in her dressing room at a theater here, where she is appearing this week.

Stormed Fifi:

"Every place I go for t'ree years there are sheriffs waiting for me. I am seek to death for the whole business."

Then she stamped her feet and sobbed:

"I pay them $16,000 for booking me and all I get is a screen test."

Finally, Fifi's husband, Morris Hill, former University of Wisconsin athlete, prevailed upon the deputy to leave the room, but the storm grew worse instead of better.

More cold cream jars and coat hangers sailed through the air and out into the hall. The outburst ended when Fifi was reminded it was time for her regular act to go on.

The deputy remained at the theater, waiting for the end of it. He was determined, he said, to take Fifi's $3,500 mink coat and other clothing unless the judgment was paid. The writ, obtained by a local law firm, calls for payment of $420 for legal services performed for the actress when she appeared here in 1931. The attorneys at that time had been called to aid her when her trunk was attached by a Hollywood booking firm.

After the stage appearance, she calmed down. She ruminated:

"I am not sore at the Sheriff. He was a very nice man. But the whole business makes me sick for death."

She looked around. The Sheriff's deputy was gone. So was the mink coat, in lieu of money for the law firm.

Bottles in Rubbish May Bring Fine

Persons placing milk bottles in garbage or rubbish containers will be fined or imprisoned if an ordinance now before Council is approved.

The bill was presented as an aftermath to disclosures that the city is charged for the extra weight caused by the bottles in rubbish collection. Using milk bottles to contain any other matter but milk or cream is also made illegal.

JULIAN'S DYING DESPAIR TOLD BY GIRL

Promoter's Companion Regrets Trying to Die With Him

SHANGHAI, March 27.—(AP.)—Miss Leonora Levy, weak and pale from an attempt to kill herself with C. C. Julian, unfolded today what she called the "inside story" of the former American oil millionaire's death early Sunday.

Miss Levy, Julian's secretary and confidante, related:

"He was broke.

"Saturday night was the last night he could have had a roof over his head. Hotels where he had registered had ordered him out.

"In addition, he had proposed marriage to me and I had turned him down. With all this, he said life wasn't worth living. He checked out."

She meant that Julian committed suicide by swallowing the powerful potion from which Miss Levy later drank.

The voice of the girl who last saw Julian alive sank to a whisper as she told of the last days of the once-powerful California and Oklahoma promoter.

Miss Levy, now in a hospital, expressed regret that she had attempted to end her life when she went to Julian's room in the Astor House Hotel after he had been removed, dying. In the next breath, she condemned doctors for saving her. She said:

"I attempted suicide because I felt I was indirectly instrumental in his death."

Miss Levy and Julian, who fled to China in default of $25,000 bail in Oklahoma, where he faced charges of fraud, were at dinner in the hotel at midnight Saturday when Julian excused himself.

Alarmed when he did not return, the girl went to his room and found him unconscious.

Julian will be buried Thursday after a formal inquest. A Canadian who asked that his name not be disclosed will pay for the funeral.

LIMELIGHT OUT FOR HEX KILLER

International News Service.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 27.—Schuylkill County authorities today shielded Albert Shinsky, the 24-year-old "Hex" slayer, from the glare of publicity that has been playing upon him since he confessed slaying Mrs. Susan Mummey, who he was convinced had "hexed" or bewitched him.

Warden William Watson closed the doors of the prison to all visitors and all newspaper reporters who sought to interview Shinsky.

It was intimated Shinsky was deprived of the company of visitors because of his evident enjoyment of the amount of publicity the slaying aroused.

Selina Berstel, his sweetheart, who has announced a determination to "stick by" the youthful slayer, to who she was to have been married Easter Sunday, continues at work in the shirt mill where she earns slightly more than $9 a week. Her one determination was to gather up enough money to hire counsel for Albert.

District Attorney L. E. Enterline said he would issue a statement outlining his position with reference to the report of Dr. Walter G. Bowers, head of the Schuylkill County Hospital for the Insane, who has pronounced Shinsky a victim of mentia praecox, a form on insanity.

Auto Crash Delays Funeral Procession

A funeral procession was held up for 20 minutes at Stanton and North Negley avenues today when one of the automobiles in line was struck by another car.

Ralph Just, of 1017 Main street, Sharpsburg, told police, they reported, that his view of the procession was obscured by a street car. Both machines were damaged slightly. The funeral was that of Mrs. Elizabeth Muhl, 1434 Adams street.

Husband Slays Bride, Night Club Dance Star

International News Service.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 27.—Smiles hid tears as "the show went on" early today in an Agua Caliente night club.

The star dancer lay dead in a morgue at Tijuana, a victim, police said, of her handsome young husband's mad jealousy.

Upset, he told police, because of his unrequited love for his beautiful bride of two months, Rodriguez Dominguez shot and killed her, the life-loving Esperenza Lopez, 20, of the Hollywood screen and the dance team of Puerta and Esperenza, as she reclined on a lounge in their desert resort bungalow.

Police said five shots struck the lovely dancer, and that she had died instantly. Dominguez surrendered at once to police.

Puerta and Esperenza were an internationally famous dance team, their services sought in European capitals and in many American cities.

Nila Calls New Mate 'Night of Compassion'

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Nila Cram Cook, the "flaming serpent" who was deported from India as a vagrant after she had forsaken Mahatma Gandhi, was honeymooning today with Albert N. Hutchins, mess boy on the ship on which she returned to the United States.

The couple appeared at the Marriage Bureau late yesterday with two witnesses, and while Hutchins—"call me Al"—rather shy and ill at ease, waited for the filling in of the necessary papers, his bride-to-be waxed poetical about him.

The daughter of the late poet George Cram said:

"He is my Nirvana—my glorious night of compassion—my infinite tenderness."

Al said nothing as she continued:

"He's my angel child, my starlight on the waters, my ruby on the rock."

The couple was married by a deputy city clerk with Leslie Fulenwider and George S. O'Neal as witnesses.

Miss Cook gave her age as 25; Hutchins said he was 28. The bride said her marriage to Topolo Proestoes, by whom she has a 6-year-old son, ended in divorce in 1932.

The witnesses are connected with a theatrical and motion picture news service.

'BRAINS' CHARGE TO GET FULL HEARING

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary (Ind.) school superintendent, is certain to get a chance to name the "brain trusters" he charges plotted a revolution in the Roosevelt administration.

The only question today was which branch of government—Congress or the Department of Justice—would make the investigation.

An effort will be made in the House today to have a Congressional committee do the job. Speaker Rainey, on the other hand, believes the Justice Department should do it.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, Schall, Rep., of Minnesota, came forward with a suggestion that if any one close to the President were found guilty of efforts to "substitute Communism" he should be placed before a firing squad.

TERM MATTER 'JOKE'

Several of President Roosevelt's professional advisers termed the matter a "joke." Most declined to even discuss it. Still others were reported reliably to have denied making such statements as Dr. Wirt listed in a letter read last week before the House Commerce Committee.

Prof. William F. Ogburn, of the University of Chicago, said:

"Dr. Wirt states that the 'new dealers' hold out no hope for recovery, so that a revolution may take place. I challenge him to name one man in the so-called 'Brain Trust' who is not interested in the welfare and recovery of the country."

Among other assertions in Dr. Wirt's letter were that an unnamed "brain truster" told him months ago that Mr. Roosevelt was only the "Kerensky" of the revolution then being planned; that he would be supplanted by a "Stalin," and that some Presidential advisers were seeking to hamper business recovery to bring about this end.

Said Speaker Rainey in urging a Justice Department investigation:

"If there are men, little or big, connected with the recovery movement who have made the statements he alleges, whether they were joking or serious, Dr. Wirt should give their names.

"His refusal to do it brands him as a mere publicity seeker, determined to sabotage the recovery program of the Administration as much as possible."

Wirt Ready to Air Charge Despite Death Threat

GARY, Ind., March 27.—(AP.)—Dr. William A. Wirt, educator, said today that "brain trusters" should seek to "get us out of the depression first and then bring up their social reform legislation."

He told of investigations which, he said, led him to make his sensational charges that some unnamed advisers of the President admitted plotting revolution.

The educator explained his views only a few hours after he said he had received a death threat from a person signing himself "A Faithful Member of the United States of America Roya, Citizen Secret Society." It carried a Buffalo (N. Y.) postmark. He said:

"If someone must be sacrificed to make the people aware, I am willing."

CWA PROGRAM NEARS CLOSE

All of the 70 or more county Civil Works Administration projects, on which $2,764,000 had been spent up to last week, will terminate Thursday night, it was announced today by E. L. Schmidt, County Planning Engineer.

Schmidt said he expected the resumption of the projects Monday morning under the new federal sub-division, the Relief Works Division. Authorization for the resumption has not been sent him, however, and conference of state and local Civil Works Administration heads in Washington Friday and Saturday are expected to produce the changes.

Word from the state administrator's office of the termination was received by Schmidt yesterday. So far the county has spent $1,197,000 and the CWA $1,563,000 on the county projects. Of the group, 22 are road and bridge projects, and many of the remainder improvements or structures in South and North Parks.

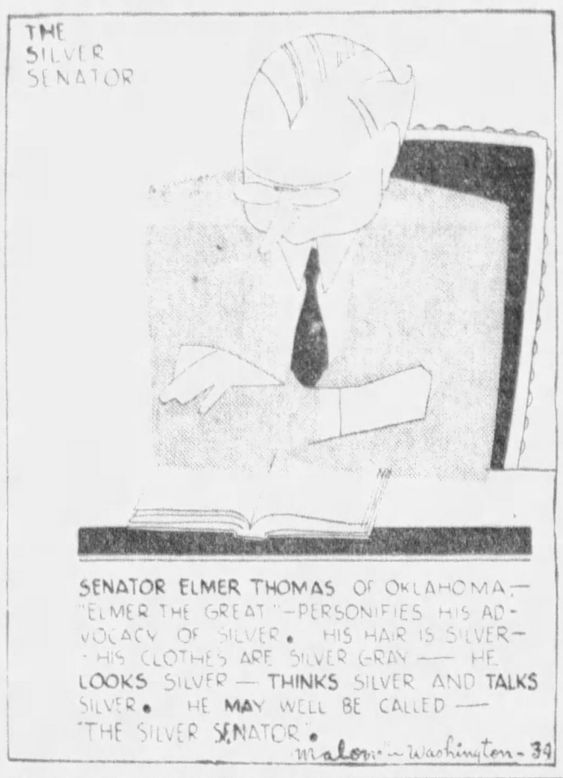
CAPITOL IMPRESSIONS By R. J. Malone



12 Aides of Roosevelt Named as 'Radicals'

Congressman Links 'Brain Trust' to Red Ideals

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Adding fuel to the charges hurled at the "Brain Trust" by Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary (Ind.) educator, Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, today named his own list of "radicals" in the service of the administration.

Joining in the demand for a Congressional investigation of Dr. Wirt's charges that the "Brain Trusters" are seeking to establish a new form of government, Fish declared that "the situation is well known to those who have watched developments."

Turning to the files of the House committee which investigated Communist propaganda in 1931, Fish named 12 figures in the administration whose names figured in the inquiry.

While disclaiming any intention to brand "Brain Trusters" as Communists, Fish said the 12 were associated with the American Civil Liberties Union. He said:

"I believe practically all members of the American Civil Liberties Union are Socialists at heart although there may be a few who have been misled as to the purposes of the organization."

In addition Fish named four other "radicals" in the administration and asserted that the administration harbors "a score or more of young radicals," tutored by Prof. Felix Frankfurter, of Harvard University.

The 12 named as being affiliated with the American Civil Liberties Union are:

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and designated by Fish as head of the "Brain Trust."

Prof. Paul H. Douglas, NRA.

Prof. Albert E. Taussig, NRA.

Jerome N. Frank, counsel Agricultural Relief Administration.

James M. Landis, member Federal Trade Commission.

Dr. Frederic C. Howe, NRA.

Clarence Darrow, noted lawyer and head of NRA Review Committee.

Henry T. Hunt, counsel, PWA.

Nathan R. Margold, solicitor Interior Department.

Robert Marshall, Bureau of Indian Affairs.

William E. Dodd, Ambassador to Germany.

Rose Schneiderman, NRA Labor Advisory Board.

Fish named four others who "may or may not be" affiliated with the American Civil Liberties Union: Ambassador to Russia, William C. Bullitt, Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel, economist, Agriculture Department; Sidney Hillman, NRA Labor Advisory Board, and Former Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, foreign trade adviser of the NRA.

Fish said:

"In addition it is estimated that there are about a score or more of young radicals, so-called economic experts and lawyers of the Felix Frankfurter School of Thought, most of whom are disciples of Karl Marx doing work for the government."

Meantime, Democratic House leaders were divided over the scope of the proposed investigation of Dr. Wirt's statements.

Incensed particularly at Dr. Wirt's statement that "brain trusters" told him President Roosevelt was "only the Kerensky of this revolution," one group urged a wide inquiry.

AUTO INDUSTRY SPEEDS WORK

DETROIT, March 27.—(AP.)—With three weeks of recurrent uncertainty ended, employes and employers in Michigan's vast automobile industry today continued the serious business of catching up with the demand for 1934 model motor cars.

The agreement reached in Washington, ending the most serious strike threat in the history of the industry, was heralded as satisfactory by the union workers.

Interest centered in the personnel of the mediation board to be set up here as a part of the President's plan to make the peace permanent. The nominee of labor, Richard L. Byrd, secretary of the Pontiac (Mich.) union locals affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, apparently found favor with the union men, who were anxious to learn who would be the manufacturers' representative and the impartial third member.

Derailed Car Ties Up Rail Traffic

A Pennsylvania Railroad freight train en route from Harrisburg to Cleveland, was delayed three hours when one of the cars became derailed near Blawnox, late yesterday, it was reported. The cause of the derailment had not been learned.

the basis of prejudice for or against a particular group."

As Emery spoke, Wagner said in an interview he was prepared, if necessary, to amend his bill curbing company unions to permit employers to "initiate" such unions if intended to help employes and if safeguards were applied to prevent control of the unions by the employers after they are created.

Previously he had agreed to strike out a section abrogating contracts that conflict with the bill and to change another clause to prevent intimidation from any source—not only by employers, as the bill now provides.

AUTO BOARD NAMED

Meanwhile, Leo Wolman, Columbia University professor, was named neutral member of the Automobile Labor Board which is to sit in Detroit to carry out terms of the industry's strike threat settlement obtained by President Roosevelt.

With Wolman will serve Nicholas Kelly, representing the industrial side, and Richard Byrd, for labor.

Appointment of the three was announced by NRA together with word that the board would meet in Detroit at the call of the neutral member not later than 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Wolman, since the sart of NRA, has been chairman of its Labor Advisory Board, a post which he has not surrendered as yet despite frequents criticism of hi policies by union leaders.

Wolman himself has no direct labor ties.

Kelly is connected with the Chrysler company and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Byrd is the president of one of the American Federation of Labor locals in Pontiac, Mich.

The board was instructed to be guided in its actions by the principles of settlement set forth by President Roosevelt last Sunday night when he obtained agreement between labor and management to call off the threatened strike.

CWA Limits Funds To Labor Costs Only

The city has been told by the Civil Works Administration to limit applications for funds to labor costs. Previously some CWA money has been available for materials.

As a result of the new ruling, applications for funds for sewer projects in Second avenue, Frankstown avenue and Schenley Park have been held up by the City Department of Public Works.

30-HOUR WEEK URGED BY COAL OPERATORS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—The Recovery Administration's hearings on revision of the soft coal code opened with an unexpected demand from a group of operators that the 40-hour work week set by the code be reduced to 30 hours without reduction in weekly wages.

William Taylor, representing the Northern Panhandle of West Virginia subdivisional code authority, told the NRA that operators of that region felt that only through such a reduction could coal production be brought down to the level of demand.

OPPOSITION HEARD

Code authorities from other sections quickly opposed Taylor's proposal.

Taylor advocated adjustment of working hours from time to time, upon recommendation of the Bureau of Mines, to keep coal production even with demand.

Code authorities from widely separated sections reported improved conditions under the code, but Western Kentucky operators said their business had dropped 25 per cent since it went into effect. They reopened their fight for a greater wage differential.

In the wage negotiations Charles O'Neill, representing the northern smokeless group, said it would be "too bad" if the agreement was not completed by April 1, the date of expiration of the present pact.

RAILROAD DEMAND

Among the obstacles to negotiation of the new wage agreement was a demand by leading eastern railroads for cheaper coal. A committee of railroad men, headed by C. D. Young, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, conferred with the operators and said they might lease their own mines if price reductions were not made.

O'Neill said, however, the railroaders had agreed to a continuation of the present price scale until the wage negotiations were completed.

The hearings scheduled to be resumed today were postponed until tomorrow in the hope operators of the Appalachian region might reach a new wage agreement with the United Mine Workers of America.

Jobs and Salary Gains Reported in Many Industries

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—New increases in industrial activity, factory employment and payrolls were reported today by the Federal Reserve Board.

Steel, automobiles and textiles were named especially in the monthly review of business and financial conditions for February and early March.

A billion dollar increase in deposits of member banks also was noted.

Wholesale commodity prices, the board said, showed little change in recent weeks. The board said:

"Volume of industrial activity increased in February for the third consecutive month, and there was a considerable growth in factory employment and payrolls. Wholesale commodity prices, after advancing for two months showed little change between able growth in factory employment and payrolls. Wholesale commodity prices, after advancing for two months showed little change between the middle of February and the middle of March."

"The advance reflected chiefly increases of considerably more than the usual seasonal amount in the output of steel and automobiles, while activity at meat packing establishments declined.

"Factory employment and payrolls increased substantially between the middle of January and the middle of February to a level higher, on a seasonally adjusted basis than at any time since the summer of 1931. Working forces on railroads also showed an increase while at mines there was little change in the volume of employment.

"The number on the payrolls of the Civil Works Administration declined from about 4,000,000 in January to about 2,900,000 in the week ending March 1. At automobile factories there was a large increase in the number employed to approximately the level prevailing four years ago.

"Substantial increases were reported also for the textile, clothing, shoe and tobocco industries. Freight traffic increased seasonally during February and the early part of March."

VAUCLAIN SEES LABOR ON TOP

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—(AP.)—Samuel M. Vauclain says:

"If there must be strikes, let us have them and get them over with."

Predicting that the United States is starting on its greatest march to prosperity despite labor troubles, the chairman of the Baldwin Locomotive Works in an address yesterday declared:

"It is unfortunate that the new deal has put new life into labor organizations and they are now expecting the government to aid them in their demands.

"Sooner or later, if we continue in our present condition, the control of all business will rest with the American Federation of Labor."

HOTEL STRIKERS CHARGE PLOT

Charging arrests of strikers were part of a "plot, striking workers from the William Penn Hotel were planning to send delegations to visit Mayor McNair and Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall and protest today.

The charge was made after Nicholas Lazaris, one of the strike leaders, was released on $1,000 bond for hearing Thursday on charges of aggravated assault and battery. Information had been made against him by Joseph Tesche, an employe of the hotel, who charged he was hit with a blackjack.

Following a meeting of the Regional Labor Board, A. C. Jewett, executive secretary, ordered both sides to continue their efforts to settle their differences.

JOB SECURITY BILL URGED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—The original author of the Ohio unemployment insurance plan, a rabbi, a Harvard economist and representatives of the unemployed themselves added their support before a House Ways and Means subcommittee today to the workers' security legislation already indorsed by President Roosevelt.

The bill under consideration would provide for the collection of a 5 per cent tax on payrolls of employers of more than 10 persons and virtually compel states to establish unemployment insurance systems through which the employers could make payments for which they would get credit on their income taxes.

TAXI STRIKERS TO OBEY POLL

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Striking drivers promised Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia late yesterday to abide by a new plebiscite as District Attorney William C. Dodge opened a grand jury investigation into violent disorders in the New York taxicab war. The inquiry focused on a statute defining the duties of public officials in quelling riots.

After officials of the Taxicab Drivers' Union of Greater New York agreed to the new plebiscite, the large fleet operators and representatives of their company unions were summoned to the Mayor's office in the hope of a quick settlement.

Disclosure of the investigation by Dodge came with the sudden appearance of the New York County grand jury before General Sessions Judge Freschi.

At Dodge's request, Judge Freschi read to the jurors from a section labeled: "Consequences of neglect or refusal to act." He commented:

"The District Attorney has officially called the attention of the court to the taxicab strike situation and to certain serious aspects involving injury to persons as well as to property—matters affecting the public safety and security."

Two officials of the NRA Regional Labor Board sat in on the City Hall conference.

SENATOR LAUDS HEARST VIEWS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—On motion of Senator Schall, of Minnesota, the editorial entitled "The Position of the Hearst Newspapers," published in the Hearst newspapers yesterday was incorporated in the Congressional record.

Senator Schall said the editorial laid down an excellent platform with which to meet the "onslaught of Hitlerism, Fascism and Bolshevism in 1934 and 1935" and that around it should gather the Jeffersonian Democrats and the Lincoln Republicans.

MOSCOW ORDERS REDS HERE TO CRIPPLE U. S. DEFENSES

MAPS LOCATE PLANTS MAKING MUNITIONS

By RALPH M. EASLEY

Chairman Executive Council, the National Civil Federation

As Told to Earl Reeves

The Red International of Moscow has ordered the Communist Party, U. S. A., into militant action in an attempt to cripple our national defense.

In current Communist literature our belated repair of long-neglected national defense is represented as arming for attack upon the Soviet.

On January 13 there was published in the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, U. S. A., the "Thesis of the XIII Plenum of the Communist International," a document which becomes automatically, standing orders for all Communist parties.

The Daily Worker quoted from the "Thesis" then the American application as follows:

"The fight against the Roosevelt war plans means the organizing of bitter resistance to EVERY single war move, EVERY action and utterance of the Roosevelt government leading to war. An intense spotlight of exposure must be trained on every slightest war step of Roosevelt to enlighten the masses as to where the Roosevelt government is leading them."

Communists Attack Preparedness

The "Thesis" itself ordered Communists "to exert every effort without losing a moment for the revolutionary preparation FOR THE IMPENDING DECISIVE BATTLE FOR POWER."

The published and platform attacks by Communism upon naval construction, army modernization, air corps expansion; upon the R. O. T. C., the National Guard and civilian training, have been bitter and constant.

The Red International uses IMPERATIVE forms in its orders to its subjects throughout the world. Paragraph by paragraph the "Thesis" says "the Communist parties MUST," or "Communists MUST" — this being relieved by occasional use of "demand" or "obliged."

That Communists of America are obeying these latest orders, through ACTION, is clear. Some examples follow:

1—"In fighting against war" commands the thesis "the Communists must prepare even now for the transformation of imperial war into CIVIL war, and concentrate their forces in each country AT THE VITAL PARTS OF THE WAR MACHINE OF IMPERIALISM."

Map of U. S. Shows Munition Plants

In its February issue, "Fight," published by the American League Against War and Fascism," prints a map of the United States showing location of many munition plants.

"HIT MUNITION MAKERS," is the caption. In the text, many munition plants are identified by name and location. Text below reads:

"The imperialist governments are preparing a new blood bath for the workers and farmers.

"We call upon the workers of these plants to get into touch with the American League Against War and Fascism, 112 East Nineteenth street, New York, or with the branch of the league located in your city.

"We call upon all workers everywhere who have information on the manufacture of war material to mail us immediately the location of the plan, the type of war material made and the number of workers employed."

"Secret cells" of Communists are being established as rapidly as possible, in plants making war supplies. Members act as spies. They to ment trouble.

2—The Moscow thesis further directed that The Communist parties MUST intensify political educational work in the Army and in the Navy."

Soldiers Grievances Aired by Reds

That such Communist "educational work" has already been attempted in our Army is shown by "The Soldier's Voice," Volume 1, No. 1, December, known to have been distributed recently among soldiers at Monmouth, N. J.—and doubtless elsewhere.

This little eight-page newspaper stirs up as many soldier grievances as possible and winds up with the declaration that "the bosses of the United States plan to send us soldiers to destroy the Soviet Union,' but—

"WE AS WORKERS MUST REFUSE TO DO THIS DIRTY WORK FOR OUR MASTERS, THE BOSSES! LET US PREPARE AND ORGANIZE NOW NOT TO FIGHT AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION, BUT FOR OUR CLASS—THE WORKING CLASS."

In February, the first issue of "The Yard Voice" was distributed among navy yard workers. This new propaganda publication, a single sheet as yet, is critically reviewed by the Daily Worker, which notes that:

"Of course it will be the most important means for opening the eyes of the navy yard workers to class consciousness, and rally them for the final aim of the Communist party — the overthrow of the capitalist system and THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SOVIET AMERICA WITH ALL THAT IMPLIES."

The Moscow thesis makes clear that this implies, for the United States, a replica of Russia's "Red October."

Young Communists Told to Mobilize

3—In the "Young Worker" of February 13, extracts from the speech of Comrade Chemedonov, secretary of the Young Communist International, were printed for the guidance of the Young Communist League of America.

He said:

"From the Y. C. L.'ers of all countries it is now DEMANDED "that they mobilize all forces and energy for the struggle of the youth against their compulsory fascization and militarization."

Chemedonov assures youth that the Soviet non-aggression treaties and American recognition do not end the danger of an attack upon the Soviet. Moreover, he tells youth bluntly:

"It is impossible for two mutually exclusive systems like the socialist and capitalist systems to exist continually."

This makes clear that the drive to recruit youth aims to enlist them for the Soviet, and AGAINST America, in "the impending decisive battle for power." To the adult world, Moscow has been saying, "let us live peacably together."

The February issue of "Fight" indicates that YOUTH IS BEING ENLISTED IN SEARCHING OUT AND REPORTING FACTORIES MAKING WAR SUPPLIES. Youth also is urged to make demonstrations at factories and around docks.

Pledge of Youth Against War

The "Young Fighter," published by the Trade Union Unity League, Communist, of which William Z. Foster is the head, prints the six-point pledge of the Youth Section, American League Against War and Fascism, item two therein reading—

"I pledge to work for the stoppage of all production and shipment of ammunition and war material."

In March a booklet of the Young Communist League was circulated containing this quote—

"Therefore we raised the slogan, 'turn the imperialist war into civil war,' which meant that when one of these wars for markets or colonies started and the bosses gave us guns and told us to go forward and kill other young workers, that we would take those guns, but instead of shooting down our fellow-workers across the trenches, WE WOULD, WHEN THE TIME WAS RIPE, USE THESE WEAPONS AGAINST THE CAPITALISTS."

Such things as these, per Moscow order, "concentrates forces on the vital part of the war machine."

Significantly, the Young People's Socialist League has refused a request to co-operate. They work for socialism through the ballot, not by the bullet.

Fighting Detachments Ordered Set Up

4. Another section of the Moscow thesis orders "setting up FIGHTING SELF-DEFENSE DETACHMENTS."

5. Attacks upon national defense are made by the Communists by organizing so-called "anti war congresses" into which many organizations or groups are drawn. Ostensibly against "war," these congresses are used for agitation against defense programs.

On January 29, a "Bay Region Congress Against War and Fascism" was held in Berkley, Cal. It was said to represent "all shades of opinion," and 147 organizations. Ministers and educators spoke. It is cited as typical of the so-called "united front" tactics by which Communist obtain non-Communist support on many issues. Here, as elsewhere, Communist-drafted resolutions were passed. The Western worker reported:

"Throughout the conference, the pacifist speakers were exposed in their true role as phrase-mongers. Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, of Mills College, who gushed . . . thoroughly disgusted even the pacifist delegates . . . the Rev. Lowther's speech was received very coldly.

"But when Rudie Lambert, speaking for the Workers' Ex-Servicemen's League, declared that as a Communist he was going into the Army in the next imperialist war AND URGE THE WORKERS TO TURN THEIR WEAPONS AGAINST THEIR CLASS ENEMIES, he received the greatest ovation of the entire evening."

Red Flag Praised By Foster

Before a congressional committee, William Z. Foster, the general secretary of the Communist Party of America and now head of its Trade Union Unity League, said:

"The revolutionary workers of this country and the workers of every country have only one flag and that is the red flag. And all capitalist flags are flags of the capitalist class and we owe them no allegiance."

Communism in America is an efficient, organized machine.

It acknowledges allegiance to Moscow, not to Washington.

It is working on a carefully plotted plan, dictated by Moscow, and aimed at vital points.

Its openly announced objective is Soviet power in America.

(This is the second of a series of articles on the startling progress of industrial Communism in the United States. The third will appear in an early issue of this newspaper, probably tomorrow.)

Horse Prices Up In Market Boom

DENVER, March 27.—Your horse, if you own a horse, is worth more than it was a year ago.

Stockyard officials here declared that horses shipped to Denver now are worth, on the average, $41 a head, whereas a year ago they were worth $31. They said shipments of horses are nearly twice as heavy as last year.

CCC BOYS WANT MORE LETTERS

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Once it was the lonely folks at home who longed for their boy's letters—but now the Civilian Conservation Corps youths are complaining they get too few messages from their families.

The Philadelphia County Relief Board today announced it has received word from Capt. Francis J. Moran, commandant of the CCC camp at Gettysburg, that more letters are needed from home folks. He said:

"In this, as in any phase of camp life, the incoming mail plays an important part in keeping the men from worry and in building up their spirit."

DRYS TO POLL CANDIDATES ON ECONOMY

Candidates for state offices must make known their position on governmental economies, according to today's article, one of a series being published in the Sun-Telegraph. The series is part of the Sun-Telegraph campaign to reduce taxes through elimination of waste and duplication in governmental services.

Every candidate for state office will be asked to make public, his or her views on the question of governmental economy, according to the state executive committee of the newly reorganized Drys.

Every candidate will be asked to answer the following questions:

"Would you advocate the decentralization of government? Do you favor consolidation of uneconomical units of local government, namely small townships, school boards, etc.? Do you favor the reorganization of the state government for the purpose of increasing efficiency and reducing duplication of effort?"

DRAFT QUESTIONNAIRE

The questions listed above are part of a questionnaire to be sent out to every candidate by the reorganized Drys, as part of their legislative program. Other questions will deal with the liquor legislation, the tax question, observance of Sunday laws and social legislation.

The Democratic state committee already has gone on record as favoring economy and efficiency in governmental operations; elimination of waste in the collection of state taxes; the modernization of local government in order to reduce taxation; abolition of excessive fees in the collection of taxes and modernization of the constitution to conform with the conditions of 1934 through a constitutional convention.

ACTIVITIES SPREAD

It was at a recent meeting in Harrisburg that the dry organization decided to broaden its activities and hereafter the program will not be confined to legislative efforts on liquor traffic.

Other questions which the candidates will be asked to answer will be:

Are you favorable to the principle of old age pensions?

Are you in favor of the principle of unemployment insurance?

Do you favor the uniform primary system?

Do you favor or are you opposed to a sales tax?

Do you favor or are you opposed to a state income tax?

Would you work for the reduction of the tax on gasoline?

Would you favor or oppose the use of motor moneys for any purpose other than for road building and maintenance?

The questionaire was drafted by S. S. Laucks, assistant district attorney of York County; John M. Light, of Lebanon, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Grange, and William H. Hays, secretary of the drys. They were selected by the state executive committee.

ROOSEVELT DUE TO VETO VET PAY BOOST

bers ought to have at least a day to consider the message."

RAINEY DOUBTS VETO

Rainey said he did "not believe" the House would override the President's veto but added "it depends on what is in the message."

Later, however, it was learned that Democratic House leaders were urged by the White House to force a vote today on the veto.

President Roosevelt was understood to have telephoned Speaker Rainey and asked him to change his plan.

Indications were the vote would be forced after the President's message was read to the House.

It also was planned to reintroduce the measure without the controversial veterans section.

The whole Independent Offices Bill, to which are attached amendments providing for the veterans' benefits and for restoration of federal pay cuts, is now dead unless Congress overrides the veto. In the bill are money supplies for various government departments.

The controversy surrounding it, however, has centered upon an amendment going approximately $83,000,000 beyond administration desires for veterans' benefits, and more millions for federal pay. Mr. Roosevelt's attitude on the proposal to return 10 per cent of a 15 per cent government salary cut was not immediately known.

House administration leaders, who suffered several setbacks in the veterans' pay stampede, were confident today that the veto would be sustained. It appeared improbable also that the two-thirds vote necessary to override would be mustered in the Senate.

FIRST MAJOR ISSUE

House leaders pondered on two methods of approach should the veto be sustained.

In this first real issue with the White House they were apparently friendly in attitude. These courses were open:

1—Revision of the independent offices bill to place in it less drastic departures from the economy act.

2—Enactment of a continuing resolution which would make the same appropriations available for the next fiscal year as prevailed during the past 12 months.

Because of the President's previous liebralization in the Veterans' Economy Act, it was generally expected that the former course would be pursued on a compromise basis.

The objections of the President to the less drastic veterans' amendments of the House, which finally passed Congress yesterday after the Senate made concesions on its higher figure, were based primarily on the grounds of budget extensions and the establishment of a privileged class.

FEDERAL PAY BOOST

On the federal pay issue, it was recalled that Mr. Roosevelt recommended restoring 5 per cent of this cut on July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. Congress, by compromise, finally voted restoration of 5 per cent as of February 1 and another 5 per cent on July 1.

There is strong reason to believe that this is acceptable at the Whiet House. However, a veto could not be made to apply to only part of a bill.

The big issue—perhaps the only one—was seen to rest on the veterans matter, and the President was known to be planning to speak in plain terms on it.

He talked it over last night with Lewis Douglas, Director of the Budget, and several other administration leaders.

NEW U. S. VOTE PLAN PUSHED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's approval of a proposed constitutional amendment changing the method of electing a president was placed today before the House Rules Committee.

Under the Lea-Norris resolution, a new constitutional amendment would be submitted to the states for the approval of three-fourths of them within seven years.

It would first abolish the electoral college. The 48 states would retain the number of electoral votes they now have.

However, instead of a candidate who got a majority vote in one state receiving the total electoral vote of that state, he would get the same proportion of electoral as popular votes.

The use of such a system, in the past, Representative Lea (Dem.), of California, told the committee, would have changed the result in at least three presidential elections.

Housing Supervisor Proposed as City Post

Lee Sellers, who has worked in the City Health Department at laborer's wages for the past two weeks, may get a $2,100 job if an ordinance now before Council passes.

Dr. Ray P. Moyer yesterday asked Council to create the position of supervisor of housing in the bureau of sanitation. Sellers has been working in that capacity.

Strike Halts Work On 6 Naval Vessels

CAMDEN, N. J., March 27.—(INS.)—Halting production on six naval vessels, approximately 3,000 workers on the New York Shipbuilding Company walked out on strike today.

The strike went into effect after last-minute efforts on the part of C. H. Winship, deputy administrator of the shipbuilding code, to avert the walkout had failed.

Vinson Navy Bill 'O. K.' Explained By Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's statement in signing the Vinson naval bill follows:

"Because there is some public misapprehension of fact in relation to the Vinson bill, it is only right that its main provisions should be made wholly clear.

"This is not a law for the construction of a single additional United States warship.

"The general purpose of the bill is solely a statement by the Congress that it approves the building of our Navy up to and not beyond the strength in various types of ships authorized, first, by the Washington Naval Limitation Treaty of 1922 and, secondly, by the London Naval Limitation Treaty of 1930.

"As has been done on several previous occasions in our history, the bill authorizes certain future construction over a period of years. But the bill appropriates no money for such construction and the word 'authorization' is, therefore, merely a statement of the policy of the present Congress. Whether it will be carried out depends on the action of future Congresses.

"It has been and will be the policy of the Administration to favor continued limitation of naval armaments. It is my personal hope that the naval conference to be held in 1935 will extend all existing limitations and agree to further reductions."

ROOSEVELT TO WORK ON TRIP

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt plans to mix a little work with pleasure on the vacation fishing trip upon which he departs tonight. It became apparent today that several bulging brief cases of official business will be hauled out before the trip to southern waters ends.

Several aides have been invited to hop aboard Vincent Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal, before it touches at Miami a little more than a week hence.

Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, stood first upon the list of those invited to call off the coast of Florida during the cruise. He probably will accept.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave here tonight by train for Jacksonville, Fla., where tomorrow morning he boards the yacht. The Nourmahal is equipped with a radio that will keep the President in touch with affairs. Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary, is establishing a news contact base at Miami.

Only old "cronies" will be aboard at the start.

PONTIFF LAUDS ROOSEVELT

VATICAN CITY, March 27.—(AP.)—Pope Pius highly praised President Roosevelt's work for the unemployed in a private audience granted Bishop Henry P. Rohlman, of Davenport, Ia., yesterday.

The Pontiff told Bishop Rohlman the President was engaging in a highly Christian effort in a highly Christian spirit and said he was pleased with a report of results of this work.

His Holiness said also that he was appreciative of Mr. Roosevelt's work in getting freedom of religion for Americans in Russia.

The Pope showed himself well acquainted with agricultural affairs, said Bishop Rohlman, as they discussed affairs of the bishop's diocese, set in the midst of an agricultural belt.

NAVY BUILDING BILL SIGNED BY ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Roosevelt today proposed further reductions in naval strength in the 1935 disarmament parley as he signed the bill authorizing construction of the American Navy up to existing treaty strength.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It has been and will be the policy of the administration to favor limitation of naval armaments.

"It is my personal hope that the naval conference to be held in 1935 will extend all existing limitations and agree to further reductions."

The construction measure contemplates expenditures estimated at $500,000,000 to $750,000,000 over a seven-year period for ships and airplanes.

The bill would permit construction of 65 destroyers, 32 submarines, four chasers and more than 1,100 airplanes.

However, a final decision for constructing most of the ships and planes would be left with the Budget Bureau. It must approve the actual expenditures.

Ship contracts would go alternately to government and private shipyards. Private bidders could not make more than 10 per cent profits on contracts or $10,000 or more.

Congress must appropriate funds before any of the construction authorized can be undertaken.

Mr. Roosevelt has not yet decided how much immediate building will be done.

TRACTION PACT END SOUGHT

City Council has been advised by representatives of the Allied Boards of Trade to refuse to approve extension of the Traction Conference agreement.

W. G. Negley declared the Pittsburgh Railways Company is insolvent and should be forced into receivership in order that there may be a reorganization on lower capital.

Councilman William A. Magee argued for a reasonable time to work out the traction problem and predicted an increased fare if the railways were forced into the hands of receivers.

Negley declared the railways company should pay its debts to the city before it paid anything to security owners.

Harry A. Barstow, of the Allied Boards, suggested closer control of the Duquesne Light Company's power contract with the railways company.

Kittanning Boys Swim Icy Waters

KITTANNING, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Donning bathing suits, John Kuntz and Wallace Heckert opened the "swimming season" in the Allegheny river yesterday after a cake-walk across sheets of ice.

The plunge was of short duration but the boys reported the water "wasn't bad."

3 Injured, Nab 7 In South Side Fray

A fight among seven Negroes at South Thirtieth street late yesterday resulted in injuries to Edna Robinson, 30, of 2915 Carson street; William Robinson, 35, and Mary Tolien, 37, of 2913 Carson street, who were arrested with four others, police said.

NEW AIR MAIL BIDS TO BE SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt intends to permit immediate bidding by private lines for air mail service and to turn air mail transportation over to them as soon as possible.

He called in officials of the Postoffice Department today to arrange for bids to serve during a temporary period before permanent legislation is enacted.

Methods of restoring the air mail service to private lines were withheld pending a conference called for later today.

Mr. Roosevelt arranged for this action on the eve of his departure from the Capital for a 10-day vacation in southern waters.

Meanwhile, opposition to the Sheppard bill to subsidize civil aviation training and equipment development was expressed before the Senate Commerce Committee by the War and Navy departments, while the Commerce Department countered with indorsement of its purpose.

The bill would authorize the appropriation of $1,500,000 annually to pay 25 per cent of the cost of instruction at private fields and a total of $1,000,000 to be expended in encouraging new aircraft design.

Aircraft produced would be of "practically no value" for national defense, the Navy Department said in a letter to the committee.

The War Department said at present the Army Air Corps could not obtain enough appropriation to satisfy its own requirements, and as long as this deficiency existed it saw no reason for spending money for secondary purposes.

Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce, and Col. J. Carroll Cone, assistant director, indorsed the aims of the bill without approving its specific provisions.

$20,000 Fund Sought For Needy Mothers

An appropriation of $20,000 to take care of needy maternity cases has been asked of Council.

In making the request the Welfare Department pointed out that $50,000 set aside last July for mothers without means of support has been exhausted.

It was suggested the money be taken from Public Welfare Relief bonds.

Overhill Street Man Held in Old Theft

Morris Markowitz, 29, of 12 Overhill street, was under arrest today in connection with the robbing of an apartment in Winebiddle avenue last September. City Detective Walter Monahan said he apprehended Markowitz last night and that he was carrying a revolver.

Monahan said two diamond rings valued at $2,100 and money were taken from Miss Sonia Lepak and two women friends in the Winebiddle street robbery.

In choosing a hat...or a cigarette...
Let your taste decide!

Costume, courtesy Jay-Thorpe, Inc.

MANY a woman smokes the cigarette her husband or her friends prefer. But maybe it wouldn't be her choice at all, if she let her taste decide.

May we suggest that you put aside your usual brand for a few days and try OLD GOLDS? Notice the appealing natural flavor of this pure-tobacco cigarette; its honey-smoothness.

Many women discover, in OLD GOLD, their favorite cigarette. Give your taste a fair chance to decide.

No better tobacco grows than is used in OLD GOLDS. And they are PURE. (No artificial flavoring)

RENEW SEAWAY PACT FIGHT

International News Service.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Plans are being completed by directors of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association to renew at once the campaign for ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterway treaty.

The directors' meeting here expressed belief that President Roosevelt would resubmit the same treaty to Congress next January. It was the consennsus that the Senate would ratify the treaty at that time, although the pact was defeated recently by a vote of 46 to 42.

Declared Charles P. Craig, executive committee secretary:

"President Roosevelt is behind us in this fight. There will be no new draft offered. It will be the same old one."

Craig said he was certain the President would resubmit the treaty.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The season of benefits will be in full swing after Easter. Nearly every day brings news of another entertainment being planned to raise funds for some worthy institution.

Briarcliff Alumnae Association is arranging a most attractive benefit—its annual bridge-luncheon. The affair will be held in the Longue Vue Country Club Wednesday, May 16. And it's a benefit for the Children's Home Society of Pennsylvania, located in Aiken avenue. And this home, by the way, is one of the most needy and deserving philanthropies, I think, in Pittsburgh.

Everything is done in the home to create a home-like atmosphere for the little girls and boys until they are adopted into good homes.

Mrs. C. Bedell Monro will be general chairman of the bridge-luncheon benefit, which may be held on the colorful terraces of the clubhouse if the weather is kind.

Sewickley Child Health Benefit Set for May 29

Another May-time benefit will be that of the Sewickley Child Health Association, to be held May 29, probably in the Edgeworth Club. And this benefit is an annual affair, too—sometimes it's a circus, sometimes a dance. This benefit is given for children also—the association supports a social worker in the Sewickley Valley schools and provides hot lunches for the children.

Virginia Jones will be chairman of the benefit.

Gladys Over to Spend Vacation in Tropics

There's some more news today about some of the members of the school set.

Gladys Over, daughter of Mrs. Arthur L. Over, of Amberson place, a student at Pine Manor, will spend her Easter vacation in Nassau and Bermuda instead of coming home this year. Her mother plans to join her in New York, from where they'll sail.

Pretty blonde Margaret Jane Meanor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Craig Meanor, of Edgeworth, Sewickley, is at home for her Easter holidays. Post-Deb Margaret is a student at the Erskine School for girls in Boston. Before she enrolled at Erskine, Margaret studied at Mount Vernon Seminary, Washington.

Pittsburgh Girls to Be Easter Guests at Culver

Betty Thorp, of the Royal Yorke Apartments, and a student at Winchester, and Betty Abbott, of Walnut street, a student at Thurston, will leave Friday to attend the Easter festivities of the Culver Military Academy as the guests of Lieut. Sam D. Foster, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Lloyd Beall, of Ambridge.

The W. L. Monros will sail today on the Monarch-of Bermuda, for Bermuda, which is more popular than ever this Easter-time with Pittsburghers

There'll be a wedding in Pinehurst, N. C., next month at which the bridegroom will be a Pittsburgher, Frank D. Thomson, son of the G. Napier Thomsons, of College avenue. He'll marry Ann Brown Oler, of Larchmont, N. Y., in Pinehurst, April 21. In honor of the bride and bridegroom-to-be, the Lawrence Barrs, of Pittsburgh and Pinehurst, gave a dinner recently in Sylva Nidus, their Pinehurst home.

20th Century Club Hears Dr. Myers

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Democracy will win out in the end; European dictatorships are only temporary setbacks. While democracy has lost many battles, it has never lost a decisive one. So Dr. William Starr Myers closed his lecture before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning.

As the background to his discussion of conditions in this country, Dr. Myers sketched the situation in Great Britan, remarking that Great Britain is probably progressing faster out of the depression than any other country. This he said is due to trade agreements which she has made, reduction of taxes and cutting out the dole—old-fashioned economic principles such as the speaker advocated for this country.

The trade empire of Great Britain is organized, functioning and stabilized in a sense that the political empire never has been, he said. She is paying for some mistakes, such as issuing long-term debts on short-term payments, but she should thank heaven that she did not inflate—that's the sort of thing that makes Great Britain great, Dr. Myers declared. Incidentally he observed that few people realize the ability of King George and the fact that nobody hears much of him is proof of his influence.

Great Britain's going off the gold standard set the world back a year and the United States' going off set it back another year, he said. He stated that tremendous credit should go to the British electorate for voting against the "hand-me-out-dole."

A people cannot be legislated into prosperity; the government can help, but it is chiefly the business men who must bring it back. Had Great Britain instituted a protective tariff earlier she would have come out of the depression sooner.

Dr. Myers referred to Hitler as "the grotesque, opera-bouffe comedian, the diminuendo German Falstaff." Dr. Myers contends that it was underdistribution and not overproduction that caused the depression, that it was an after-the-war matter and as inevitable as sunset after sunrise.

He spoke of President Roosevelt's financial policies and the "ghastly agricultural bill" as Roosevelt's two mistakes, reiterating what he had said concerning them at the time of his last visit to the club. The executive should have the right to levy duties, but with some appeal to judicial authority, Dr. Myers believes. Nevertheless he thinks President Roosevelt is "on the right track" in seeking foreign trade, for this is needed as an outlet for the productive forces of the country. He also discussed the NRA, saying it had some fine sides to it, but that the child labor amendment was "the most ghastly attempt to do the right thing in the wrong way."

Women Voters to Hear Talk by Mrs. Arnold

The Twenty-fifth Ward League of Women Voters will meet in the Y. M. C. A. North avenue, tonight. The speaker, Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman of the Women in Industry committee for the Allegheny County League will discuss "Old Age Pensions vs. Poor House Maintenances."

WILL HONOR MISS HENEKER

Miss Dorothy Heneker, of Geneva, Switzerland, executive secretary of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, arrives in New York on Thursday and will come directly to Pennsylvania, where she is to address six clubs, among them the New Castle and the Wilkinsburg clubs.

Wilkinsburg has arranged a colorful setting for its dinner in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel on April 10. The New Castle meeting will be held on the ninth. There Miss Heneker will be the guest of Dr. Mildred Rogers, former state president and now state international relations chairman.

Milk and Ice Unit Will Mark 35th Anniversary

The Pittsburgh and Allegheny Milk and Ice Association, one of the oldest charities in the city, and now a member of the Welfare Fund, is to celebrate its thirty-fifth anniversary next Monday in the German Evangelical Church, Smithfield street.

The association was founded in 1899 for the purpose of furnishing pure milk to the needy babies of this community and to teach mothers how to care for their little ones. Many thousands of babies owe their lives to the instructions received by their mothers in the bi-weekly clinics conducted by Amelia A. Dranga, the founder, who was medical director until her death last year.

The board selected Dr. Florence L. Marcus to succeed her. Coincidental with the association's celebration, Mrs. Enoch Rauh is celebrating her thirtieth year as its president.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Reuben Abbiss, the Woman's Club of Braddock will hear papers tomorrow on the best short story, poem, play and biography of 1933. Mrs. John Shirer, Mrs. W. D. Young, Mrs. F. H. N. Gerwig and Mrs. J. W. Funk giving the program.

Favorite writers will be named at roll call. The meeting is to be as usual, in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, with W. S. Davis and Mrs. Thomas Haynes as hostesses.

Recent Pittsburgh arrivals at the Princess Martha Hotel, St. Petersburg, Fla., were Mrs. E. R. Reno, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Ecker, Mrs. Honora L. Milliken, E. H. Reismeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Kredel and Mrs. James M. Straub.

College Club Holds Last Of Open House Evenings

March's program at the College Club will be concluded this week with several interesting events. The regular Monday night open house ended for the season with last night's party. This activity headed by Mrs. H. Lee Briney has contributed a large share of the social life of the club this year.

The general readers are meeting this afternoon, with Mrs. Paul F. Shupp reviewing Sinclair Lewis' "Work of Art." Tea follows the program.

The membership luncheon preceding the general readers' meeting will discuss "The House of Decision," by Oswald Spengler, led by Mrs. Albert P. Shrader. Mrs. Roy S. Dougall is hostess.

There will be no meeting on Good Friday. Mrs. Walter Lissfelt, chairman of the program committee, has announced that Miss Mary B. Breed, former director of Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, will be the speaker at the meeting on April 6.

Charles A. Carpenter will address the club on April 13, his subject being "President Roosevelt's First Year." Then on April 20 Mrs. Roger Andrews and Miss Selma Brandt will give a Russian program, Mrs. Andrews speaking on "Russian Impressions" and Miss Brandt giving piano solos. Dr. Ralph E. Cleland, head of the biology department, Goucher College, will appear before the club on April 27.

* * *

Federated clubs have been invited to attend an all-day conference in Harrisburg on Wednesday, April 4, from 10 to 4 o'clock, sponsored by the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. Problems in state government, welfare, education and citizenship and in the home will be presented by speakers and an open forum will follow each talk. Five of the state department's will be represented on the program.

Miss Charlotte E. Carr, secretary of the Department of Labor and Industry; Dr. Mary Riggs Noble, chief of the pre-school division of the Department of Health; Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, Secretary of the Department of Welfare; Dr. James N. Rule, Secretary of the Department of Public Instruction, and Mrs. Estelle Ford Warner, surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., will be among the speakers. Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, federation chairman of legislation, will sum up the meeting.

Dr. O. E. Jennings, head of the botany department, University of Pittsburgh, told the Homewood Women's Club where wild flowers may be found in Allegheny County when he spoke to the club yesterday in Homewood Carnegie Library. Dr. Jennings showed slides illustrative of his subject. Mrs. W. R. Bishop, accompanied by Mrs. Nancy McMunn, sang added vocal solos to the afternoon's program.

Affiliated Clubs' Heads Congress Tea Guests

Presidents of affiliated clubs were entertained yesterday at the annual tea given by the Congress of Clubs. The affair was, as usual, informal, a program being its chief feature. This was given by Jane Schlotterer Cooper, piano; the Orpheus Trio, composed of Caroline Bracey Anderson, Violetta Dice and Mary E. Ohl, with Mrs. P. C. McBeth accompanying, and Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, who read some lovely spring poems.

Miss Nancy G. Walters Feted With Recipe Party

If in doubt about the kind of party to give for a prospective bride, hesitate no longer, give a recipe party. It is exactly what it sounds like. The hostess provides an attractive, small filing cabinet and the guests bring the recipes on filing cards. Miss Nancy Galey Walters was honor guest at a recipe and bridge party given by Miss Elizabeth Cannon, of Sewickley, in her home recently.

Miss Walters, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Walters, of Beaver road, Sewickley, will marry Kenneth Eugene Johns, of Sewickley, on Saturday in the Sewickley Methodist Episcopal Church.

Miss Marion Lindberg also entertained for Miss Walters, as did Miss Doris Mather, of Shields, who was hostess at a bridge party; Mrs. Fletcher White, of Beaver road, gave a tea in her home for the bride-elect.

Miss Walters and her fiance plan to be at home in Beaver road after their honeymoon.

Miss Mather, of Shields, who was hostess at a bridge party; Mrs. Fletcher White, of Beaver road, gave a tea in her home for the bride-elect.

PUPILS ENTER RUSHMORE CONTEST

The spirit of youth—thousands of school pupils throughout Greater Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania—entered the nation-wide patriotic competition as the latest recruits today in the ever-swelling ranks that seek to write America's epic for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

Active participation within the city, county and independent district public schools and the Pittsburgh diocese parish schools throughout the district was started today. Every detail in the various divisions was completed.

All pupils, with the exception of those in the McKees Rocks and Swissvale schools, will submit their texts through the principals of the individual schools.

FOLLOW EDUCATORS

The school superintendents followed the lead of educators over the nation. They joined their schools in active participation to assist the pupils in submitting their 600-word history of the country's progress as based upon the nine points outlined by the National Memorial Commission.

The schools have divided their participation under two plans. Entries submitted to principals in the Pittsburgh public schools, the 66 Allegheny County schools, and Munhall, Duquesne and Wilkinsburg independent district schools will be forwarded from each school direct to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee upon the closing date of May 12. City school principals will send their entries through the superintendent's office.

The second plan, whereby the school authorities will judge entries submitted to their principals and, in turn, submit the best selections to the Pittsburgh committee, includes the following schools:

Pittsburgh Diocese parish schools.
Mt. Lebanon.
Dormont.
Carnegie.
Bellevue.
Crafton.
Rankin.
East Pittsburgh.
Clairton.
Tarentum.
New Kensington.
Braddock.
North Braddock.
Homestead.
McKeesport.

Supt. Ben G. Graham of Pittsburgh public schools, today issued a general order to all school principals, advising of the participation. Dr. Charles E. Dickey, county schools superintendent, likewise mailed instructions to all principals. The Rev. Paul E. Campbell, parish schools superintendent, informed the 225 principals of diocese schools in the city and Western Pennsylvania of the part they will take in aiding the historical project.

Planning to lend fullest cooperation to the competition in which President Roosevelt is chairman of the national committee that will select the final inscription to be carved on the South Dakota mountainside, superintendents of 14 independent districts will not alone personally direct the participation, but will arrange for the principals and teachers to judge the entries.

These schools and superintendents are: Bellevue, J. Nelson Mowls; Mt. Lebanon, C. Herman Grofe; Dormont, Ralph Radcliffe, Carnegie, Norman L. Glasser; Rankin, Frank J. Good, East Pittsburgh, C. F. Young; Crafton, E. O. Liggitt; Clairton, H. D. Teal; McKeesport, Dr. J. B. Richey; Tarentum, A. D. Emdsley; North Braddock, F. D. Zuerner; Homestead, Port Eckles; Braddock, T. G. McCreary, and New Kensington, E. T. Chapman.

Supt. C. R. Stone, of Munhall; C. H. Wolford, Duquesne, and W. C. Graham, Wilkinsburg, will supervise the handling of entries by their principals and the submitting of texts to the Pittsburgh committee.

TEACHERS INVITED

Teachers in all schools likewise were invited to enter their own 600-word epics. They will submit their own entries direct to the Pittsburgh committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph, which is conducting the competition with associated Hearst newspapers.

The division of competing groups in the final judging provides equal opportunity to adults, college students, high school and grade pupils. Each group competes in a divison of its own.

Everywhere indorsements continue to be announced. The Pittsburgh Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations has formally lauded the competition through its executive committee. Schools in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia continue to arrange for active participation. The latest participation comes from the Mount Pleasant Township public schools. J. H. Myers, of the Hurst High School, has been named by Principal William D. Mullin to direct their activities.

Rules Laid Down For Students in Text Contest

Rules for student participation in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial competition follow:

1—All students in the public, private and Pittsburgh Diocese parish schools, day and evening, in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, are to submit their texts to the principals of the respective schools. The principals of Pittsburgh public schools, Allegheny County public schools, and the Munhall, Duquesne and Wilkinsburg schools will submit all entries to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.

Principals in Pittsburgh Diocese, Carnegie, Rankin, East Pittsburgh, Crafton, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Clairton, Tarentum, New Kensington, Braddock, North Braddock, Homestead, McKeesport and Bellevue schools will submit the best text of each school to the Pittsburgh Memorial Commtttee.

2—All students in universities and colleges in the same area are to submit their text to the faculty member designated by the school's president.

3—In the event there is no committee in charge of the competition at the school or college of any entrant, such entrant may mail his text to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee. These entrants must certify the class in which they are competing and the school from which they are entering.

4—All entries must be received by the schools or colleges of the entrants not later than 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, May 12, 1934. The same date closes entries to students submitting direct to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee.

5—All school and college committees must compete the judging of entries in their respective schools and send the best entry from each school to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee not later than 12 o'clock noon, Memorial Day, May 30, 1934.

6—Every entrant in this competition agrees, as a condition of his entry, to accept the judgment of any school or local or intermediate board of judges, as well as the national committee, as final and without recourse.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE EPOCHAL

Signing Gave Birth To United States As Nation

[EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles by Mr. Woodhouse on the nine episodes in American history that are to be recounted in the Mt. Rushmore Memorial.]

By HENRY WOODHOUSE

The Declaration of Independence marks the epochal event that gave birth to the United States as a nation.

Being the Magna Charta of American rights and American liberty the Declaration of Independence stands at the head of the nine episodes to be comprised in the 600 words inscription to be carved in the granite of Mount Rushmore, from the best text obtained as a result of the nation-wide patriotic contest organized by the Hearst newspapers.

The immortal document, still preserved in the Library of Congress, epitomizes the words and deeds of the founders of the United States.

The records show that for 15 years prior to the adoption of the Declaration of Independence the American colonies had endeavored to prevent the British ruler and his advisers from reducing the Americans to a state of economic and political slavery.

WASHINGTON NAMED

When all efforts failed, the colonies appointed representatives to the Continental Congress which met at Carpenter's Hall, in Philadelphia and, on June 15 and 16, 1775, appointed George Washington commander-in-chief of the American forces to undertake the defense of the American colonies.

A year later on June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee moved the Congress to declare

"That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

The Congress appointed a committee to draft the Declaration of Independence. The members of that committee were Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and R. R. Livingston.

Thomas Jefferson was selected to draft the declaration. After some revisions proposed by Benjamin Franklin and others, the declaration was adopted and a final, engrossed copy was ordered made, for signature which is the July Fourth document.

John Adams wrote to Mrs. Adams on July 2, 1776:

"The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epocha in the history of America."

Thomas Jefferson wrote to William Fleming on July 1, 1776:

"If any doubt has arisen as to me, my country will have my political creed in the form of a 'Declaration' which I was lately directed to draw. This will give decisive proof that my own sentiment concurred with the vote they instructed us to give. Had the post been to go a day later we might have been at liberty to communicate this whole matter."

Later Jefferson characterized the Declaration of Independence as—

"The Genuine Effusion of the Soul of Our Country at That Time," and as—"This Holy Bond Of Our Union."

IN THREE PARTS

The Declaration of Independence consists of three parts: (1) The preamble, which defines the basic principles and rights upon which the United States has been founded as a nation; (2) The list of grievances which compelled the American colonies to act; (3) The Declaration of Independence.

The last, the charter that created the United States as a nation, follows:

"We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do.

"And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

IN FEW WORDS

In less than 160 words the 55 signers of the Declaration of Independence declared (1) That the people of American colonies were acting in unison, through a representative congress; (2) That they were free and independent states; (3) That as such they were a nation vested with sovereign rights; and (4) That they were determined to support that declaration with their lives, fortunes and sacred honor.

From that time on, until the year 1783, the American forces, commanded by the illustrious Gen. George Washington, fought and remained on the field to compel the recognition of American independence.

The goal was reached in 1783, when the British recognized American independence, and in November of that year the British troops evacuated New York.

Historians and statesmen have pronounced the Declaration of Independence a greater declaration of human rights than the Magna Charta. The English historian Charles Knight states in his History of England:

"Thus on the Fourth of July, was completed what has been not unjustly termed the most memorable public document which history records."

4 Purses Flattened By Cock Fight Raid

Justice of the Peace William Bew, Sr., of Brackenridge, last night fined Harry Negley, of Harrison Township, $15 and costs as the sequel to a raid on a cock fight. Three others who failed to appear at the hearing forfeited $25 each.

Squire Bew ordered two sets of steel spurs and two live roosters seized in the raid turned over to the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society. One rooster was found dead when the raid was made Sunday, according to officers.

Committee to Visit 'Political Prisoners'

A delegation to visit three prisoners in the Allegheny County Workhouse is being organized by local representatives of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, it was announced today.

Those to be visited, according to the information, are Edward Sherwood, 22, coal mine organizer, serving three to six years; Daniel Banning, arrested during the Ambridge riots, and serving a two-year sentence, and Sam Jessop, 50, a coal miner and member of the Unemployed Council, serving a one-year sentence.

Gray Hair
Best Remedy is Made At Home
You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.
Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Bandit Bess Taken to Task By Earnest Worker's Note

BANDIT BESS, someone complains against you!

You have no right not to be appreciative of a good job in these kind of times, and you should be ashamed of yourself to talk against as good a boss as you have. Imagine being invited to his home to partake of chicken, when there are breadlines. And then, your being ungrateful!

Let the WICKED LURE of the HATEFUL WORLD OF SIN alone, that is the advice of a fellow reader.

If you recall, BANDIT BESS wrote to me a week or so ago. She was not at all resigned to the age in which we live. She longed for the Salomes and the Jezebels. Nothing was UNUSUAL enought for her. And being a first rate stenographer, and having a kindly employer, these were as dead sea fruit for a girl like her.

And now EARNEST WORKER answers:

Dear Miss Brunot:

I think you were entirely too sympathetic with BANDIT BESS. You should have tossed a ball at her and hit her straight between the eyes, I say.

Where is her common sense? There are too many girls out of jobs these days, and wondering where the next pair of shoes will come from, for her to be riding rough shod over a good, honest but circumspect boss.

Jezebel was a wicked woman. So was Salome. They both got what was coming to them. And I am glad.

JEZEBEL'S FATE

I am quite of the opinion that John the Baptist was too saintly a man to have his head taken in before a king on a plate. And if I recall my Bible rightly, Jezebel was eaten by dogs by the wall of Jezreel. And I'm not sorry.

Would BANDIT BESS like that?

I think the girl of today should be right glad that people at least do the right thing, even if they are often forced to do so by law. Of course we can't all think in our hearts, good, all the time. But we should keep such thoughts to ourselves.

And I'm no hypocrite, either. I have a position and have kept it during the entire depression, and I feel grateful toward my boss. And he's nothing to boast about, either, so far as his being a Wild West he-man. But he's there with the goods, and true-blue, and I thank God for him.

Also I like the people in my neighborhood. They're plain sometimes. The men aren't fancy dressers. The women mostly do their own work. But they are ready and willing in this life of ours, and aren't looking for the impossible, like Bandit Bess's kind. Real people with their feet on the earth, they are the ones that make the world go around. And I am glad I am one of them.

I am 23, and a high school graduate. And although I have a number of boy friends, have not settled to anyone yet.

EARNEST WORKER.

SEE ROMANCE DIFFERENTLY

I sincerely hope Bandit Bess isn't off somewhere on her high horse, and that she sees your letter. Not that you will change her mind. But at least she is likely to get a kick out of your opposition. She would be that kind!

We often see romance in a different way. That is one reason life is interesting. Arguments in all pleasantness are delightful entertainment. Personally, I don't imagine BANDIT BESS would do half the things she condones. Any more than you would do them, EARNEST WORKER. It's just a way some girls have of thinking. And youth is short at best. And it is sort of nice to think back and recall a rebellion within us, even if it never was sated.

I quite agree with you that having had a job and a good employer all through the lean years has been a very fine happening, one to be grateful for. Ingratitude is a deadly sin, we are told. And yet again Rudyard Kipling tells us: "He rideth the fastest, who rideth alone."

What do some more of my readers think of BANDIT BESS and her thinking Jezebel an interesting woman? In her liking of the way Salome got in the headlines?

And of her dislike for the Sunday afternoons watching her EMPLOYER play TRAIN with his children?

Are the HOMELY EVERYDAY THINGS OF LIFE IRKSOME to you? Or do you do them with a will, as EARNEST WORKER does?

Fay King Finds Her Correspondence Distinctly Artistic

By FAY KING

Quite a few letters find their way to all newspaper writers. Once all were alike outwardly, but lately we find them quite distinctive.

There seems to be much personal taste expressed in stamp selections now. With stationery in such attractive tints, correspondents seem to have gone in for exterior decoration in a big way.

Pale green envelopes arrive enhanced by three green one-cent stamps. The purple three-cent stamps are attached to pale gray and lavender envelopes.

We discover two one-and-one-half-cent brown stamps to match cream yellow and light tan paper.

Really it inspired me to shop more carefully for my own postage stamps!

THE NEW SPRING HATS MAY NEED NEW COIFFURES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ONE BIT OF advice that the monstrous number of spring style shows has brought out is this: Get yourself a good hairdresser and stick to him! All the lovely girls—any age, professional or society buds—who have walked over the velvet carpets of a hundred salons lately, showing off beautiful clothes and hats, have every hair in place. Really in place; 20 changes of costume in 40 minutes does not mar or wreck their coiffures.

* * *

THE CURL THAT has sculptural quality still holds the center of the scene. Bangs there may be, and many times they are very becoming, but unless they are worn by one of the rare and fortunate girls who find perfectly straight, burnished locks their best halo, tight little sausage curls laid softly and artfully over the head back up the bangs. Not a Hepburn disarray was to be seen at the shows, except on Amelia Earhart, who cut her hair somewhat that way before we knew that Hepburn had coiffure ideas.

* * *

ALTHOUGH THERE are many hat styles which are equally fashionedable just now, the average woman is not likely to have one of each. She will gravitate naturally to the models which conform most nearly to the line she has always found most becoming and reassuring. She will, for instance, be all for a hat that is down on one side, or up in the back, or large, or small, or off-the-face. So for most of us one new coiffure that looks swell with the hats of our own persuasion will suffice as an experiment. You know how a little training makes the hair assume a new effect quickly and easily.

Aristocratic, this hair arrangement, suitable for the woman who is sophisticated enough to make the most of her age, and not the best of it. The soft forehead waves are gracious; the rolls behind the ear and over the neck will flatter a line that is too heavy or a wee bit thin.

Coquettish, kittenish, this slightly ante-bellum coiffure with its diadem of tiny ringlets.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Good for all day, and every day, for the long roll above the ear and the mass of curls behind will decorate any hat.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

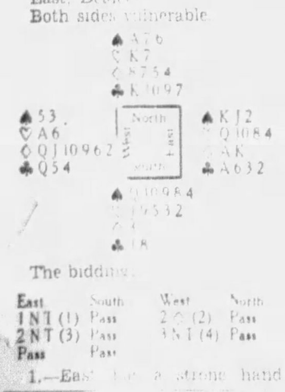
An Entry-Removing Play

There is probably no game which has so loose and incorrect a terminology as Bridge. One reason for this incorrect use of the technical terms peculiar to the game is that so many of them have been stolen outright from Contract's great ancestor, Whist, and that modern writers on Bridge have been prone to accept the words used by Whist writers to describe positions which appear to be similar, but which, because of the basic differences in the game, actually are not the same at all.

Take as an example the Deschapelles Coup, a play named in the days of Whist for the great French Whist player, Guillaume le Breton Deschapelles and used by thousands of Whist players since his day; the play is a sacrifice of a high honor in the hand of one player in order to create an entry in the hand of partner—in other words, an entry-making play. An understanding of this play was essential in Whist and is equally so in Auction and Contract.

There is, however, another play, equally fine, which many writers have incorrectly described as a Deschapelles Coup. This play is the direct opposite of the Deschapelles Coup, and has for its purpose the removal of a card of entry from a hand, usually the Dummy, to prevent the bringing in of a long suit. The entire point of the hand below rests upon North's understanding of this play and his practical application of the principle to the situation which confronted him, after he had won the first lead made by his partner.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 N T (1)	Pass	2 ♡ (2)	Pass
2 N T (3)	Pass	3 N T (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1.—East has a strong hand with no biddable suit. The Opening notrump bid is as good as any other.

2—The correct response.

3—East has a Rebid and hopes to find some means of entering the West hand to cash diamond tricks.

4—West has a six-card suit with two possible cards of entry. The bid is almost compulsory.

Against the game contract in notrump South opened the spade 10. This trick North won with the Ace, but before blindly and unthinkingly returning his partner's lead, he carefully studied Dummy. The Declarer by his bid was marked with strength in spades, probably the King-Knave in view of South's lead. East also must have either the Ace or King of diamonds or both. There were but three cards of the suit outstanding. If East held them all, the contract of three notrump could not be beaten regardless of North's return. If, however, East held the Ace-King alone, the diamond suit could not be brought in if the heart Ace, the only entry card, were removed before East had a chance to play them. Taking all this into consideration, North correctly sacrificed his heart King by returning it at the second trick. This play removed Dummy's sole entry, and limited East to two tricks instead of six in the diamond suit.

While this was not a Deschapelles Coup, it was a very effective entry-removing play and completely wrecked the Declarer's hand, preventing him from fulfilling his three-no-trump contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Insists That Her Father Read Message

My father looked at me with alert attention as I asked to look again at the japanned box left by my mother, in which he had just found the sapphire ring, which he was interpreting as a message of forgiveness from her. Characteristically, he did not even glance at the box as he handed it to me, but his burning eyes and the sudden, deep etching of lines in his face showed me that he was reading the intuition I had concerning the box.

I looked the cavity over carefully, finding nothing the first time, but on second inspection I found, fastened to the lining, a tiny flat bag, fashioned of the same silk that formed the lining of box and cavity. It was so skillfully attached to the lining that no cursory inspection would have discovered it. But I knew, somehow, that my mother had visualized this very picture, and that she had counted upon me, her daughter, to find this thing that she had hidden so carefully.

I ran my fingers over the tiny bag and heard the unmistakable faint rustle of paper. With tingling nerves I looked up at my father.

"Let me have your penknife!" I said, trying to speak calmly, but aware that my voice was tremoling.

FINDS SECRET NOTE

Without a word he handed me his penknife, but I felt as if I could hear his heart beat as I carefully severed the stitches that held the tiny bag to the lining, then slit open the bag itself. From it I drew an envelope of the thinnest possible texture, crammed with paper closely written, the characters showing through the envelope.

I did not mean even to look at the inscription on the envelope, but the characters, in my mother's neat handwriting, fairly leaped out at me, as with shaking hand I held the envelope out to my father.

"For Charlie, if he ever finds this," it read.

"Charlie!"

The diminutive name, as applied to my father, startled me almost into an exclamation. Always I have thought of my father as Charles Spencer. Indeed, I never have heard him addressed except as "Mr. Spencer," or as "Chief"—the affectionate yet deferential salutation given him by the men and women working under him, when he was a high official in the diplomatic secret service of our country. Retired now from active work, except for an occasional emergency recall, the name still clings, and is used by his aides, chief of whom are Lillian and Harry Underwood.

My recollections of my mother, also, are of a woman sweet, angelic, but possessing a dignity which seemed to forbid her either using a diminutive or pet name, or being addressed by one. She always had called me Margaret, although in tender moments she used to put her arms around me and whisper, "Mother's only comfort."

The superscription on this envelope, however, revealed a side to my mother's nature that I had never known. In those old dead days which had ended in tragedy, there patently had been laughter and lightness — the playfulness of happily married lovers.

"Charlie!"

TEARS DIM EYES

It was not my voice that spoke the name, but my father's, and in his tones there was a delighted wonder that brought quick tears to my eyes.

"I did not hear that name for months before I—went away," he said, and I visioned something of the coldness, the suspicion, the bitterness of those last months of his life with my mother, factors which I suspected had much to do with the final tragedy of his leaving her.

"Will you do something for me, father?" I asked, and he looked up at me quickly.

"Anything! You know that, my darling," he answered.

"Take your letter into the living room and read it, all by yourself. I am sure that mother never intended any other eyes, not even mine, to see it."

He hesitated only the fraction of a second, then rose, the letter and ring clutched in his hand.

"I can trust your divine instinct, my darling," he said gratefully. "Knowing her, I believe she did intend this for my eyes alone."

He went into the living room, and I saw him adjusting the light and settling himself in a chair under it. I turned my head away so that not even my eyes should watch him while he read, and for a long time there was only the rustle of paper to be heard.

He must have read the letter two or three times, but finally I heard his footsteps coming back to me, and I wondered what effect this message from the dead would have upon him.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Measles Not a Harmless Disease

There is a popular and unfounded belief that measles is a necessary and harmless disease.

Dr. Copeland

Because of this there is apt to be a carelessness which may prove serious. Neglect may lead to pneumonia or some other serious complication.

It is unfortunate that so many mothers take it for granted the disease must be expected. I have known of many children who have been deliberately exposed to the disease. I cannot speak too strongly about the dangers of such a practice.

The disease may be exceedingly mild in one child and when contracted by another member of the same family it proves to be exceedingly serious. It is particularly dangerous when it afflicts infants or other children under five years of age. The disease itself is easily controlled; the menace lies in the many serious complications that follow it.

Since it is highly contagious and quickly spreads from one child to another, it is imperative that it be recognized in its early stages. As a rule, the child first complains of a slight cough and other symptoms resembling a common cold. The sore eyes and running nose, make it probable the trouble is really measles.

About the fifth day of illness, the characteristic skin rash of measles appears upon the skin. It is first seen behind the ears and about the neck, but rapidly spreads over the face and remainder of the body.

The child should be kept in bed and not allowed to play with other children. Protect the eyes from sunlight and glaring lights. A good plan is to bathe the eyes frequently with lukewarm boric acid solution.

The disease is contagious until after the rash has disappeared. This lasts about five days and is followed by "desquamation" or peeling of the skin. The disease is also spread by sputum and discharges from the nose. For this reason, children with measles should be provided with plenty of soft paper handkerchiefs which can be burned after being used.

This is the time of the year when measles is unusually prevalent.

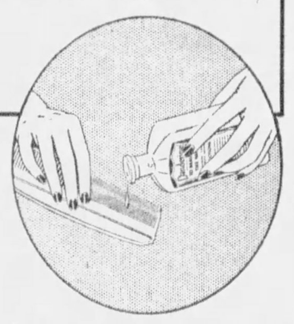
TWO SECONDS every morning
(the cost...a penny or less)
to be SURE of your Hair



DANDERINE makes you sure of your hair; takes two seconds to put on your comb

Less than a minute—less than a penny to be sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to have a scalp free, at last, from dandruff.

That is what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And what no amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night when you comb it, makes an amazing difference in the way any hair looks all the time!

When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going helter-skelter. When you pay a dollar for a wave, Danderine will help you keep it.

It isn't a sticky dressing, or an oily tonic, and it doesn't leave a telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance vanishes shortly after applying—but not that marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness!

With all the care a woman gives her hair, it's a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It's no trouble. Yet you can hardly believe anything so mild and pleasant as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of your hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy a bottle of Danderine at any drug store for thirty-five cents; larger sizes, 60c and $1.00.

Correct Manners

Serve in Afternoon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please enlighten me as to what is proper to serve between three and five or five-thirty in the afternoon? I am to have 14 women to my apartment. They form the executive board of an organization to which I belong. I thought of serving cocktails with caviar on crackers. What sort of glasses do I use for cocktails? Please let me know just what is correct. W.

If these guests are to come about three, they will probably discuss first the details of the executive board until, say, four o'clock, and then it would be the charming and gracious thing to serve tea. You can have everything arranged beforehand so that there will be very little for you to do when it comes time to serve tea. Your food-accessories for tea can be of the simplest type—some small, delicious sandwiches, and small cakes.

After this, if you wish, you may plan to serve cocktails and the caviar canapes. People like very much this service of first-tea-and-then-cocktails, and it is very much done these days. Appropriateness is naturally the key to such service, and it wouldn't be appropriate to serve cocktails at this early hour . . . "cocktails, just cocktails!"

Telephone Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly write and tell me the correct way to answer the telephone in your home if you are unable to keep a maid? Z.

Just the gracious "hello" is the accepted way of a person's answering the telephone in her or his own home. To say, "This is Mrs. Allen speaking" or "This is Mrs. Allen's residence," seems a bit highfalutin when the woman herself is answering the telephone. And one of my pet abominations is the person who crisply queries, "Yes?" as she answers the telephone.

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Peering through our spyglass we behold Easter looming nearer and nearer. Flocks of people dashing downtown in search of their Easter fripperies . . . bobbing into beauty shops in a quest of Easter beautifying. And we right along with them!

That's how we found this new plastic facial mask! A beautifier as old as the ages . . . but as new as tomorrow. And there we sat watching it "work" on someone . . . making the young lady look like the great stone face as it dried . . . making her velvety-smooth and dawn-rosy when it was taken off!

A mask that's applied like a coat of paint . . . with a brush (whilst warm) . . . and that dries immediately. No danger of burning the face, it can't. And what it does for wrinkles . . . impurities of the skin . . . enlarged pores, can't be reckoned by any standards. It's nothing short of miraculous! And it's being given in one of the beauty shops in town. Go masked, young woman, that you may have an Easter-lily complexion!

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after-effects.

They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS

IT takes more than a salve to draw them out. It takes a "counter-irritant"! And that's what good old Musterole is—soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in drawing out the pain and congestion when rubbed on the sore, aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly to this treatment, and with continued application once an hour, blessed relief is often experienced in five hours.

Even better results than the never-failing old-fashioned mustard plaster. Used by millions of people. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

MELODY, COMEDY -:- 'Seth Parker,' Symphony -:- ON RADIO

Seth Parker, Ed Wynn On Air

The radio listener seeking music, comedy and adventure on the air waves can do little better than set his dial for WCAE at 8 o'clock, and let it stay there until 10:30.

Leo Reisman, Wayne King, Ben Bernie, Ed Wynn and Seth Parker . . . the latter attempting a seagoing broadcast from somewhere outside the United States . . . entertain the Sun-Telegraph station's listeners at half-hour intervals.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Varieties, KDKA's Tuesday evening program of local talent, on the air from 7:15 until 7:45, presents H. S. Wherrett, plate glass manufacturer, as guest speaker, and Chauncey Parsons, a male quartet, girl's trio and Umberto Egizi's Orchestra as musical fare.

* * *

Supplementing the Sun-Telegraph campaign for governmental economy, Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco addresses the WCAE audience at 7 p. m., speaking on "Not less government—But Less Governments."

* * *

ELGAR, LISZT

Paul Lemay, gifted young conductor, directs the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra's concert, on WJAS at 9:30 p. m.

The program includes works by Elgar, Delibes, Liszt and Tschaikowsky.

* * *

For once, it might be a good idea to listen to The Voice of Experience, tonight at 8:30.

It's springtime, and he warns the WJAS listeners of the dangers of day-dreaming.

* * *

George Bass, violinist, accompanied by the string section of Josef Koestner's Orchestra, plays Kreisler's Caprice Viennois as a feature of the musical program heard over KDKA at 9 p. m.

* * *

George Mundy's Orchestra offers a program of dance tunes over WWSW tonight at 9.

* * *

Presentation of the award of the National Safety Council to the city of Pittsburgh tomorrow will be picked up by WCAE, starting at 1 o'clock.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Gay, spirited rumba and tango music again is promised by Jimmy Bridges' performers at 5:45.

Don't miss the Happy Chaps at 6:15; Paul Gannon's songs at 6:45 and Pickard Family at 8.

Eddie Peyton's Band does a medley of new hit tunes as the feature of the 11:30 Frivolities.

Seth's 'Blow the Man Down' Replacing 'Sweet Adeline'

By AIRCASTER

What a change has come over old Seth Parker since he's gone to sea!

A few short weeks ago he had the world sitting down of a Sunday night, piously listening to his hymns and homespun philosophy and perchance thinking a little remorsefully of things done and left undone.

Tonight (or early tomorrow morning), in night clubs and restaurants that have thrown away the key, you'll find that Seth's seagoing theme tune, "Blow the Man Down, Sailor, Blow the Man Down," has taken the place of "Sweet Adeline."

No sooner does a merrymaker get "three sheets in the wind, than he pipes up, "Blow the Man Down," and others around him, grinning in recognition of Phil Lord's chanty, join in and make the rafters ring.

It's become a nursery lullaby, as well.

A friend of mine says the song works wonders on his fretful year-old son, quickly changing a childish wail to happy smile. He tells me—believe it or not—that the baby spoke yesterday for the first time, and his words were . . .

"Blow the Man Down!"

FRED RODGERS

Speaking of popular songs, Fred (Frederick G.) Rodgers, longtime program director at KDKA, is singing over the old station every morning this week at 10:15.

Fred's return to the air is something of an event—his first appearance in a year, excepting one network program on which he sang from Florida.

Arline Francis, star in "Forty-Five Minutes in Hollywood" got her first stage job as a nun in a play starring Claudette Colbert whom she understudied.

"It was amusing," she says, "because I had spent eight years in a convent—preparing for it, I guess."

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Most all of us have hobbies. Some of us collect coins, others stamps, and then there are many of you who go in for airplane model building. Two of the strangest hobbies of Globe Trotters have just come to my attention.

A letter from William L. Burch, Beaver, tells of his unique collection of Indian relics. Over a period of 30 years he has gathered together a thousand pieces, including stone axes, peace pipes, spear heads, arrowpoints and dress ornaments.

They are on exhibition at his home. Some of you might want to look the relics over and hear the history connected with the different pieces.

Just the other day I was introduced to the hobby of 8-year-old Bobby Sully and his 15-year-old brother, Bill. Their room in their house, on Beechwood boulevard, looks more like a section of Carnegie Museum than a bedroom. The walls are decorated with sabers, swords, bayonets and machetes.

Seibel on WCAE At 5:45 P. M.

George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, usually heard over WCAE Tuesday evenings at 7 o'clock, gives his review of Plays and Players this afternoon at 5:45.

The Globe Trotter is heard over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.

Francis G. Smith, world-renowned deep-sea diver, is heard over WCAE-WJAS at 6:30, with Aircaster.

Read How New Mineral Concentrate RICH IN FOOD IODINE is building up thousands of nervous, skinny, rundown men and women everywhere

"I have been under weight for years. Ever since I was after attack of flu two years ago I have weighed but 98 lbs. I have tried many different medicines but none would help me. But since I have taken Kelp-A-Malt I have gained 5 pounds in one week and feel 100% better.—Miss W. J. S.

Just a few of the thousands of similar reports that are coming in from all over the country telling how this new form of food concentrate is helping put flesh, strengthening the nerves and enriching the blood—building up health, vitality, making weak, underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, live and vital glands of the body contain certain quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain.

Modern foods, even fresh vegetables and similarly nutritious foods, have recently been discovered to be lacking not only in food elements but in all the other essential organic minerals without which [illegible] and health are impossible.

RUUD

Friend of 3 Generations

● When an automatic water heater is indorsed . . . and used . . . by three generations, it must be good!

100% adoption of RUUD Automatic Hot Water Service by entire families is so common that it doesn't excite comment . . . but . . . there is no better guarantee of genuine quality.

RUUD Has Everything You Want

● Instant hot water when you turn the faucet, night or day. No tank to limit the supply; hot water flows as long as the faucet is open—ten seconds or ten hours. Full-automatic operation; there's nothing to watch—nothing to think about. Gas-saving; you pay only for the hot water you use and no more. Reliable. Long, trouble-free life.

Not a Particle of Rust in a Million Gallons

● RUUD will rid you forever of henna-colored baths, rust-spotted laundry and danger to your complexion. Its waterways are copper and brass. RUUD simply CANNOT supply rusty water.

Ask Your Neighbors About RUUD Service

● The opinion of your RUUD-owning neighbor is absolutely without bias. They know RUUD advantages from personal experience. Mail Coupon No. 1 below and you'll receive a list of these neighbors. Ask THEM; their advice is valuable. Do this, whether you are planning to buy a water heater or not.

Pay for RUUD As You Use It

● Prices are low. RUUD is installed when you make the small first payment and you enjoy its perfect hot water service as you pay the balance in easy monthly amounts. There's NOTHING to prevent your owning RUUD right now. For information on deferred payments, mail Coupon No. 2 below.

A Special Plan for Landlords

● RUUD Automatic Hot Water Service helps rent vacant houses and keeps old tenants satisfied. We have a special Spring plan for landlords and full details will be placed in your hands if you mail Coupon No. 3 below.

RUUD

THE OLD RELIABLE

AUTOMATIC GAS CUT-OFF... If the pilot light should accidentally go out, this positive-acting device will shut off the flow of ALL gas automatically.

DOUBLE FUEL CONTROL... A gas-saver. Its job is to keep gas flow in ratio to hot water flow and it does this automatically.

INTERNAL THERMOSTAT... Automatic, too, and placed in the heart of the heat zone, where it is instantly responsive to temperature changes.

NO RUSTY WATER... Water touches nothing but non-corrosive brass and copper. Rusty water is impossible.

CLEANABLE BURNERS... A clean burner saves gas. You don't have to be a mechanic to clean a RUUD burner.

HEAVY CAST-IRON HOUSING... No water heater jacket has as much endurance and life as a cast-iron jacket. No water heater jacket is heavier, stronger or longer lasting than that used by RUUD.

LOW COST-PER-GALLON... Installations numbered in the tens of thousands are best of all proofs of RUUD economy.

LOW COST-PER-YEAR... The longer a water heater lasts, the smaller is its cost-per-year. No water heater has a lower cost-per-year than RUUD.

GAS-SAVING... RUUD burns gas only when the faucet is open. You pay only for the hot water you actually use.

NET RESULTS FOR YOUTHFUL FORMALS

Net here rises up like a sea-spray over Neptune's daughters, squaring itself at the lower neckline, falling straight to flowing hem ruffles. A perfect Intercollegiate Ball frock. $17.50

Net is no longer the "schoolgirly" fashion. In windswept treatment, sketched, stands a new sophistication. Pastel frocks perfect for bridesmaids, college balls, and far-into-summer evenings. $17.50

CHIFFONS FOR DUAL DUTY

Mousseline de Soie—with low bosom corsage, with sophisticated ruffles, with upper-rib jacket over formal frock—here's a combination hard to beat, name your dress occasion, Spring or Summer! $17.50

The sapphire blue sash, the breezeblown ruffles and back tucks 'make" this chartreuse chiffon dress, and take it out of the "girly-girly" class. For bridesmaids, cruise nights, demi-formals. $17.50

Evening Capes for Windblown Formals

The tiered capelet in transparent velvet is designed to harmonize with the back of your lovely cascading ruffled skirt—and is short enough to clear—not crush—its movement. Top. $29.75

The little "Molyneux number" that started this "right-wrap-for-my-breeze-blown-formal" movement. Cross-tucked velveteen with monk's cowl, in original coral-red—to wear with any color gown! $17.50

"DRESS UP" KNITS

The fluted pie crust edges to the windblown blouse of this Aquatone Boucle dress, give it a feminine look, new in Sunday night Boucles. $22.50

The kimono fitting sleeve, the lacy yoke, the close, even Boucle knit, and the color, Navy Blue, give this two-piece fashion a grand entrance at casual Sunday night events. $22.50

Things I Never Knew 'Til Yesterday

(But, oh, what I know about you!)

That Mae West's childhood home in Brooklyn was supplanted by a church, you prob'ly know. Well, a recent movie mag quotes Mae as saying: "I lived in that house until I was 12." The church was build in 1905—29 years ago. Thus, by her own figures, Mae is 41. (Moral: Don't give movie fan magazines interviews.)

That in New York one summer with the temperature at 75 degrees—it snowed. (See the papers of Aug. 1, 1905, or Mr. Ochs' staff.)

That it took Hollywood more than 30 years to rediscover May Robson. In 1898 May appeared in a film, and the N. Y. World's critic raved.

That recently I reported that tho' in 1837 the U. S. Treasury loaned 28 millions to the States then existing—after a bill so providing was passed by Congress—it has yet to receive its coin. I omitted this interesting fact—that Congress never intended the Gov't to get it back! (Always up-to tricks.)

That France pays half an artist's expenses if that artist plays only French music during the entire program.

That in New York of all handouts and beds at the Municipal lodging house and other charitable spots (where few, if any questions are asked) 85 per cent goes to out of towners. (And N. Y. has no heart!)

That Wm. Hazlett Upson has his hero in "The Military Hobo" (the SEP of April 2, 1932) utter: "Find out WHO he's working with" and said hero is a professor of languages! (Haw!)

That most Eskimos have an extra rib!

That authors whose tales are accepted by a magazine of the true-story type—must sign an affidavit that the details in their stories are not true! (To prevent suits by readers who may imagine a story is the airing of their very own private skeleton!)

That a Persian who sneezes before going on a voyage cancels it.

That in China dinner ends with soup! They wear white—in mourning—the Standard point of the compass is South! They keep their hats on in company as a mark of respect—and a bandit is called "hung-hutsze" (meaning red beard) although no red-bearded Chinamen ever existed!

That Woodrow Wilson's household never paid the slightest attention to Weather Bureau reports. They had their own barometer—and an infallible one. (Wilson's razor-strop!)

That if the next day was to be fair, the strop was shiny and the razor slipped. If it was to be rainy—the strop would be "heavy."

That if auto makers will turn their present models completely around, i. e. produce a car broad and blunt in front and tapering in the rear, the car will go over 100 m. p. h. on a 25-horsepower engine!

That in Brooklyn—Montague St. (an important downtown thoroughfare) still is a privately owned highway—gutter and all! (Yet the cops give you a ticket for over-parking!)

That in Arabia there are said to be 4,000 words signifying "Camel." (I've got a lotta words myself—for jackass.)

That if you sent personal photos as Christmas cards to friends in England the cards would be taxed! (Fancy that!)

That in North Dakota there's only one book store!

That King George is entitled not only to two beaver-skins annually from Pennsylvania—he also has a legal right to one-fifth of all gold and silver found in that state which features coal!

That the Spanish Gov't is tracing Alfonso's pedigree!

That the very drink of water you last swallowed once probably gargled an ancient Pharaoh's throat or a mediaeval citizen's feet! (I'm not kiddin'—it's an astonishing fact by Dr. Shantz of U. of Ariz.)

That R. L. Stevenson's "The Bottle Imp," a classic, was plagiarized. From "The Bottle Imp" contained in "Popular Tales and Romance of the Northern Nations" (London, 1823).

That in Paris the firemen are disciplined, paid and promoted by the Minister of War! And supervised by the Police Prefect!

That a framed memo in the Loew's State cashier's cage cautions: "Do not Accept Gold or Gold Certificates!" (Ain't worth nothin'?)

That Jack Dempsey's portrait is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Also he is bust-ed in the Berlin National Gallery.

That a Chinese store will sell you anything in stock—at night—except a needle. (Well, then, smarty—try it!)

That the success of Orville Wright's flight at Kitty Hawk (I'm told) was due more to his stomach muscles than to the motor.

That in South America the most respectable visitors to the Stock Exchange—are searched! (Coming and going.)

That England financed the South during the Civil War tiff—yet after the fracas, asked for payment—from the North!

That grammarians insist that it is "It is I" and never "It is me." But they err, too. For, to be etymologically correct, and that counts, the correct form is: "It am I." (I'm thumbing my nose at P. S. 184.)

And that Olin Miller wins today's orchids with: "The average man will forgive you anything except your becoming a success."

Miss Tashman Missed by Stars

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—Hello! Sudden gloom spread over the little movie village Wednesday as the news flashed that Lilyan Tashman was dead. For 10 years Lil held a most enviable Hollywood spotlight—that of being one of the best-dressed women of the screen, a perfect hostess at many of cinemaland's gayest parties, always full of fun, a ready wit—sometimes caustic, yes—but still a grand pal when needed most.

Hollywood lost some of its spirit with the passing of Lil. And for her grand and cheerful contribution to this tiny community, I am sure the movietown denizens and its many followers will never forget her.

* * *

Only a few days ago someone asked what had become of Alfred Santell, one-time so-called big shot director. Al again looms upon the cinema horizon. RKO has made a deal for him to megaphone "The Life of Virgie Winters," starring Ann Harding.

This is the film which was decided upon instead of "Alien Corn," finally discarded after many weeks of preparation.

You might term this a "Stooge's Holiday" . . . the buffoons who aid in one way or another—mostly slapstick—various comedy stars are professionally known as "stooges." Ted Healy's slap-receivers are mostly noted for their eye-poking routines.

Robust Benny Baker, who worked with Lou Holtz (and usually got more laughs), signed with Hal Roach as a featured funny man. How about "The Boy Stooge on the Burning Deck" as a title?

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Eph Asher should put a HALTER on his bedpost. He had another nightmare and fell out of bed! Maybe it's those scripts he's been reading . . . It was GOOD to se Eddie Sutherland at the fight. He got a grand welcome from the ringsiders . . . Minna Gombell copped off another of those wise-crackin' roles she does so splendidly in "The Hell Cat." Bob Armstrong's newspaper ditty for Columbia . . . Harry Jolson, Al's baby brother, has turned agent and is the ONLY blackface out in town! . . . May Kohl, of New York, is seeing the cinema sights with the Ralph Sugars . . . Bunny Dull, unit manager for the Marion Davies production, "Operator 13," was having a TERRIBLE time trying to find someone to aid in calling out the old-time square dances for one of the sequences. Finally, he persuaded his 75-year-old papa, George M. Dull, to turn movie actor and technical advisor . . .

The Florida beauty who positively INTRIGUED Howard Hughes for the while is now CHASING around town with a gay stock broker . . . Phillips Holmes would like to finish his movie job so he could accept an offer to play in London with Ina Claire in "Biography."

* * *

Movietown meanderings . . . Sidney Fox admits that three ARDENT admirers now send her flowers EVERY day. It sorta makes her all look quite nifty . . . The Warner studio is in very much of a DITHER trying to decide who will play the title role in "Babbitt," a talkie re-make of the Sinclair Lewis novel . . . Peeping at the "Cleopatra" set—why, there's Jack Mulhall playing a bit. Ditto for Bryant Washburn, and his young son is playing extra . . . Academy awards never bother George Burns. He says Gracie Allen got a gold award—right out of a slot machine! . . .

* * *

Marion Davies had been appearing in several scenes with Walter Long, veteran character actor playing a spy in "Operator 13"... But kept forgetting his first name ...So, to simplify matters, she finally told him: "I'll just call you Long for short."...

Dances

Hal LeRoy, noted dancing star, gets a chance to show his steps in an amateur performance sequence in "Harold Teen," comedy coming to the Warner Friday.

Variety's Attraction 'French Models'

One of the most elaborate of burlesque shows, "French Models" is current in the Variety. "Rose Ballet," featuring Jimmy Gerard, Franklyn Hopkins, Buster Marco and Arline Milburne, all singers, is a colorful musical number. Another spectacular scene is "Siam," in which a herd of "elephants" have girls riding them. "Ballet la Moderne," with Gerard and Marco leading, is another feature number. Fred "Falls" Binder, considered the foremost comedian in burlesque carries the burden of the funmaking, aided by Joe De Rita, Happy Hyatt and Abe Sher. Reggie "Tassels" White, Georgia St. George, Nona Martin, Wilma Horner and Diana Logan are featured dancers.

East End Choir In Drama Tonight

Members of the Squirrel Hill Christian Church choir will present the second performance of "Follow Thou Me," a Biblical drama, in the church auditorium, Gladstone and Bigelow streets, at 8:15 o'clock tonight. The final performance will be given tomorrow.

Judge, Police Head to Address N. S. Body

Judge Ralph H. Smith and Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall will be the speakers at the dinner of the North Side Chamber of Commerce in Boggs and Buhl's dining room at 6 p. m., April 5. Frank E. Tencate is president of the organization and Paul H. Dillman is secretary.

German War Vets Speak in Mt. Oliver

Hans Stockmann and Friedrich Kuechle, former soldiers in the Germany army, will speak of their experiences during the World War at a meeting of the Duetsche Verien, Mt. Oliver and Sharon street, Mt. Oliver, at 8 p. m., Saturday. Stockman was a captain in the aviation corps.

Last Performance Of Play Presented

Staged by members of the St. Lawrence Catholic Action League, a play, "The Upper Room," will be presented in the St. Lawrence Hall, Penn and Atlantic avenues for the last time this evening. E. J. White is president of the league.

Woman, 70, Writes Downey She Sings High C

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Somewhere in Pittsburgh is a music-loving soul who has invited Morton Downey, heading the current stage bill in the Penn, to come and see her if he wants "to hear an Irish woman 70 years old hit high C." Morton, Irish himself, was unable to even reply inasmuch as the lady did not give her address.

Yes, Morton is Irish, and Downey is his right name. To give it in full it is still more Irish—praise be!—Sean Morton Downey. Inasmuch as he has uncles, cousins, etc., named "Shawn," he dropped the Sean and proceeded to make the rest of the name famous. But he didn't drop his Irish songs. In fact that's all he knew when he sang at his first important engagement—a Jewish social affair.

"There was a kick in that," said Downey, recalling it yesterday. "Paul Whiteman had given me an audition. I was singing around in clubs at the time and the Whiteman office got me this engagement. On the back of the program appeared these words: 'The following distinguished artists appear.' Three names appeared, including my own, not one of us being publicly known. Distinguished, ha!'"

There was a suggestion that he tell how come he took up singing as a career.

"It was an easy choice," he said. "I've sung from childhood, and had been a choir boy. At 15 I was working in a factory, and received frequent engagements to sing at local affairs, being paid small amounts, perhaps $5 at one and $8 at another. So I just put this question to myself—'Why should I work all week in a factory for $8 when I can get that much for singing just one night?'"

His answer to his own question deprived the factory of a good hand, for it is not hard to surmise that a good husky Irish lad, who is earnest in all that he does, would be anything but capable.

Eventually his home town in Connecticut lost him when he set forth to conquer the world. We guess his fan mail must make him think that he's got it pretty well licked by now. Anyway, he went to Brooklyn, and did just as he had done back in the old home town. One day a man heard him and told another to "send that kid to my office." It was the office of a big shot politician and thereafter Morton went there frequently to sing for him.

Anon the owner of a playhouse chain needed a little political aid in the matter of building a theater, and the friendly Brooklyn chief said the price would be a theater engagement for Mr. Morton Downey. And thus he came to sing in an Irish neighborhood house in New York, where a scout of Paul Whiteman heard him and arranged an audition. This resulted in an engagement as vocal soloist with Whiteman's Leviathan Orchestra—a road tour, trips aboard the Leviathan, then another long tour. Then a tour with the Paul Whiteman orchestra.

He appeared in Pittsburgh with both organizations—in the Davis with the Leviathan and in Syria Mosque with Whiteman.

"What kind of a chance does a nice clean show like yours have against the so-called 'sophisticated' type that deals largely with off-color skits and gags?" he was asked.

"Why, we outdraw them right along, and it does my heart good to see the types of people I often observe in the boxoffice lines—especially the elderly ladies. Why, I've got letters telling me the writers have broken their no-shows-in-Lent resolution to hear 'The Rosary' sung."

Thinking, perhaps, that he was talking too much about himself, he asked if I knew personally his father-in-law, Richard Bennett.

"The greatest actor in America," he commenied.

"Will you, too, become a dramatic actor when the old voice goes away for good?"

"I hope I don't have to," he replied.

He must have thought the interviewer was a bit goofy.

Take my word—Sean Morton Downey is a fine broth of a lad—mind ye that.

STUDENT ART AWAITS JURY

Winners in the seventh annual National High School Art Exhibit, to be held at Carnegie Institute from April 25 to May 13, will be selected today and tomorrow by a jury of six.

Comprising the jury will be Dr. Andrey Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum; Karl S. Bolander, director of Columbus Art Center; George Dutch, of Peabody College for Teachers; Royal B. Farnum, director of the Rhode Island School of Design; C. Valentine Kirby, supervisor of art in Pennsylvania schools, and W. A. Readio, chairman of the department of painting and decoration at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

High school students from more than 700 cities and towns in the United States and five European countries have submitted entries.

A dinner in honor of the jury will be held at the Schenley Hotel tonight.

Plays Lead

Rosemary Carver plays the lead in the Civic Playhouse production of "The Silver Wedding," to be staged in the Hotel Schenley Theater tonight and Wednesday night.

Appeal on Pension Ruling to Be Heard

The week of April 13 was set by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court yesterday for argument on the mandamus action in which the County Commissioners were required by Common Pleas Court recently to appropriate $75,000 to the Retirement Board of Allegheny County for pensions. The action was brought by the board against Commissioners C. M. Barr and C. C. McGovern, who appealed from the decision of the lower court.

MRS. ROOSEVELT BACKS U. S. ART

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A plea for the encouragement and support of American art was voiced yesterday by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Attending a luncheon, at which plans were discussed for continuance of the National Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Roosevelt said too often in the past American artistic talent has been unappreciated at home, and had to go abroad to attain recognition. She said:

"In the past we have accepted as a rule what was brought to us from other countries. Our own talent had to go abroad to gain recognition, because we as audiences were afraid to say whether we thought our native talent was good or bad. Familiarity with music from early youth gives one spontaneous security in his own judgment."

Tarentum Reduces Tax Rate to 9 Mills

Tarentum Borough Council last night reduced taxes from 11 to 9 mills. It also authorized the purchase of property at Corbitt street and Fourth avenue as part of a plan to widen Corbitt street. The property cost $20,000.

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"OUT HERE in Chicago," writes Peter Brennan, of that city, "we have a character who will undoubtedly interest you. I'll refer to him as Al and, when I tell you he's a swell guy, I'm only voicing the opinion of plenty of others.

"All through the troublesome days of prohibition, Al ran a speakeasy in Chicago. And if it wasn't the best in town, it came pretty close to owning that distinction. Because Al never served anything but the very best liquors and the last word in food. If you didn't enjoy your meal in Al's place, you just couldn't be satisfied anywhere.

"Even though he squawked a great deal, Al liked the speakeasy era. He complained bitterly about the graft and the coppers and the gun play, but deep in his heart, he enjoyed the excitement of it all. He kept speaking of the peaceful days that would follow repeal—if repeal ever came—and how happy he would be to run a legitimate business once again.

"But Al was a hoodlum at heart. When repeal finally arrived, and he began to operate his place with the consent and blessing of recognized law and order, the man grew a little sour. Things were too tame for him and—like so many others at the moment—he began to long for the exciting days that used to be.

"Week after week, Al grew more and more morose. His friends worried about him. He was still serving the best food in Chicago and his place was recognized as a huge money-maker. But the man simply wasn't happy. The kick and the thrill had vanished from his life.

"Suddenly, Al hit upon a new idea. Suddenly, he began to smile again. Suddenly, life assumed the glow of the speakeasy days. Suddenly, the whole problem was solved.

"He is happy now, because he insists that each customer order a portion of small-mouth black bass. He sneaks the fish in through the rear of his restaurant, and actually loses money on it. But he's happy.

"Because selling small-mouth black bass is strictly against the law!"...

"I SUPPOSE you've heard," supposes Reggie Childs, "of the Broadwayite who went out and made a name for himself—but nobody could print it!"...

"DEAR MARK," writes J. M. J. "It took me a long time, but I just found out what friendship is.

"Friendship is the thing you hear about when somebody is trying to nick you for a loan!"

"DEAR MARK," writes Ray Perkins. "If you're interested, here's the way I analyze the international sense of humor.

"When an Englishman is told a joke, he usually laughs three times. First, to be polite; second, when the joke is explained, and third, when he catches on.

"When a German is told a joke, he generally laughs twice. First, to be polite, and second when the joke is explained. He doesn't catch on.

"When a Frenchman is told a joke, he laughs once. He catches on immediately.

"When an American is told a joke, he doesn't laugh at all. He's heard it before."...

"DEAR Mr. Hellinger:" writes Harry Mell. "When people talk to themselves, it has always been considred a sign that they had money in the bank. Right?

"Well, when my Scotch pal had money in the bank, he used to talk to himself. Right? He used to ask himself whether he should take it out, or leave it in. Right? But he wouldn't listen.

"Now he's so mad at himself for not listening to himself that he's not speaking to himself any more. Or am I nuts?"

Right...

Echoes From the Cabarets Of Pittsburgh

By THE ROUNDER

Local joy spots are planning to ring out Holy Week, officially ending Saturday noon, with plenty of dances, jubilees, and Saturday night celebrations that threaten to rival New Year's Eve.

The Hi Hat Club, Freeport and Fox Chapel roads, Aspinwall, will present an even more elaborate "Night in China" than last Saturday night's, with a floor show featuring Sally Sarraff, Lillian Chapman, Dave Jeffries, Jack Jenkins and Kitty Karr, Curt Guckert's Orchestra will make music in an atmosphere of Chinese lanterns, pagodas and chop suey.

* * *

At the other end of town Fred Sanders has arranged a pretentious floor show for his Inn on the Steubenville Pike, featuring Eloise Rutter, popular local club and radio songstress, and Blondetta, fan dancer who has been showing in local cabarets.

Eloise comes by her artistic talents naturally, for her dad is the local landscape painter, Richard Rutter.

* * *

Speaking of art, that colorful seniorita on the right of the bandstand at Sanders' is the work of that renowned paint and brush man, Fred Sanders. Likewise the languorous nude in the barroom. The way Fred tells it, he once decided that his old Inn in Aspinwall, needed decorations. So he bought himself a painting outfit and turned out a few masterpieces for his club's walls. Some talent, huh?

* * *

Buddy Rogers, with his band and floor show, will make a one-night appearance at Pope's Show Boat, April 8. This will give Show Boat patrons two bands and two floor shows in one evening.

We're wondering how many of the patrons who applauded Marianne Rohrkaste into "Bolero" encores Saturday and Sunday night, realized that they were asking the little dancer to execute 25 minutes of continuous twirling. This feat, as far as we know, can be duplicated by no other local terpsichorean.

Whose Fault?

When Children Get Bad Reports in School

Poor marks in school are often due to a child's physical condition. No child can study with a sluggish system. Sluggishness actually dulls the senses; it will dull the brightest mind. Before you can blame the child—or his teacher—you must be sure you are not sending a badly clogged child to school. Don't wait for a badly coated tongue, headaches, and poor appetite to tell you child's bowels need help! There's a way to insure their regularity; see next column: This is the secret of helping boys and girls go through an entire school term without once slumping in their studies. Keep them free from bilious attacks. Not by purging them with cathartics of adult strength! They'll never need such things if you'll use this natural means of stimulating regular, thorough bowel action; every three or four days, let them have a little California Syrup of Figs. The laxative action of the senna in this fruity syrup is enough. Get pure California Syrup of Figs.

Coming Bills Noted

"Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," featuring Dorothea Wieck, Alice Brady and Baby LeRoy, is in the Sheridan Square now for a three-day run.

* * *

Lionel Barrymore and Fay Bainter have the featured roles in "This Side of Heaven," opening tomorrow in the Enright.

* * *

Anna Sten has the title role in "Nana," a story about a beautiful girl who rose from the streets to become the toast of Paris. The picture will open Friday in the Penn. Phillip Holmes, Richard Bennett and Lionel Atwill are also prominent in the picture. The stage offering will be "Greenwich Village Follies."

* * *

Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert are co-starred in "It Happened One Night," photoplay coming to the Stanley screen Friday. Gable plays the role of a newspaperman who befriends the runaway daughter of a rich man. It is a lively comedy.

* * *

Joe Laurie, Jr.'s, "Memory Lane" revue will come to the Pitt stage Friday. The cast, headed by Laurie, musical comedy star, will present some old-time artists, including Lizzie Wilson, Annie Hart, Gus Hill and others, along with the Runaway Four, Mary Tempest, Bert Nagle, representing the present stage generation.

* * *

Hal LeRoy and Rochelle Hudson have the leading roles in "Harold Teen," photoplay opening Friday in the Warner. Hal LeRoy plays a cub reporter in a juvenile comedy, the cast of which also includes Patricia Ellis and Guy Kibbel.

* * *

"The Countess of Monte Cristo," with Paul Lukas and Fay Wray in the starring roles, and Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in "Love Birds," comprise the double bill coming to the Davis and Regent Friday.

M'NAIR BANS POLITICAL PAYROLL PRESSURE

POLITICS

Martin Says Four to Run—But Who?

By MARK SHIELDS

Eighteen patriots would be our Governor.

But by April second there won't be more than four.

That paraphrase of an old and popular rhyme is the sentiment of Republican State Chairman Edward Martin—today—as he scans the list of eighteen who have filed as candidates for Republican nomination. Who the four will be, and what conniving, trading and manipulating will result in the fourteen withdrawals is not disclosed by the state chairman, who helped clarity and amity not at all by filing himself right on the deadline yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Shields

The only certainty is that Easter Monday, the last day for withdrawals, will find some of these gentlemen with wilted lilies in their hands. The same applies to the bulk of the 17 Republicans who have filed as candidates for Lieutenant Governor.

Of the five Democratic gubernatorial candidates and three for Lieutenant Governor, all may stick, though Attorney Charles Alvin Jones, of Pittsburgh, has said he will determine his future by the reaction during the week to his objection to the manner in which both regulars and anti-organization men have slated their candidates.

Vare's Return Not the News It Once Was

William S. Vare returned to Philadelphia yesterday, on the eve of the meeting of the Republican City Committee today. Under the old political rules the arrival of Mr. Vare from Florida would mean that the final word was to be uttered by him as to who would be the organization candidate representing at least the Philadelphia organization.

However, Mr. Vare said he had not been considering politics in the South and would not now. There is some doubt as to how far James H. Hazlett, city chairman, actually represents or has represented the wishes of Mr. Vare so far in the existing muddle.

In the past there have been evidences that Hazlett was playing the political game with Martin. The reign of Vare is about over, and the city chairman would like to form some alliance which would enable him to maintain the place in the sun he has held under Vare.

But Hazlett cannot impose his will on Philadelphia, especially with President James Clark of the Board of Commissioners rounding up a group of ward leaders who will follow him. At the moment Clark is supporting the candidacy of Judge Harry S. McDevitt, one of the myriad Philadelphians who filed yesterday.

Hazlett for some time has been reported to favor Judge Robert E. Lamberton, bitterly opposed by McDevitt and Clark. Now there are signs that Hazlett and Martin are switching to Judge Marion D. Patterson of Blair County. In this case, however, there are friends of Senator David A. Reed who will resent the elevation of the Blair County jurist.

Among them is listed Superior Court Judge Thomas J. Baldrige, who through the influence of Senator Reed became the first Attorney General in the cabinet of former Gov. John S. Fisher Senator Reed intended that service as preliminary training for the governorship for Judge Baldrige, but the latter preferred the bench.

Shannon's Pals Meet To Protect Interests

Friends of Gen. Edward C. Shannon, including County Controller Robert G. Woodside, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain and Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster were meeting in Harrisburg today to avert any effort to force the Lieutenant Governor out of the gubernatorial race. They have been open in their suspicions that the filing of Gen. Martin was designed to force a compromise which meant not only the retirement of the state chairman, but in return for that the withdrawal of Gen. Shannon.

Disruption in the Pinchot wing of the Republican party has not been cured, and may not be between now and Monday. Edward J. Hunter and Attorney General William A. Schnader are dividing the Governor's followers.

In Allegheny County there are a number of Pinchot followers, thinking first of the Governor's candidacy for the Senate, who are disgusted with the conflict, and might not look unfavorably on something approaching a direct hook-up with the Shannon contingent. There is some reciprocity in this proposition, as there are Shannon men who prefer Pinchot to Reed.

L. V. Barach, manager in this section of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, says he is not a candidate for county chairman. The petitions taken out in his name yesterday were not authorized by him, he said today.

For the smaller as well as the larger offices there will be negotiations the next few days endeavoring to clear up the field.

A complete list of the candidates, as listed today, for major offices is found on Page 20.

Arnold in Fight Over School Head

ARNOLD, Pa., March 27.—Petitions were circulated today by the Allied Civic League for eliminating the office of superintendent of public schools. The league's president, D. R. Cartisano, said the move was inspired by economy reasons alone. Retention of Supt. Donald P. Davis was urged last night at a public meeting headed by the Rev. Alexander Steele.

BARE WEDDING OF 2 SISTERS TO STUDENTS

Pitt Man Disappears In McDonald Girls' Double Romance

Kept secret for nearly six months, the double elopement and marriage of two McDonald sisters to a Pitt football star and a Columbia scholarship student was bared today.

Coming in the wake of discovery of the disappearance of James A. Rumbaugh, Jr., of McDonald, the revelation set the small Pennsylvania town buzzing and added another link to the strange story of mystery revealed in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday.

The two sisters are Hazel and Marion Alice McBeth, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McBeth, of McDonald.

Their bridegrooms, respectively, are the missing Columbia student, Rumbaugh, and Leo Malarkey, grid ace, also of McDonald.

The double ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. D. Eberhart at Newell, W. Va., September 1, 1933.

MALARKEY SILENT

At his rooming house today Malarkey had left word that he refused to comment. The bride's mother also refused to discuss the matter, and their father said he could not confirm published reports of the marriage.

Fears that revelation of Malarkey's marriage might mean the termination of his football career and scholarship were offset by declaration of University of Pittsburgh officials that there is no rule against married men playing football at Pitt.

Meanwhile Rumbaugh's disappearance threatened to halt further award of scholarships to Columbia by the university's Pittsburgh alumni group.

Declaring he was "sorry the story got to the newspapers," Ed Roach, secretary of the Pittsburgh association, told the Sun-Telegraph yesterday he was "disappointed" in the outcome of most of the scholarships they have awarded. He said:

"I've been responsible mainly for pushing the scholarships. And I'm disappointed. You can say we may not give any more. Yes, one of the four did very well. He's taking his master's there now.

4-YEAR SCHOLARSHIP

"Rumbaugh's scholarship was for four years, and he started only last fall. He must be foolish."

The scholarships are valued at $1,200 each, or $300 a year. The missing student, according to Roach, had intended to major in philosophy. His grades during the first semester had been very good, Roach said, averaging "B" for the period before Christmas.

Apparently very nervous and upset over the matter, Rumbaugh's brother, Ovilby Rumbaugh, yesterday said attending strain and worry had confined the missing youth's mother, Mrs. J. A. Rumbaugh, to her bed.

ONE BRIDE LIVING HERE

The former Hazel McBeth, who now is working in a Pittsburgh bank and living at 1521 Cumberland avenue, Crafton Heights, said she last heard from her husband about February 8 and could give no reason for his disappearance, date of which is set at February 10.

About 10 days ago George W. Phillips, Jr., New York attorney, visited Pittsburgh and conferred with Roach, Ovilby Rumbaugh and the missing student's wife. As far as can be determined, no report of Rumbaugh's disappearance has been made to either New York or Pittsburgh police.

Secret Husband Vanished

HAZEL M'BETH RUMBAUGH . . . HASN'T "HEARD" IN WEEKS

Mrs. Rumbaugh, 23, McDonald girl revealed as the secret bride since last September of James A. Rumbaugh, Jr., fellow-townsman and scholarship student at Columbia University who disappeared from New York early in February. Explains Mrs. Rumbaugh: "I last heard from him around February 8. No, not a word since then."

CABINET TOLD OF HANDS-OFF POLICY

Mayor Opposes Any Forced Alignment Of Employes

Assurance that city employes were free from any obligation to support the administration with their votes has come from Mayor McNair's cabinet meeting.

In a pointed statement in regard to cabinet members' attitude on employe politics, the Mayor said yesterday:

"The only thing the administration is concerned with is that no orders are issued by anyone in authority to influence employes in their political activities."

The Mayor suggested the advisability of department heads urging their employes, as good citizens, to vote. But continued:

"It is immaterial what party the employe may be affiliated with or what candidate he may support."

When Welfare Director Southard Hay said he thought employes ought to be loyal to the administration they worked for, McNair countered:

"That's the very thing I'm against."

McNair suggested employes might send their directors cards stating they had registered and in what district. But that the name of the party be not given and the card sending be optional.

The Mayor said some Republican employes had told him they believed in the general principles of their party, and that he thought this belief should not be interfered with.

RELIEF PROBERS GO UNPAID

The 400 field investigators of the Allegheny County Relief Board have not received the $4,000 due them for February expenses, it was learned today. It was also learned 54 other workers have not been paid for the last two weeks of February.

The pay of the field workers for the last two weeks of March came a week late, it was reported. The expense accounts, George P. Mills, executive director, said, average about $10 a month for each investigator. The workers submit their accounts on the first of each month with the understanding they are to be paid by the tenth.

The responsibility for the delay has not been fixed. The county board disclaims it on the grounds the payroll is made up by the State Emergency Relief Board.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, that stopping that strike was the best bit of luck that's happened to us in a long time, for it looks like the basis of stopping all of them, if the participants will all be as liberal as these were. There was one new thing they brought out in the agreement that seemed pretty fair, that was that no matter what union, or group, or if none at all, that in any settlement representation in proportion to the number of workers in your group. That's been one of the big troubles before, supposed leaders who didn't represent everybody, but were in there talking for 'em.

Will Rogers.

So it looks like the President has earned his vacation, even if he was going on Morgan's yacht.

Yours, WILL.

U. S. Court May Decide Plane Hauling Issue

Hays Man Held for Towing U. S. Craft On Highway

A dispute as to whether the United States government or a private citizen is being prosecuted for the illegal hauling of a cracked-up Army airplane in the mail service threatened today to be brought into Federal Court.

James Miller, of 267 Baldwin street, Hays, is the defendant in the case so far. He was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Robert Fleming, of Aspinwall, last night for operation of a motor vehicle without a special hauling permit.

United States Attorneys D. Lloyd Claycomb and James I. Marsh argued the case, threatening to take it into court. At their request Justice Fleming reserved decision until Wednesday. The penalty carries a fine of $50 or 10 days in jail.

Miller was hired by Lieut. Corley McDarment, commandant at Rodgers Field, on February 18 to haul the wrecked plane from near the County Airport to Rodgers Field, it was testified. A state highway patrolman arrested Miller near Aspinwall because the plane exceeded by 33 inches the length permitted on the highway.

Attorney Claycomb argued:

"I am assured that the United States is the defendant, since this young man was under supervision of the United States government and taking orders from the United States Army. By reason of the legal status the state does not have jurisdiction."

Attorney Marsh said:

"It is a tempest in a teapot and it is too bad that the state took the position it did—it is very regrettable.

Sergt. A. H. Kratzke, of the highway patrol, who brought the charge, said:

"It was a matter of asking a citizen to comply with our laws as an individual."

Lieut. McDarment contended the plane was a part of the Army Air Corps and was being used for a "public emergency" on orders of President Roosevelt, thus making it a government versus state dispute.

But Justice Fleming decided:

"It is my opinion that the state is prosecuting an individual and not the United States."

Wall Street Bill May Be Itself And Perhaps Not

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Senator Fletcher feels that his Wall street bill has been revised enough.

Right now it is like crackers in an open barrel. Everybody who walks by takes a little out.

So Fletcher and Rayburn want it voted upon before it turns out to be an altogether different bill about something else.

Dick Whitney has steamed up a set of alterations that will make the tail heavier than the kite.

You cannot blame Dick. He is president of the stock exchange. And things are so tight down in the street that a man could choke to death in a hoss collar.

By the time the bill is okayed it will probably be a law to prevent radio villains from snarling at little children.

Mayor's Sample House Criticized by Expert

Dr. Aronovici Says McNair Manors Is Slum Threat

Construction of McNair Manors—the Mayor's sample house near the jail—in Pittsburgh was pictured today by Dr. Carol Aronovici, of New York, as a threat of more slums rather than a solution for housing conditions.

The international housing expert and Columbia University professor, here to lecture tonight and tomorrow night in Carnegie Tech's Union on scientific housing, said:

"It's fatal to build such temporary houses—they remain temporary and eventually bring us more slums. It's dangerous to build shacks. We have to build houses now or we will never build them."

Dr. Aronovici said that cost of building and tearing down such cheap houses would be enough to give us good houses.

The United States, he pointed out, has done nothing of a broad constructive character in the way of rehousing "since Washington crossed the Delaware." Houses condemned here and in other cities 20 years ago are still standing and occupied, he said.

Declaring himself in favor of tearing down every rookery whether it is in Pittsburgh or elsewhere, he said:

"But it is impossible to build low cost houses at the 4 per cent mortgage rate over a 35-year period, which is the present federal government set-up. Our loan rates must be as low as they are in Europe. In Germany you can borrow money for housing for 1 per cent."

In an address at Carnegie Tech last night, Dr. Aronovici declared slum clearance is the last, not the first, task of improved low cost housing. He said:

"Slum clearance, the new phase of housing efforts, will be possible only when federal funds can be made available to absorb the high land costs in our slums, and when the property owners discover that the valuations of their properties are fictitious when valued in terms of revenue-producing power."

He also asserted that, of the 10 billion dollars' worth of housing construction during the six years prior to the present economic crisis, 95 per cent was invested in luxury rentals while the remaining 5 per cent was built for low rental housing.

'FREE SPEECH' SITES URGED

Two shrines of free speech on the North Side are contemplated in an amendment to the city ordinance regulating street parades and assemblages, presented in Council.

The one location, near the spot where Mayor McNair was once arrested for speech-making, designated as South Diamond street between Federal and West Diamond streets, would be set aside for gatherings between 6 and 11 p. m.

The other, at the West Park band stand, would be made available for orators between 1 and 11 p. m. Also, the ordinance provides that the Mayor may from time to time designate other places for specific meetings to be held at times fixed by him.

MT. LEBANON TAX FIGHT ON

The Mt. Lebanon Taxpayers' Group, to fight increased tax assessments in the borough, was formed last night following appearance of a body of citizens before the Township Commissioners to protest increased rates.

Leaders in the movement said that in some instances property assessed at $3,400 had been increased to $18,630. Fred K. Becker, a property owner, declared that his two properties assessed at $6,500 each had been increased to $13,000 each.

The new organization is headed by L. T. Stevenson, chairman, and Thomas Weller, secretary.

Robert K. Boyer, a Township Commissioner, sponsored a resolution volunteering services of the Township Solicitor to the taxpayers until they secure an attorney.

Western Pennsylvania Banks Propose Code

A code providing for service charges slightly lower than those proposed by member banks of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association is being submitted to Washington by Western Pennsylvania banks, it was learned today.

The code has been drawn up and approved by a majority of the banks comprising the membership of Group 8 of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association. If approved by NRA authorities it will regulate the operations of all banks in this district except the clearing house banks.

Non-clearing house banks within the city, as well as branches of downtown clearing house banks, have the option of adopting either code. It is generally believed among bankers that these banks will follow the Group 8 code if it is approved in its present form.

Under the proposed code, accounts with average balances of $500 or less having normal activity will be subject to a measured service charge.

All accounts having less than $100 average daily balances during any month shall be subject to a minimum charge of 50 cents a month, which will permit the drawing of 10 checks. One free check will be allowed for each $20 average balance in excess of $50. A minimum charge of 4 cents will be made for each additional check.

Checking accounts having an average balance during the month of over $500, or accounts in which there is unusual activity, will be analyzed to determine charges.

On all accounts exceeding $100 a number of free transactions will be permitted, based on the size of the account. Charges will be rated on the excess of activity over this amount.

Flower Vendors Banned From City Streets

You can't buy a bunch of posies for your girl on the streets of Pittsburgh this Easter time—or any time this year.

The sidewalk flower vendor, pathetic and colorful figure in the rush of big cities, is out. The florists say it's bad business.

Eighty of them told Mayor McNair that in a petition. And one, E. E. Smalley, carried his protest to the cabinet meeting yesterday.

The cabinet members admitted justice in Smalley's plea that he had to pay rent and taxes and it wasn't fair for the young street vendors to sell at cut prices. But they didn't let the flower boys down without a sentimental sigh and a word of defense.

City Solicitor C. D. Scully said:

"The ordinance against obstructing sidewalks covers the thing all right. But it seems too bad they have to go. They lend so much color. Think of Paris in the spring."

But Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston said he was for the florist. And the rest of the cabinet admitted that business made the city run. When Smalley said some flower men sent boys out to sell for a percentage at low prices, they said they'd see the ordinance enforced.

Mayor McNair closed the incident by telling the florist not to thank him. He said:

"The cabinet's with you, but I'm not. You're driving the kids off the street without a chance. I think you're going a little too far."

LEAGUE RAPPED BY HEIDELBERG VETERANS

From Heidelberg today came a vigorous protest against attempts to force the United States into the League of Nations and the World Court.

The opposition was voiced by a score of members of the Heidelberg Ex-service Men's Association.

They joined thousands of others throughout the tri-state area equally emphatic in frowning upon efforts to entangle this government in European affairs.

W. E. Percival, of Clairton, an enthusiastic booster of the campaign being conducted throughout the nation by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, in sending in a list of 77 names declared:

"Please note enclosed list of 100 per cent Americans who very enthusiastically added their names to this list within 24 hours with little or no part on my part. It am very pleased to state that I met no one who was in favor of the League of Nations or World Court and this list contains names of citizens from Monongahela City to Pittsburgh."

Evidence of the enthusiasm displayed in the movement to keep America out of the League Court was shown in the number of signed petitions sent to the League Court editor by veterans organizations.

Writing for more petitions, the adjutant of the A. A. Mountain Post, No. 4 American Legion at McMechen, W. Va., said the entire community was to be canvassed.

Similar assurances have been received from Homestead and Monessen and scores of other communities.

The protest petition is being prepared for presentation to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It will be sent in installments. Each installment will carry the names of half a million citizens. The campaign will continue until there can remain no question in the mind of the Senate as to the real attitude of the nation.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

NAME ADDRESS

Additional names may be added to this petition by pasting a sheet of paper hereto. PRESENTED through the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

FIVE SET FREE IN ARSON CASE

A verdict of not guilty of attempted arson but pay the costs was returned against five persons by a jury in Judge Harry H. Rowand's branch of Criminal Court late yesterday.

The defendants were William Simon and his mother, Mrs. Helen Simon, 1113 Bell avenue, North Braddock; Dominic Marcure, 3104 Cliff street, McKeesport; Peter Weinburger, 541 Washington street, Braddock, and Peter Zaboliki, of North Braddock. It was charged that February 20 they attempted to burn the Simon home.

It was testified that neighbors smelled gasoline and notified police, who said they found a crock of gasoline, and an unlighted fuse and papers soaked with gasoline. The Simons were not at home and Marcure and Zaboliki were arrested by a policeman near the house.

Philip Weinberger, 541 Washington street, Braddock, was taken out of the case on a directed verdict of not guilty when the state failed to connect him with the charge. No proof of insurance was offered and the defendants did not take the witness stand.

TAX RETURNS MISDIRECTED

Almost 200 of the 95,000 income tax returns prepared by taxpayers in this district were improperly mailed to the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington instead of to the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue here, or delayed because of other irregularities.

This was disclosed yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue David L. Lawrence after word was received from Washington that during the rush of the last few days of filing income tax returns approximately 5,000 reached the Washington Bureau instead of internal revenue collectors in the various districts.

In some instances checks for taxes were made payable to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, instead of to Lawrence as collector. These were returned to the taxpayers for corrections.

DISTRICT SEEKS PAVED STREETS

Five residents of former St. Clair Borough, now a part of the Sixteenth Ward, have become eloquent in a petition to Council for the improvement of nine streets. They stated:

"We, the residents, find it impossible to go outdoors without being steeped in mud."

Their request will be considered in committee today.

BOROUGH SEEKS PAYROLL FUND

West Homestead Council, in a special session last night, passed a resolution to borrow $10,000 to meet current expenses, including a monthly payroll of $2,000.

Burgess Richard H. Lawry said he would veto the measure on the grounds that one of the planks of the political faction that opposed him was a balanced budget. The Burgess already has vetoed a similar resolution.

Only four members of Council attended last night's meeting. The borough's semi-monthly payroll, due March 16, was unpaid because neither a two-third majority vote of Council nor the signature of the Burgess approving the loan could be procured.

Butler Road Detour To Start Next Week

The Pittsburgh Motor Club today announced that a detour will be established on the Pittsburgh-Butler highway from Bakerstown to Butler Monday. Paving of the 14-mile stretch will keep the road closed until November.

Twelve miles of the highway have been completed, and when the remaining section is finished, it will be the longest three-lane concrete road in Pennsylvania. The work will cost about $2,000,000.

TAX RISE HIT IN WILKINSBURG

Taxpayers of Wilkinsburg Borough have hurled a defi at Council over the proposal to increase the tax rate by 1½ mills.

Representing more than 200 property owners at a session last night, Rex Newton told members of Council:

"We do not intend to be horse-whipped by the dictates of the non-contributing element, although they greatly outnumber us."

Newton asked:

"Why do you try to run the affairs of this borough on a different basis than an individual conducts the affairs of his own home?"

Owing to the absence of two members, Council took no action on the tax increase proposal. Action on the budget was also deferred.

Council awarded a garbage contract for $21,300 to Dash Brothers, of Braddock.

17 Arrested in Raid Get Hearing Tonight

Seventeen men arrested in a raid on the Anchor Club, at 2206 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, Sunday night, will be arraigned before Burgess D. J. Madigan tonight. The club was pronounced as a disorderly place by Chief of Police William Stitt.

Baseball Season Nigh, No Sunday Game Ordinance

City Council has been reminded that the baseball season is at hand and that there is no city ordinance to authorize Sunday ball. This sign of spring came yesterday from City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, and it is believed it will get prompt attention in Council.

Dairymen Oppose New Market Scale

A protest of the price scale and marketing arrangement proposed by the State Milk Control Board for the Pittsburgh area was to be made in Harrisburg today by a delegation of the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association, headed by P. S. Brenneman, president. Brenneman indicated before departing for Harrisburg that objection will be made to placing transportation costs on dealers and to the limiting of each farmer's sale of grade "A" milk.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly 90 per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

DANDRUFF Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get some plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). This simple remedy never fails.

Ease Pain Now In Few Minutes

A Discovery That's Bringing Fast Relief To Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

SPONGE CAKE EGGS WIN FIRST AWARD

Lend Themselves to Many Clever Uses

Easter spirit certainly is pervading Prudence Penny's mail and today's recipes plainly show it. Not that housewives won't welcome such novel Easter suggestions as are put at their disposal.

First prize is for sponge cake Easter eggs which will lend themselves to many different clever uses. You'll like them not only for now, but all the year round, for after all, there aren't many such out-of-the-ordinary ways to prepare cake.

Keep watching the prize column for recipes to add to your file, and see that your favorites appear in it, by sending them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Recipes printed are awarded either a $5 prize or one of 10 $1 prizes. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. B. A. GEIER,
Birmingham and Florence avenues, Avalon.
SPONGE CAKE EGGS

Empty egg shells by making a hole about as large as a lead pencil in small end of egg. With cake tester or needle (long one) mix yolk and white so they come out easily. Rinse shells with cold water and set them aside to dry. Then fill them half full, no more, with sponge cake batter. Set the eggs into a pan of salt as you fill them, so they cannot tilt—ice cream salt will do nicely. Bake these sponge cake eggs, still standing in the pan of salt, in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until done. When you take them from the oven, let them cool, trim off any cake that may have baked up out of the shell, so that the shell will look unbroken. Serve these eggs without comment. Imagine the surprise of everyone when they begin to crack the shell and find sponge cake inside. One can tell when they are done by using a cake tester.

SPONGE CAKE RECIPE

One cup sifted cake flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Grated rind and juice of one-half lemon.
Five egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored.
Five egg whites.
One cup sifted sugar.

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and sift four more times. Add lemon rind and juice to beaten egg yolks and beat with rotary egg-beater until very thick and light. Beat egg whites with flat wire whisk until stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Fold in sugar, a small amount at a time. This amount can be reduced according to amount of eggs used, or amount of batter left over after filling egg shells can be baked in an ungreased tube pan.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

Box 97, Elene.
LEMON CAKE

Two cups sugar.
One-half cup butter.
Three eggs.
One and one-fourth cups milk.
Three level teaspoons of baking powder.
Grated rind of one lemon or two teaspoons of lemon extract.
One-half level teaspoon of salt.
Three cups flour.

Beat butter with half the sugar, add gradually the remainder of sugar and the well-beaten eggs. Next put in the grated lemon, then the milk and lastly the flour, sifted with the baking powder and salt. Bake about 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Pour with lemon frosting.

LEMON FROSTING

Juice of two lemons or four tablespoons of lemon extract. About two and one-half cups powdered sugar. Put juice of lemons in a dish, add sugar until thick enough to spread. Smooth icing with a thin-bladed knife that has been dipped in warm water.

MRS. BERTHA WISE,
557 North avenue, Verona.
TO CAN BEETS

Wash and boil 15 or 20 minutes. Slip skin off. Pack in jars, if large, slice thin, if small, pack whole in the jar. Fill jar with boiling water. Partly seal. Process for three hours in oven (275 degrees F.). Remove from oven and seal immediately.

MRS. VALENTINE HOHMAN,
3925 Evergreen road.
NO-OIL SALAD DRESSING

One egg yolk.
One and one-third cup canned milk.
One teaspoon mustard.
Teaspoon salt.
One-half cup vinegar.

Beat the egg yolk and add the other ingredients as listed. Beat until well blended. Allow to stand a while until it gets thick.

MRS. M. J. SPEGAR, JR.,
617 Morrell avenue, Connellsville.
STUFFED TURKEYS

Get pork chops, allowing one chop for a person. Have them cut a good inch thick, ask to have a pocket inserted in each chop. Make a dressing as you would for a chicken, a mixture of white bread, seasoned with onions, salt and pepper. Moisten with melted butter. Now stuff the chops and the "turkeys" are ready for the oven. Instead of covering with water try baking them in milk or a mixture of milk and water. Roast for an hour or until the turkeys are nice and brown.

MRS. V. URASEK,
4618 Playport street, Homestead.
PARK AVENUE SALAD

Two tablespoons chopped nuts.
One tablespoon cream cheese.
One cup mayonnaise.
Four dates, pitted.
Four halves canned pears.
Lettuce.
One tablespoon chopped preserved ginger.

Cream nuts, cheese and half of the mayonnaise to a soft paste, and stuff dates with the mixture. Place dates in pear cavities. Serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with remaining mayonnaise to which ginger has been added.

MRS. J. E. McCANDLESS,
8603 Pershing street,
SCOTCH OATCAKE

Two cups oatmeal, fine.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
Three tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon bacon drippings.
One-fourth baking soda (if desired).
Enough water to hold together.

Sift dry ingredients, then add melted butter and drippings, mix well, then add enough water to hold together so the dough may be rolled out easily. Roll thin and cut in squares or any desired shape.

MRS. R. G. TODD,
R. F. D. No. 4, Anderson road, Millvale.
PEACH CONSERVE

Four pounds ripe peaches.
One grated pineapple.
One grated orange.
One lemon (rind and all).
One-half pound blanched almonds, chopped fine.
One-half pound seeded raisins.
One pound of sugar to every pint of pulp.

Put all through coarse food chopper, except raisins, leaving them whole. Place all but the almonds in cooking utensil and boil slowly till the stage of a rolling boil, then add almonds, cook until rich and thick, stirring constantly.

MRS. JOHN SCOTT,
409 N. Winebiddle avenue.
MAITRE D'HOTEL POTATOES

Wash, pare and shape potatoes in balls, using a French vegetable cutter, or cut potatoes in one-half inch cubes. There should be two cups of potatoes. Soak 15 minutes in cold water and cook in boiling salted water to cover until soft. Drain and add maitre d'hotel butter.

MAITRE D'HOTEL BUTTER

Three tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-half tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

Cream butter, add lemon juice very slowly. Then add salt, pepper and parsley.

FRANCES CONRAD,
162 Beaver street, New Brighton.
KOLACHES

One cake yeast mixed with one teaspoonful sugar, one cup milk scalded and cooled to luke warm; add two cup of flour to make a soft sponge. Let raise until double in bulk. Cream together one cup sugar and one cup butter, add to sponge. Add two cups of milk scalded and cooled, three eggs, about six cups of flour making a dough soft as can be handled. Work well and put in warm place to raise. When double in bulk turn out on a molding board. Make up into buns, let raise. Take finger tips and make a hole in the center. Fill with prune preserves, jam or any sweetened fruit desired. Put in the oven at once. Bake 15 or 20 minutes. When baked put powdered sugar over the top.

MRS. LESLIE BENNETT,
551 Parker street, Verona.
CUCUMBER OIL PICKLES

Take 200 small cucumbers.
Six small onions.
One-half cup celery seed.
One-fourth cup black pepper.
One-half cup mustard seed.
Eight cups cider vinegar.
Eight cups sugar.
One cup olive oil.

Wash cucumbers and slice thin. Slice onions with cucumbers and soak overnight in salt water strong enough to float an egg. Drain, but do not wash. Boil vinegar, sugar and spices together. Pour over cucumbers. Add olive oil and cook near boiling point until pickles change color. Pack in jars and seal immediately.

Holy Week Sermonette

Today's Lenten sermonette is given by the Rev. Richard Boyd Johnson, pastor of the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, Friendship and Pacific avenues. The Rev. Johnson is one of a group of representative ministers writing special Lenten sermons for the Sun-Telegraph under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches.

"From the Tower of Holy Week"

He was a carillonneur. It was Sunday afternoon, February 18, 1934. In the bell tower of a great New York church, he was in the midst of his regular recital, playing for the community round about. Looking out of the window from the cabin where the clavier is housed, high up in the top of the tower, he saw the Hudson reaching toward the bay, while his mind's eye traveled down the harbor and out to sea, and saw his own beloved Belgium, where his king, Albert, lay dead.

Under his touch on the clavier keyboard, the notes of the last number of his program died away. There was a long pause and then there came out from the tower sonorous and majestic music—Chopin's Funeral March. Kamiel Lefevere was, for all intents and purposes, in Belgium; the carillon was a Belgian carillon; a Belgian citizen was paying his high respects to his dead king.

Each of us in the midst of the regular routine of the daily task, playing his little tune on the carillon of life, cannot but pause for a moment and, from his little cabin high up in the tower of holy week, look off wistfully toward the sea. This instrument upon which we play is only clay; but the spirit, which animates it, can take its staff in hand and walk amid the stars and think God's thoughts after Him!

Every Christian, sometimes during this week, will pause and pay reverent tribute to King Jesus, who "was dead and, behold, is alive forevermore!"

AUTO INDUSTRY PEACE BOON TO TRADE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Last week was marked by growing uncertainties and alarms in the business world, but business activity was little affected, and the latest weekly data shows further expansion. Now that a temporary arrangement has been worked out for keeping the peace in automobile industry, we may expect the upward trend to be continued.

The chief indications of the hesitation caused by labor difficulties were seen in some letdown in steel making and in wholesale commodity markets. Both should be temporary. The compromise formula worked out to stop the automobile strike should at least postpone the larger labor clashes for some time and allow steel production and consumption to go ahead. The reaction in commodity markets was partly caused by buyers' uncertainty over strikes. They can now proceed.

The general slowness of commodity prices to reflect the devaluation of the dollar and the huge supplies of money and credit available in the country show how dependent prices are upon demand. The government has amply attended to the supply of currency. It has broadened the "monetary base" by devaluing the dollar, so that its gold hoard could now make about 70 per cent more dollars. It has piled up record excess reserves of bank credit.

MUCH TO BE ACCOMPLISHED

The government has also done much to make a sort of demand by its huge spending policy. Since the first inflationary uprush of last summer, this government spending has been the chief factor in the demand for money and credit.

But it still remains to get the normal private or business demand to functioning. Such a demand goes with production. It brings a spending that is based on economically earned income, and which can therefore go on indefinitely. That is what we need.

When laborers are producing enough values to earn large payrolls, and employers are making enough profits to hire many laborers, demand and spending will take care of themselves. Then there will be no trouble with money or the price level. Goods will circulate, and that will make the basis for demand for the ample supplies of money and credit now existing.

Then the devalued dollar will circulate, and its depreciation will be reflected in higher prices.

It is encouraging, I think, that the responsibilities of the situation have driven the administration to moderate its more radical tendencies. This is seen in the compromise on the automobile labor issue, the withdrawal of the NRA proposal for a flat reduction in hours and increase in wage rates, the willingness to consider amendments to the stock exchange bill and the securities act, and a tendency to lean back on price fixing.

DANGERS REVEALED

Incidentally, too, some appreciation of the dangers of its monetary theories are now being shown. First, the Treasury last week stopped the policy of piling up bank credit reserves by paying out those greenback gold certificates. Second, the administration obviously tried to sell off the silver crowd. Third, it showed moderation in the proposals for setting up "intermediate credit banks" for the purpose of making five-year loans to business concerns for working capital.

Apparently the latter scheme is to be kept "orthodox" by not drawing directly on government credit and by keeping the new banks subject to Federal Reserve control.

As to the strike "settlement," it is a compromise and leaves unsettled the fundamental issue of the fitness of the A. F. of L. as an agency for collective bargaining. The President has done well to say that he expects "organizations of employes to observe the same ethical and moral responsibilities" as the employers. But that is easier said than done, when they are organized in the A. F. of L. way. We have not heard the last of strikes.

WESTINGHOUSE GROUP MEETS

About 125 representatives of department stores, public utility dealers and salesmen are the guests of the Danforth Company, Allegheny County distributors for Westinghouse, at their annual spring sales meeting.

The program provides a trip through the factory. Addresses will be made by I. W. Danforth, of Pittsburgh; P. Y. Danley, manager of the refrigeration division of Westinghouse; R. C. Cosgrove, manager of the domestic refrigeration department; J. F. O'Donnell, merchandise manager of the central district; J. I. Hugo, sales promotion manager of the central district, and R. G. Eckhardt, sales manager of the Danforth Company. A banquet will follow the meeting.

World Lead Output Lower in February

NEW YORK, March 27.—The American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports world lead production in February at 117,415 short tons against 122,610 in January and 96,183 in February, 1933.

Daily Oil Output Up 11,451 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., March 27.—Domestic crude oil output during the week ended March 24 averaged 2,459,315 barrels daily, an increase of 11,451 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

STOCKS BREAK ON CONTROL NEWS

NEW YORK, March 27.—Stocks pointed downward today following overnight news that the President had requested Congress to pass an exchange regulatory bill "with teeth in it."

For half an hour the ticker tape ran from 1 to 5 minutes behind floor transactions and leading issues dropped 1 to 3 or more points. The selling rush, which found blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares appearing, then died almost as quickly as it began and moderate rallying tendencies appeared. Dullness, however, accompanied the recoveries.

Wheat, down more than 2 cents a bushel at one time, pared its losses. Cotton was off more than 50 cents a bale. Silver and rubber sagged. Corporation bonds were heavy, but United States government securities were firm. International dollar rates improved.

CHEMICAL DROPS

Shares of Allied Chemical, American Commercial Alcohol and United States Industrial Alcohol yielded about 4 points each. Those down 1 to 3 points included American Telephone, Chrysler, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, United States Steel, Auburn, Western Union, Sears, Roebuck, Bethlehem Steel, American Tobacco B, Case, Du Pont, United States Smelting, American Smelting, Schenley, National Distillers, Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific, United Aircraft and Douglas.

Brokerage circles generally had come to accept the probability of a control measure being enacted this session. At the same time, there was some hope that all of the original "teeth" would not be present when the bill became a law. The President's reiteration that he was committed to "definite regulation of exchanges" consequently was far from comforting to the financial district.

SEATS LOWER

With the Washington tidings still fresh, the speculative ranks were further confused by announcement of another decline in the price of stock exchange seats. The second $85,000 and the third $83,000. The last quotation represented a drop of $29,000 from a transfer made yesterday. Yesterday's sale, however, was $7,000 above the price paid last week, when the quotation dropped $85,000. In 1932 a membership sold for $68,000, the lowest price since 1919.

D. R. G. OFFERS BOND PLAN

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Directors of the Denver, Rio Grande and Western Railroad today offered holders of the general mortgage 5 per cent bonds, half of the interest which was due February 1, in cash and requested that they withhold presentation of coupons due August 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, until December 1, 1935.

In announcing the plan, T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the board, said it was hoped the proposed arrangement would "continue the company in the list of solvent roads."

Schmuacher added the plan had been worked out with the harmonious support of both the James and Van Sweringen interests, which jointly control the property.

Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, has resigned from the board of the Western Pacific Railroad Corporation.

The corporation, controlled by the Arthur Curtiss James group, owns Western Pacific Railroad Company, which has a 50 per cent interest in the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad Company.

Reliance Sales Set New Weekly Record

Breaking all records for Reliance agency production for one week, the Western Pennsylvania Department of Reliance Life Insurance Company last week made 438 sales for $1,324,135 of life insurance in the Pittsburgh district. This was more sales and volume than in the entire month of March, 1933. Field Manager N. H. Wiedner led in personal production with 16 sales. H. T. Burnett, manager, said:

"The newspaper advertising in connection with financial independence week helped us materially to set this record. In many instances, salesmen found that prospects had obtained the idea of financial independence through life insurance from the newspaper ads and invited the agent to apply this idea to the prospect's personal needs."

North American Car Wins Rate Decision

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The Interstate Commerce Commission rejected proposal of railroads to reduce from 2 cents to 1 cent per mile, the allowance paid the North American Car Corporation, for the use of mechanical refrigeration cars.

Dividend News

Newmont Mining

Newmont Mining Corporation declared a dividend of 50 cents, payable April 30 to record of April 6. The last previous disbursement was $1 on April 15, 1931. Directors stated this distribution should be regarded simply as a return out of earned surplus and not as the establishment of a dividend basis or policy for the future formulation of which should not in the opinion of the board be attempted at this time.

SOUTH, KEN HIGH AWAIT WHISTLE IN FLOOR CLASH

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Ryan Benching Explained. • Tigers Need Mental Lift.
Change of Luck Feared. Brown to Miss Walker.
Delehanty Mighty Hitter. Mat Blindness Denied.

Bill Terry frankly admits that the flaming spirit of Blondy Ryan had much to do with the success of the Giants last season. But Terry is a cold and methodical craftsman, who works only by slide rule and the law of percentage. His theory is that flaming spirit alone can't go on winning ball games indefinitely; that the chances are against its being successful two years in a row unless it is backed up by sound mechanical fielding and sound hitting. Ryan, though one of baseball's most romantic figures in a long time, is neither a sound fielder nor a good hitter, and that's why his job at shortstop was turned over to Travis Jackson.

Blondy Ryan

Advices from the Giant camp are to the effect that Jackson is in the lineup because Terry lacks confidence in Ryan. Blondy is unorthodox in his fielding. He takes every ball possible at his side instead of getting in front of it. His throwing is also unorthodox. His hitting is weak. Terry appears to feel that Ryan was very lucky last season, that everything broke for him, enabling him to make next to impossible plays to save games and to escape making fatal errors. Baseball luck will run with a man just so long and then quit him. Terry fears it might not ride with Ryan two years in succession, and that if it were to desert Blondy his spirit would be broken and what little mechanical skill he has would be ruined.

DELEHANTY RATED ABOVE FOXX AS HITTER

Connie Mack says Jimmy Foxx is the greatest right-hand hitter he ever developed, not excepting Al Simmons, but many veteran baseball men contend that before Mack's days in Philadelphia that city had in Ed Delehanty a mightier batsman than Foxx, Simmons, Nap Lajoie or any other right-hand Quakertown product. Ross Barnes, Pete Browning and Dan Brouthers led two major leagues in hitting, but Delehanty was the only clouter of any type to finish first in both of the present big loops. Ed topped the National in 1899 with an average of .408, and the American in 1902 with .376.

In 16 major league seasons, Delehanty hit above the .300 mark 13 times and twice reached or passed .400. He was one of only three players ever to make four home runs in a major league game. In 1899, his best year, he amassed 234 hits in 145 times at bat and set a record, 56 two-baggers, that stood until three years ago as a National League high mark. Smashes against or over the fence came to be known as Delehanty bunts. In 16 seasons the great slugger made a grand batting average of .346. And all at a time when the ball was dead, parks were larger, and there was no ban on trick pitching, Del's only advantage over present-day hitters being that there was no foul-strike rule. When George England, former Pittsburgh police magistrate, was pitching for Mansfield, O., in the old Tri-State League in 1887, Delehanty was his catcher, but later Ed became an outfielder. Del's career was brought to a tragic close in 1903, when he jumped or fell from a train crossing the Niagara River and was drowned.

SECOND-DIVISION COMPLEX TIGER BARRIER

One important part of Mickey Cochrane's managerial job in Detroit will be to change a situation that finds the club second division minded. The Tigers have not finished among the first four since 1927. The players have become accustomed to second flight ranking, and lack the extra urge or spurt that distinguishes the first-division type from the kind usually found in the lower half of the standing. A first-division player is of the winning kind, a good competitor and an aggressive performer. Detroit has lacked men of that type, but gains two this year in Cochrane and Goose Goslin, and Tiger critics and fans are hopeful that the influence of the pair will give the entire club the first-division spirit.

Mickey Cochrane

Cochrane will try to improve conditions from another angle by popping up the infield practice. He says teams are judged by their infield drills before a game. If the infield is aggressive and good mechanically, the customers gets a fine impression, he remarks, but they become prejudiced against a club if the practice is slow and sloppy.

FLUNKING OF WALKER BLOW TO BROWN

The academic failure which forced Howard (Mickey) Walker out of Brown University, after a brilliant football showing as a freshman and a sophomore, is viewed as a severe blow to the gridiron hopes of the Bruins for next season.

Old-timers in Providence say a possible all-time Brown halfback has been lost in the premature departure of Mickey from college. They think he would have been a world-beater next fall, worthy of being ranked with such famous Brown ball carriers as Gammons, Fultz, Pollard, Sprackling, Keefer, Mayhew, Purdy and McKay. Coach Tuss McLaughry had counted on having a great pair in harness with Fritz Pollard, Jr., coming up from the freshman team to join Walker, but now the son of Brown's famous Negro back of earlier days must shoulder the attacking burden practically alone.

DENIES WRESTLING LEADS TO BLINDNESS

They may, and do, say a lot of other things about wrestling, but Jack Curley vigorously denies reports received by the Society for the Prevention of Blindness that grapplers are in imminent danger of going blind from trachoma, an irritation of the eyes, due to bodily contact with perspiring opponents and the dust and rosin of the mat. Curley, who for almost half a century has promoted wrestling matches and managed thousands of matmen all over the world, says that in his long career he never knew of a wrestler's going blind. Even pink eye has disappeared, he says, as every grappler nowadays knows enough to wash his eyes after a match and they have an ointment which is of especial value.

Jack Curley

Curley holds that the blindness of many fighters is due to beatings about the eyes or getting rosin in them from the gloves of opponents. He contends that acrobats and tumblers are in greater danger than wrestlers because they appear oftener and do not change their mats after every performance, as do the grunt-and-groaners. Even pole vaulters, tumbling into sand pits to ease their falls, are in greater peril, according to the veteran, and he adds that frequently men and women who make a practice of diving from great heights go completely and permanently blind. But professional wrestlers, Curley argues, are mature men who know how to take care of themselves on and off the mat, and he has yet to learn of a single case of blindness among them.

PITT TO MEET STATE AGAIN IN 1935

Pitt sends out its varsity basketball team today and gives out its 1935 football schedule.

The Panther passers, in charge of Dr. H. C. Carlson, head coach, departed early this morning by automobile for Atlanta, Ga., and the annual convention of the Basketball Coaches' Association of America. Thursday and Friday the Panthers will take part in 20-minute demonstration games against the DeKalb Teachers' College team of DeKalb, Ill. En route, the Blue and Gold will stop off tomorrow at Columbia, S. C., where it will take on the South Carolina varsity. The Southerners have lost one game out of the last 36. Eddie Nevergold, of Beaver, Pa., is the team's center and star.

CRIBBS WITH TEAM

Included in the Pitt party was Don McCamant, Charley and Skippy Hughes, Russ Ochsenhirt, Claire Cribbs, Pete Noon, Francis Wainio and Ted Roderick. Cribbs, still on the mend after being injured in the game with Westminster, will not take part in the games. The squad is due back in town next Monday night.

The 1935 grid card is featured by the addition of Fordham and the return to the slate of Penn State and the Army. Eight games are on the calendar to date, with one more, the opener, to be added.

The game with the Fordham Rams will be played in New York City, probably at the Yankee Stadium, November 2. Army will come here the week following and fetch along the entire corps of cadets as it did three years ago.

Penn State sends its Nittany Lions here for a tussle October 26. West Virginia makes its first appearance in Pittsburgh against Pitt since 1931 on October 12; Wash-Jeff will be met at Washington, Pa., October 6; Nebraska's Cornhuskers will return for a fray November 16 and the annual game with Carnegie Tech will be played on Thanksgiving Day.

W. VA. OUT APRIL 9

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 27.—(AP.)—West Virginia University's spring football practice will get under way April 9, Coach Charles C. (Trusty) Tallman has notified candidates for the team.

About 50 youths are expected to report to the new mentor, who was reported recently to the varsity job after four years spent directing the freshmen squads.

Hickey Announces Association Umpires

CHICAGO, March 27.—(INS.)—T. J. Hickey, president of the American Association, has announced the roster of umpires who will arbitrate the association ball games for 1934.

The umpires are Larry Goetz, George Johnson, C. E. Johnston, W. F. Clayton, E. J. McLaughlin, Thomas P. Dunn, Pat Donahue and Chester Swanson. Donahue and Swanson are new men, the former coming from the Western League and Swanson from the association's reserve list.

Even in bike racing, the blonds appear to have it.

No matter which of the 11 contesting teams winds up out in front in Pittsburgh's first international six-day bicycle race, which is keeping the boys up late and excited at Duquesne Garden, young Jules Audy, platinum-pated Canadian star, a daring rider and crack sprinter, is the darling of the crowd. The folks gasp when his husky partner, the famous Torchy Peden, literally picks the lithe Jules up and throws him forward on a relief. They cheer when he gives it the gun on a sprint and when he stars a jam. In fact, the battle cry of the meet is:

"Come on, Audy!"

PEDEN, AUDY LEAD

Audy and Peden are riding along at the head of the pack this afternoon after 38 hours, one lap ahead of their nearest competitors and going strong. They have traveled 582 miles and nine laps to date. Tied for second place in ground covered is the veteran Reggie McNamara and Tony Beckman, the American team, Otto Petri and Fred Zach, the German-Swiss pair, and Marcell Boogmans and S. Van Slambrouck, of Belgium, one lap behind.

Next in line, and sporting the most points, is the world champion duo of Piet Van Kempen, one of the sport's greatest sprinters, and his partner, Frank Bartell, who are two laps back of the leaders, but sport a point total of 142.

The champions did themselves plenty of good during the midnight sprints last night. They won four of the 10 two-mile dashes.

There are six teams tied for the sixth position. So evenly is the field matched that the six last-place teams are only three laps behind the leaders, which, at this point in the race, is about as great a handicap as dampness is to a fish.

McNamara and Beckman, who took things comparatively easy for the first 24 hours of action, opened up after the midnight sprint series and picked themselves up no fewer than three laps. McNamara started one of the most exciting jams of the grind and was afforded excellent support by Beckman.

LEPAGE FALLS

Early this morning Henri LePage, of France, who has been dogged by ill racing fortune since the start of the race, toppled from his bike from exhaustion and had to be revived. He fell once last night just after he and his partner, Z. St. Laurent, had stolen a lap, and later St. Laurent took a nasty tumble. LePage, who wears No. 13, was beset by a regular epidemic of punctures.

CRACK GOLFERS AFTER TITLE

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27.—(AP.)—Harold Calaway, Pinehurst professional, shot a 72, one over par, to take an early lead today in the first round of the thirty-second annual North and South open golf tournament here. A stiff, cold wind swept across the sand hills, making scoring difficult.

Harold McSpaden, Kansas City pro, also carded a 72, and Johnny Mears, of Garden City, N. Y., was third among the early finishers with 73.

Vincent Eldred, Pittsburgh pro, had 40-37—77, and Judd Pollock, Grove City, (Pa.) amateur, had 46-44—90.

HOPPE WINS IN CUE PLAY

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe, veteran New York star, opened his campaign for the international 18.2 balkline billiard championship last night by trouncing Kinrey Matsuyama, tiny Japanese player, 400 to 167, in the inaugural match of the tournament. Hoppe needed eleven innings to win.

Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Ora Morningstor, 60-year-old star from San Diego, Cal., meet in this afternoon's match and Matsuyama will tackle Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, tonight.

A's Get Catcher In Unusual Deal

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 27.—(INS.)—In an unusual player deal the Philadelphia Athletics have purchased Hank Erickson, Louisville catcher, in exchange for Infielder George Detore and Outfielder Ray Radcliffe and an unrevealed sum of cash. Capt. William Neal, general manager of the Colonels, announced here today.

Erickson will remain with the Louisville Club until the close of the season, when he will report to Connie Mack. Detore and Radcliffe, however, will report to the Louisville Club this week-end at Memphis, where the Colonels play an exhibition series.

AMATEUR RING PLANS SHAPED

The shaping up of the amateur boxing situation to the satisfaction of the State Athletic Commission was begun at a meeting at the Keystone A. C. yesterday between Commissioner Dr. W. D. McClelland and the members of the boxing committee of the A. A. U. A statement is to be issued by the commissioner some time today covering the details of the "peace pact."

One of the conditions is understood to be the definite reduction of A. A. U. sanction fee for shows from $10 to $5.

The following attended, aside from the commissioner: W. S. Haddock and John T. Taylor, president and secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., and Stanley J. Waechter, A. J. Williams, Harry I. Neaman, Walter McVay, Harry Little, Ira Hurwick, Henry Blum, Albert Radacy, James Lodge, Pat Corr and Ernie Sesto.

Following a meeting with Haddock, Taylor and Hurwick at Commission headquarters at noon today, Commisioner McClelland issued a statement, concurred in by the A. A. U. officials, in which the latter admitted the authority of the commission to regulate their sport and promised to correct existing conditions not favored by the commission.

Finalists in the fight for the state scholastic basketball championship will be determined tonight when South High School, champion of the City League and District VIII, and New Kensington High School, champion of the W. P. I. A. L. and District VII, clash in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, and Reading High School, champion of District III, opposes Coal Township, champion of District IV, at Lancaster.

The two survivors in the regional finals tonight qualify to meet in the Pitt Stadium pavilion next Saturday night for the state championship. Lower Merion, the defending titleholder, was eliminated in a first-round game by Palmerton, which in turn fell before Reading.

HOPE TO CHASE JINX

New Kensington, the first W. P. I. A. L. entry in three years to get beyond the first round of the state eliminations, will strive to snap a two-year winning streak compiled by the City League contestant. Two years ago, Fifth Avenue High School, a team which failed to win its sectional title, was chosen to represent District VIII because it was the only local school to hold membership in the state group. Fifth Avenue surprised the district fans by defeating Braddock, W. P. I. A. L. champion, and advanced to the regional finals when it was checked by Erie Strong Vincent at Sharon.

Last season, South High School ruined the state title aspirations of Duquesne, W. P. I. A. L. kingpin and District VII representative. Like Fifth Avenue, South advances to the regional finals only to lose to Altoona at State College, Pa.

SEEKS FIRST TITLE

South, bent on being the first City League school to win the state championship, and New Kensington, hopeful of being the first W. P. I. A. L. titleholder since 1931 to carry off the laurels, shape up as two of the best quintets in the state and their battle tonight should prove a thriller from start to finish.

Both teams have appeared impressive in their first P. I. A. A. contests, South easily defeating Somerset and Huntingdon, while New Kensington has vanquished Erie East.

The lineups of the two contesting teams are composed of brilliant passers. Eddie Waugh and Harry Jeannette, at forwards for New Kensington, will find two worthy rivals in Joe Galiszewski and Eddie Milkovich, forwards of the South quintet. At center South will have a decided edge in Eddie Spotovich, hailed as the greatest pivot man in district scholastic circles. Opposed to

PIRATES OPEN TWO-GAME SERIES WITH HOLLYWOOD TODAY

CORSAIRS MAY SHIFT CAMP ON COAST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 27.—Their intensive major league competition was broken by the Pirates today as they journeyed to this resort town to meet the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League. Contests with Oscar Vitt's clever team are slated for this afternoon and tomorrow. As quickly as tomorrow's game is ended, the Pirates will hurry back to Los Angeles to be ready for a four-game series with the Cubs, which gets under way Thursday at Wrigley Field.

Larry French and Waite Hoyt will heckle the Stars this afternoon. The two veterans have reached a point of condition close to that desired when the real fight gets under way. Both are hard workers in the training season and either might be able to go the full nine-inning distance if this were necessary.

LOCALS IN LINEUP

Two Pittsburgh boys, Jimmy Levey and George Susce, will see action against the Buccos in the two-game series here. Levey and Susce both seemed to have insured retention by the Hollywood entry, which is given much consideration by Coast League experts when the pennant is up for discussion. The Buccos and Hollywood played two games here about 10 days ago, each club gaining a victory.

Fans of the Los Angeles district have a very high regard for the Buccos after seeing them in action against the Cubs and White Sox. The Buccos won two of their four games with the Cubs at Wrigley Field and then followed through by taking two more from the Chicago White Sox.

The Pittsburghers and White Sox are scheduled to play 12 more games on their long eastward trek which starts next Monday.

MAY MOVE CAMP

The Pirates may shift their training base here on the coast. Manager George Gibson yesterday looked over a layout some 20 miles southeast of Los Angeles, which had been highly recommended to him as a training site.

While the Pirates have no kick about the setup at Paso Robles, they would welcome a more convenient location and also one closer to Los Angeles. President William E. Benswanger said nothing definite had been decided with regards to 1935.

Chillysauce

Los Angeles streets are teeming with unemployed, but there are no zero blasts like those that sicken and discourage the unfortunates of the eastern cities. Kelly, Connolly and Cronin, three "Norwegian" Journalists in the Wrigley Field press box, are not content to throw their darts in print; they have a razzerry for almost any prominent customer in a box seat. Their informal announcements to celebrities in the choice seats are interesting, to say the least.

Pittsburghers and Western Pennsylvanians are here in bounteous numbers. Nearly every day brings home fans to the corridor of the Pirate hotel. Honus Wagner is kept busy renewing friendships made 30 years ago or more.

Larry French was host to a group of Pirates who enjoyed deep sea fishing in the Pacific, whose waters are only a mile or two from the home of the southpaw pitcher.

Eddie and Fritzie Zivic have won a home for themselves as a result of their fine showing in Coast cities.

Harry Lavagetto, 19-year-old Italian kid, has a priceless smile and, like most Latins, his teeth are as pretty pearls in a swarthy setting. Some of the Pirates insist on calling the youngster Tony. He is almost the same build as Tony Lazzeri, which means he is a bit over six feet and weighs 170 pounds.

Hap O'Connor says he knows a rookie pitcher who is training on doughnuts in order to develop a good sinker.

The movie lots claimed the attention of many of the Pirates on their off-day.

Paul Waner, Fred Lindstrom and Arky Vaughan are setting a terrific clip with the bat. Brother Paul has gained a good workout by his travels on the bases. He was on eight times in two games with the Cubs, and in the White Sox series the American Leaguers gave up in disgust. Vaughan's home run smackers to right are swell and Lindy is crossing up all the opposing outfielders with his scattered punches.

BUTCH, BIREK K. O. VICTORS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 27.—Jimmy Grunich, local featherweight, knows today just why Mose Butch, of Pittsburgh, rates with the best of 'em. Butch put Grunich away in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night with a clean cut knockout.

Another Pittsburgher, Johnny Birek, won by a knockout, stopping Johnny Antonucci, also of Youngstown, in the second round of a scheduled eight-round scrap.

OGER BEATS ELLING

WHEELING, W. Va., March 27.—Paul Oger, of Moundsville, W. Va., won an unpopular decision over Max Elling, of Pittsburgh, in a 10-round bout here last night. Both boxers weighed 158 pounds.

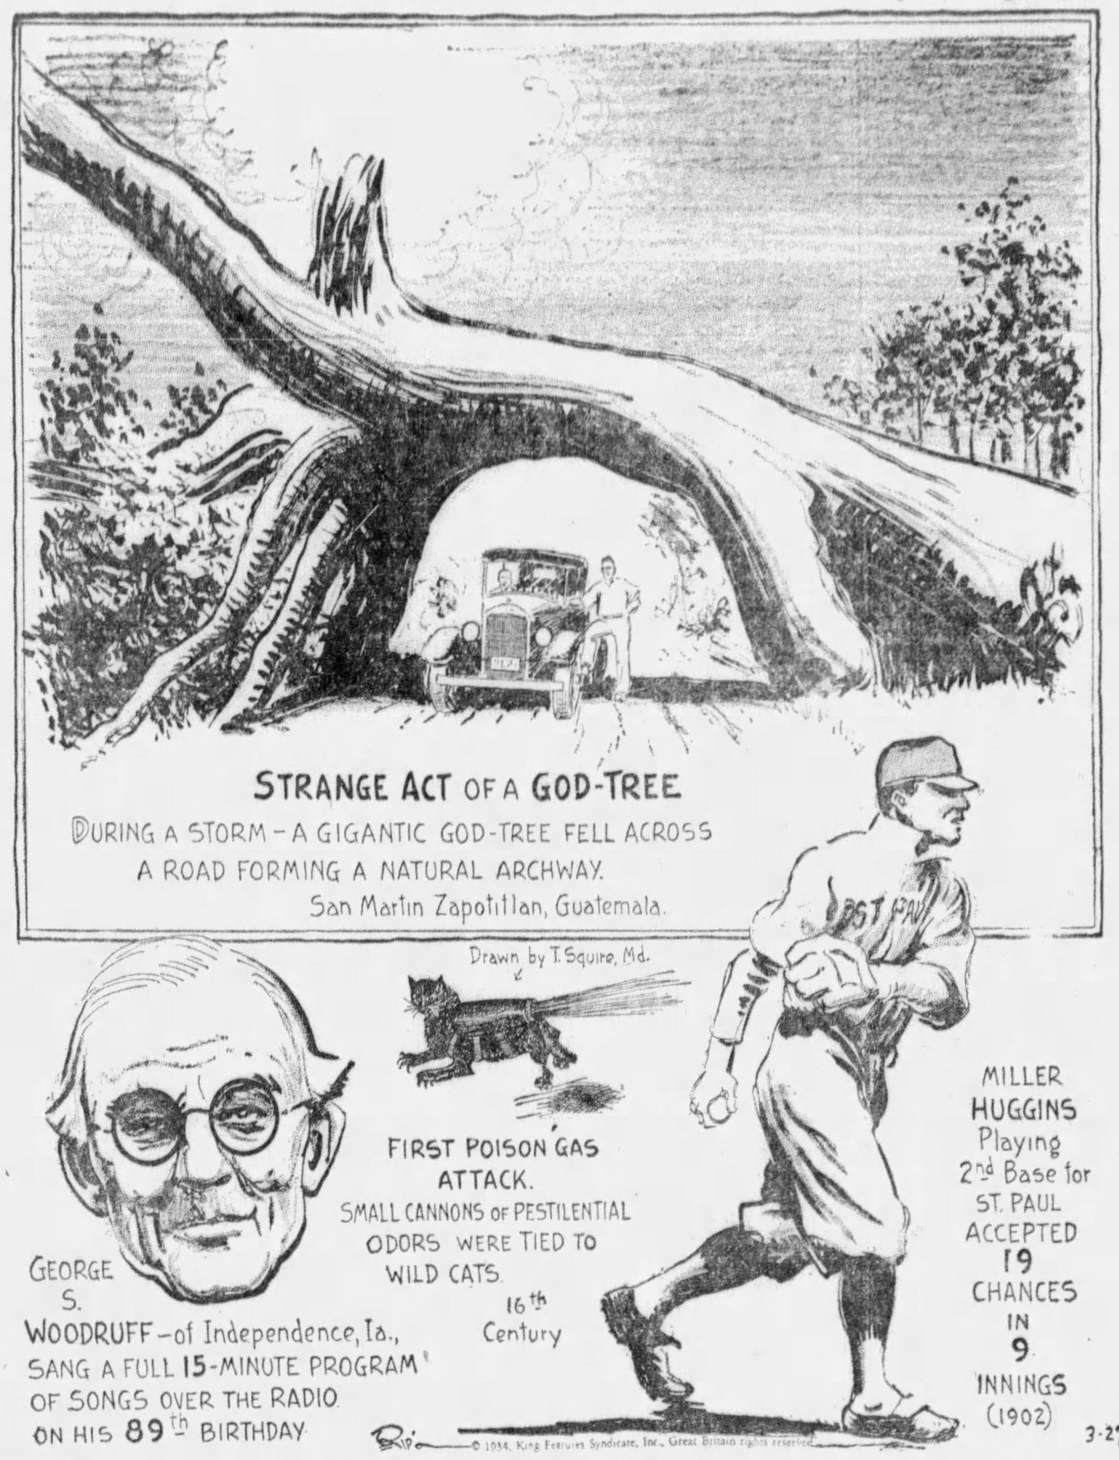
In the semi-final, Tony Rocco, of Bellaire, and Bob Brinkman, of Wheeling, drew in six rounds. Joe Mauer, of Bellaire, and Vic Wickers, of Pittsburgh, drew in four rounds; Kid Coleman, of Pittsburgh, whipped Al Brown, of Martins Ferry, in four, and Billy Rand, of Pittsburgh, won over Young Ernest, of Elm Grove, in another four rounder.

Six-Team Mushball League Is Formed

A six-team County Mushball League has been formed by D. S. Mamula, local sandlot baseball organizer, with Rankin, the Solomons, Harrys, Commercials, Brodericks and Colonials taking out franchises.

East Liberty section mushball teams will hold an organization meeting tonight. West End teams will gather tomorrow and North Side clubs will meet Thursday.

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: SILENT FOR 30 YEARS—Reb Israel Frommer, celebrated local character of Czortkow, Poland, did not speak a word or utter a sound for 30 years. This remarkable penance was self-imposed. It seems that Frommer, in an outburst of temper, cursed his newly-wedded wife, who soon after met a violent death, which Frommer feared was brought about by his abuse. He died in 1928, and the newspapers of Germany and Poland repeated again the story of his life and of the strange vow he never broke.

DUX TOURNEY ON TOMORROW

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Seven-thirty o'clock tomorrow night has been set as the starting time for the Pennsylvania and Ohio Duckpin Assoication tournament, to be rolled on the Forward Alleys. Extension of the deadline on entries from last Saturday night until last night brought in a number of additional starters.

The opening night's schedule follows:

7:30 p. m.—C. H. Shomo, K. Mundo, B. Herman, H. Hudock, J. Groy, H. Wissman, J. McWhiney, C. Vitievitch and Arcade No. 1 and No. 2, doubles.

8:15 p. m.—Same lineup as 7:30 doubles for singles.

9 p. m.—R. C. Crawford, C. J. Thomas, D. R. Reiter, W. Phillips, J. Dickson, H. Wierts, Knox Court teams, Pollock, Ludwig, Deluca, Perhack, Small, L. Golvash, doubles.

9:45 p. m.—Same lineup as 9 o'clock doubles for singles competition.

10:30 p. m.—Islays, Coral Recreation, Strand, Knox-Court, Arcade No. 1 and No. 2, Emerson No. 1, Saunier-Wilhelm, Forward Recreation No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3, five-men teams.

The Central Pittsburgh Duckpin League swings into action again tonight. The leading Casino No. 1 team will roll against Atlantic and the second-place Center No. 1 outfit, which is three games behind the leader vies with New Plaza. In other matches, R. & G. No. 2 meets Iroquois, Primrose rolls Arcade No. 1, Auditorium opposes Dispatch No. 2, Center No. 2 engages Elba, Casino No. 2 takes on Duquesne Club, Arcade No. 2 is paired with R. & G. No. 1, and Dispatch No. 1 meets Pearl.

Wilkie Lachendro, star local pinman, has been turning in some fine scores to lead this league with a 176.8 average. Courage, his nearest rival, is only two points behind. Lachendro is leading in the same department in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

The third-place Arcade No. 1 team holds the season marks for one and three games, 1,015 and 2,950, in the Central circuit. Berhar's 261 score and Weimer's 665 gives it top honors.

Notre Dame Plans Catholic Track Meet

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 27.—(AP.)—Plans for an annual Catholic interscholastic outdoor track and field championship meet at Notre Dame June 1, have been announced by Athletic Director Elmer Layden and John P. Nicholson, Irish track coach.

The meet will be similar to the University of Chicago's famous prep meet. It will be open to all Catholic high schools of the country, and is expected to attract a heavy representation from the East.

JOCKEY GETS DOUBLE

MIAMI, Fla., March 27.—(INS.)—Jockey Mattoli scored a riding double at Tropical Park yesterday afternoon completing it with Field Goal which won the fifth and best race on the card handily by three lengths over Chuck B. Third money went to Impeach. Mattoli had the leg up on Luck In, which romped to victory in the third.

DORATY BRINGS LEAFS HOPE

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Ken Doraty, smallest man on the team, has come to the aid of the Toronto Maple Leafs once more, just when they needed him most.

Hero of the National Hockey League playoffs a year ago, Doraty returned to the headlines again last night as he led the Leafs to a 3-1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings in the third game of the playoff series between the two first-place clubs. He scored his team's first two goals, enough, as it turned out, to clinch the victory.

Despite the triumph, Toronto's position remained precarious. The Red Wings won the first two games of the series on Toronto's home ice and a Detroit victory either tomorrow night or Friday will give the Red Wings the series.

N. Y. MAY GET LEGAL BETTING

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—(AP.)—Turfmen arriving for important hearings on New York state's racing snarl found today that an unexpected compromise had helped smooth the way toward legalized cash betting.

Senator John J. Dunnigan, New York City Democrat, who had been at odds with the Jockey Club, powerful racing body, amended the bill last night to leave considerable power over racing in the hands of the club.

Appeals from any action of the club in denying or revoking licenses will not go to the new commission, as planned, but will go before joint sessions of three Jockey Club stewards and the three racing commissioners.

FLORIDA PROBE ON

MIAMI, Fla., March 27.—(AP.)—Behind closed doors the State Racing Commission yesterday heard detailed testimony of alleged irregularities in the pari-mutuel department of Tropical Park here, where the last week of thoroughbred horse racing in Florida this winter is being held.

Nearly two score of witnesses were summoned before the hearing, at which commission members said they would "go to the bottom" of an alleged conspiracy they declared was designed to defraud the betting public out of thousands of dollars.

HEIDELBERG GETS TEST IN SLOBODAS

By TOM BIRKS

When the Chicago Sloboda soccer team steps upon Greenlee Field next Sunday afternoon to battle Heidelberg in the western final of the national amateur cup, it will risk a fine record of having gone through three seasons of league soccer without defeat.

The team, organized by the Jugo-Slav Society never has been beaten as a member of the Illinois International League. No player on the club is over 24 years of age. The club has played 16 league games this season.

The center forward position is held down by a boy named Tom Andrews, and soccer critics around the Windy City claim this lad is a real star. He shoots with either foot and leads his teammates to great advantage. He usually gets the goals when goals are needed, so Pavlick, the Heidelberg center halfback, is going to be in for a busy afternoon.

The Chicago team lines up as follows: Pennycock, goal; Coylich and Shorn, fullbacks; Hedley, Best and Kastulovich, halfbacks; Patterson, Meikle, Andrews, Walton and Fraser, forwards.

From the names of the squad it would seem that quite a number of old country players are on the team. Dr. Rudolph Zerdun, of the Jugo-Slav organization, is president of the club and will be in charge of the team, which is expected to arrive in Pittsburgh on Saturday morning, and will be quartered at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

There is a special meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Football Association at headquarters tonight. It is possible the governing body will act upon the Curry-Gallatin game of last Sunday.

Tri-State Carnival Carded for April 28

WHEELING, W. Va., March 27.—Plans have been completed for the seventh annual tri-state track and field meet of high school teams April 28 in this city. Approximately 100 Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia teams will participate. The event is being sponsored by the high school athletic associations of West Virginia and Ohio.

Wheeling won the first meet in 1928, Parkersburg took first honors the following two years and the Triadelphia High School won the next three in a row.

WALTER BERGER MAY COACH AT MUNHALL

Walter Berger, former Allegheny College football and basketball star, may be the next head coach at Munhall High School.

According to a report from Munhall, Dick Toline, former Waynesburg College star, will not be re-engaged after the completion of the present school term. Toline has been at Munhall for the past three years.

ASCHMAN SELECTED

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Carl Aschman, former grid coach at California State Teachers' College, has been signed as football and basketball mentor for the combined Brownsville and South Brownsville high schools. The schools will be merged July 1.

Aschman, coach at California for five seasons, is a Washington and Jefferson graduate and starred as center with the Presidents' football team a few years ago.

LOCAL BOWLING TEAMS MISS PRIZES

PEORIA, Ill., March 27.—Of the eight Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia district teams rolling in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament here last night, but one produced a score that will mean a piece of the prize money. This was the Reeves five, of Dover, O. It hit 2,793 from a mediocre first score of 853. Its next games were 987 and 953.

The Carolina team, of Huntington, W. Va., was close to the money with 2,744, but a poor opening game held it back. Acacia, of Parkersburg, also was on the border line, getting 2,733.

During the late afternoon rolling but one of six district bowlers in action hit a hefty count, this being H. Schmeer, who had 614 in the singles.

Nuss brothers, of Homestead, Pa., wound up with a team score of 2,723, and Old Reliable, of Greensburg, rolled 2,364.

V. Bartholemew and L. Schmidt, of Wooster, will cash in on their singles series of 621 and 601. The scores:

DAVIS JUMPS CARD CAMP

BRADENTON, Fla., March 27.—(AP.)—Outfielder George Davis, obtained by the St. Louis Cardinals from the New York Giants in the trade for George Watkins, has jumped his new club.

Davis telegraphed Cardinals officials he had to get out of the South for a few days, and it was presumed he had gone to his home at Bridgeport, Conn. President Branch Rickey was at a loss to explain the action, but said:

"Davis is signed. It is not a case of dissatisfaction with his contract."

Baseball Briefs

International News Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—The World Champion New York Giants were scheduled to open a two-game exhibition series here today with the Buffalo Bisons of the International League, after which they will start their trek northward. Manager Bill Terry is frankly worried over his team's failure to function championship style. Yesterday Manager Travis Jackson had replaced Bonny Ryan as the first-string shortstop.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The Yankees were still holding up Lyn Lary as bait today as the pressed their drive to swing a trade for a pitcher, but as yet no one seems to want to talk business. Rumors were rife that the Yanks and the Indians were cooking up a swap, but apparently the negotiations fell through.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Casey Stengel and his Dodgers today planned to take things easy until Thursday when the Brooklyn team renews its rivalry with the World Champion New York team. Stengel is not at all alarmed over the pitching situation on his club and is making every effort to swing a deal for a southpaw.

Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Fred Frankhouse limited the Red Sox to five scattered hits yesterday to give the Braves a 9-1 victory in the first game these Boston major league teams have ever played in the South. The score by innings:

SPORT VIGNETTES

'Member Loudoun Campbell, the good featherweight boxer, who did his battling in the ring from 1893 to 1906 and met Terrible Terry McGovern twice in four-round bouts at the old Bijou Theater here? . . . And knocked out Spider Kelly in San Francisco, and Larry Burns in 20 rounds at the Coney Island A. C., and boxed Jack McClelland and all of the other good ones of his time, and later was a referee? . . . 'Member him, huh? . . . Well, the same Loudoun is running for Congress from the Thirty-third Congressional District in the primary on May 15. That district takes in the Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-eighth Wards.

Mr. Campbell

The Campbells, by the way, have quite an interesting history . . . Loudoun's great-great-grandfather on his father's side captained the privateer Enterprise during the Revolutionary War and captured and sank 18 British vessels in the Chesapeake Bay, while his great-grandfather on his mother's side joined the Continental Army at Trenton, N. J., while just a boy, attaching himself to the famous Lighthorse Harry Lee Legion . . During his fighting days, Loudoun was managed by Buck Cornelius and Red Mason . . . In recent years he has been working for the city.

Two former Martins Ferry, (O.) High School stars will be active in Army football next fall, it develops with the news that Lieut. Cy Letzelter, former Carnegie Tech star back, who is stationed at Vancouver, Wash., has been named coach of the Plebe backfield at the Point for next fall... One of his pupils will be Bill Dorsey, who left Pitt to go to the military academy...Letzelter gave Dorsey his first instruction in backfield play at Martins Ferry, and Dorsey and Cy are rated the two best fullbacks ever turned out there...Earl Loucks, former W. & J. star and later Greensburg High School coach, is the mentor of the Ferryites.

Incidentally, Letzelter made a great record for himself against the Rockne-coached Notre Dame elevens during his career at Tech...He played with the Tartans in 1926, '27 and '28, and in 1926 scored a touchdown and kicked a touchdown goal...The teams did not meet in 1927, but, in his senior year, at South Bend, Letzelter scored two touchdowns, giving him a total of 19 points in two games against the Irish.. After finishing at Tech he moved on to West Point, where he was graduated last June.

Bobby Barrett, the former knockout - punching redheaded lightweight boxer of Philadelphia, now is the caddie master at the Hi Top Country Club, Drexel Hill, Pa., the former home course of the Aronimink Club . . . Bobby was a caddie before he became a boxer, and, when he quit the ring after establishing a reputation as a guy who either knocked out the other gent or was knocked out in the attempt, he became caddie master at the Rolling Green Club, from which he passes on to his new assignment.—HARRY KECK.

TARENTUM CRACK SCHOOL FIVES MEET

Spotovich will be Charley Waugh, likewise a capable performer.

BRILLIANT GUARDS

The guards are without doubt the best that could be found in Western Pennsylvania. Andy Trzeciak, of New Kensington, and Eddie Czlapinski, of South, have stood out in all games played by their teams this season. Trzeciak, besides his sterling defensive play, is an excellent scorer. Czlapinski sacrifice all chances to score to feed the Oriole sharpshooters. Joe Ross completes the regular New Kensington lineup, while Charley Miskevics is the fifth starter of the South team.

South, undefeated in seven games played in the Pitt Stadium court during the last two years, goes after its eighth straight game tonight.

Both teams are acquainted with the playing area of the home of the Pitt Panthers and neither will have an advantage insofar as this angle is concerned.

With both schools claiming large followings of supporters, indications are that the Pitt Stadium pavilion will be packed to capacity tonight.

BAER REVEALS FIGHT PLANS

GLOBINS, Lake Tahoe, Cal., March 27.—(AP.)—Max Baer announced today he would either play a waiting game or seek an early knockout in his heavyweight title fight with Champion Primo Carnera, June 14.

Announcing his plan of battle after two days of light preparatory workouts, the curly-headed Californian made no secret of his strategy.

Either, said Baer, he will rush Carnera off his feet from the opening gong, hoping to catch the champion in retreat and off balance, or else he will play a waiting game, feinting for an opening as Carnera comes in.

What he won't do, Baer declared, is try to clinch or box with the big Italian. Baer saw Carnera in action when he knocked out Jack Sharkey for the title, and he has a lot of respect for the champion's ability to drape his 265 pounds across the shoulders of his opponent. He said:

"Carnera won't get a chance to lean on me. He's too big and strong to wrestle with. Anyhow, I hope to knock him out before he can try it."

Baer will spend two weeks here doing road work and light exercise before moving on to the East for strenuous training.

Grid Star Shares In W. & J. Award

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 27.—The old theory that athletic prowess and scholarship do not go hand in hand was blasted at W. & J. College recently when the Coblentz Prize, one of the most coveted awards of the institution, was given to Richard Dalrymple, of Chester, W. Va., an outstanding football tackle.

The prize, given annually by the faculty to the member of the Senior class who is most outstanding in scholarship, activities and Christian leadership, went jointly to Dalrymple and Jack L. White, of New Castle, both of whom head several student organizations.

CUE MATCH CANCELED

James Williams and E. J. McMinn scheduled to meet in a Western Pennsylvania pocket billiards tournament match at the Ritz Parlors last night, both failed to appear and the match was canceled. Harry Herbert plays Ear Wise tonight. The schedule will be concluded this week.

CLARK RESIGNS

DENVER, Col., March 27.—(AP.)—Earl (Dutch) Clark has announced his resignation today as director of athletics at the Colorado School of Mines. He intends to return to professional football, recently the Portsmouth (O.) club, whose franchise has been transferred to Detroit.

Secret Agent X-9 Clue Contest

A Lawyer Found Dead

Clue No. 2

When Inspector Henderson found the body of Lloyd Jameson, well-known lawyer, sprawled on the sitting room floor of his luxurious apartment, the indications were that Jameson had either committed suicide or that he had been shot by an unknown visitor.

Jameson had defrauded his law partner, Arthur Fowler, out of a considerable sum of money and had just been found out. He also had quarreled with his sweetheart, Laura Romaine, a woman with a questionable past. Because he had been shot through the right temple and had a gun clutched in his right hand, Inspector Henderson had held to the theory that the slaying was an act of self-destruction.

But Secret Agent X-9 disagrees. He says it was not suicide. Apparently his only clue is a piece of broken ash tray found on the kitchen floor. Fowler was being held for questioning by the police, and Miss Romaine had not yet been located.

"How do you know she and Jameson quarreled?" Secret Agent X-9 asked Commissioner Henderson.

The inspector handed him a letter enclosed in an envelope addressed to the woman. It read:

"Laura:

"I have decided to end it all. This thing has gone on long enough. I am sorry for your sake as well as for mine. Goodbye. LLOYD."

"I guess that is enough tip-off that he killed himself. Unless Fowler faked the letter, which is in the dead man's handwriting, and then killed him, making it look like suicide."

Secret Agent X-9 looked at the envelope again. It had been stamped and postmarked that same day. "I wouldn't be so sure," said the detective, half to himself, "but at least now we know one person who visited him tonight."

(To Be Concluded Tomorrow.)

$25 in Cash Prizes for The Best Solution of 'The Lawyer Found Dead'

The purpose of the "Secret Agent X-9" three-chapter serial stories is for the boy or girl reader to find the hidden clues and solve the mystery in a letter of not more than 100 words. The most nearly correct solution will be awarded a cash prize of $5 and the 20 next best solutions submitted will be awarded $1 each.

This contest is open to all boys and girls living in the reading area of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Your solution must be in the office of the "Secret Agent X-9" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, March 31. The prize winners will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph, Saturday, April 7.

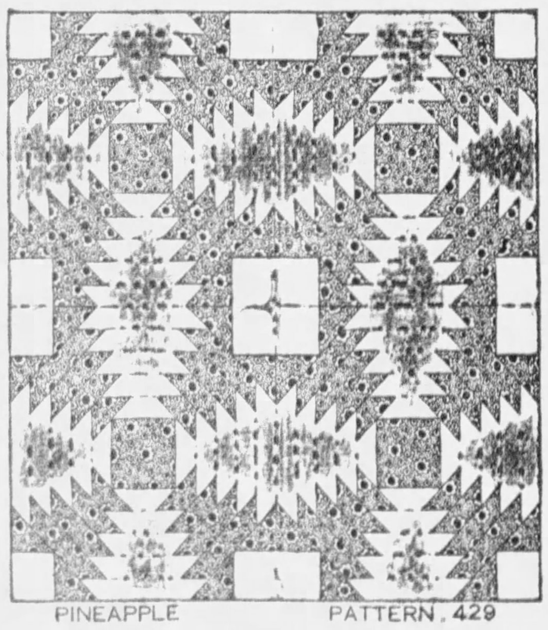
"The Lawyer Found Dead" is the fourth of a series of contest mystery stories, each to run three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The prize awards for each week will total $25 in cash—$5 for the first best solution and $1 each for the 20 next best. Open to boys and girls up to 17 years of age.

EX-DUKES PLAY JEWEL FIVE

The Brooklyn Jewels, all-Jewish quint which has been cutting a wide swath in professional basketball circles since its members were graduated from St. John's College three years ago, will arrive here tonight for two games with district teams. They are to play the ex-Dukes in the Duquesne University gym tomorrow night, and the Willigs in McKeesport on Thursday.

The Jewels this season have scored three triumphs over the Rosenblum Celtics, who nosed out the local collegians in their first start as a pro team a few weeks ago. The ex-Dukes have been gathering speed in turning in an uninterrupted string of victories since that time, and tomorrow's clash should be one of the best of the local season.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



PINEAPPLE PATTERN, 429

Make an Heirloom

The pineapple is a quilt design that, a favorite in Colonial days, enjoys the same popularity now. Outstanding in beauty of design, simple and economical to make, it has earned its place among outstanding quilt patterns. Most of the patches are of the same width, which makes it possible to cut the material into strips and then cut off the desired patch. Usually made in two contrasting materials, it can also be made in more materials, a shaded effect being possible in this way.

Pattern 429 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

"Secret Agent X-9 Club"

JUNIOR PATROL

The Mail Box is full of letters today, fellows!

First, here's a letter from Helen Burke, of 5142 Ruby street, Pittsburgh. She is a captain today since she has been elected by 27 members. That's a fine big patrol. Helen tells us that they have been active for some time, too.

Now Ruth Schafer writes this letter:

"I got an early promotion in school. I am now in 3-B. I always look at the Junior Patrol in the Sun-Telegraph. The day I got promoted mother gave me a dime. From all the money I have saved, I have 30 cents saved. One day, not so long ago, my daddy gave me a brand new pen point, ink well, and a calendar with a pad."

So now you can write swell letters, Ruth. Write again. Do you belong to a Junior Patrol club? We are glad to hear that you have been promoted.

Helen Abraham is a new captain today. She lives at 521 Euclid avenue, Canonsburg, Pa.

We are also glad to hear today from Wilbur Herbold, of 611 Bellevue Terrace, Bellevue. He says that his patrol is growing (he sends two more members' pledges today) and that his patrol has started a library. For their birthday party today, he and his brother are going to entertain their club members.

Another new captain today is Joe Kearney, of 3328 Webster avenue, Pittsburgh. He sends 10 pledges with his letter.

Also, a letter today from the New Deal Junior Patrol, Laurel Gardens, tells us that some of their members have lost their pins. We are going to send them new ones. If you need a new pin, send your badge number to headquarters and ask for it.

Robert Parsell, of Cowansville, Pa., sends a letter with 11 pledges in it today. We hope that his patrol will hold an election and select a captain. We'll send him an armband.

And now here is a letter from Bobbie Staaf, of Mars, Pa. He writes:

"We have started a stamp group in our patrol. We are trying hard and doing very well with the required rules."

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Elaine Arnold came to visit Vivian. Her lank brown hair was set in a glistening wave. Her cheeks had color. She smiled. They thought with shock:

"She's pretty.

Elaine showed them a tiny diamond ring. She said:

"Tom's got a job and mother's reconciled. We'll be married the first week of vacation."

"You won't stay to finish your course?"

"I wouldn't stay to see the stars rain diamonds."

"My goodness," said Kathleen, "you must certainly love the man!"

When they were alone Vivian sat with her chin resting on her clasped hands. She had a hurt, stormy look. She said, almost angry:

"I'm glad for Elaine."

* * *

Vivian went over to the window and stared into the lavender dusk. Suddenly she leaned down, her whole face lighted and answered a deep, lilting whistle. When she turned about, her lips had a moist, dreamy smile.

"Do I get the car tonight, or is Kathleen taking it? . . . Thanks. It's heavenly out."

She ran across the porch. Sherry stepped from the shadows. With a laugh he caught her in his arms:

"I've been thinking of you, dear. Where do you want to go?"

Answers With Kiss

She answered, with her lips on his, her eyes closed and her heart swift:

"Anywhere with you, Sherry. Anywhere."

* * *

Pippin laid her nose in a box of spring flowers. The lilies of the valley were sweet; the golden daffodils, deep purple hyacinths and the blood red roses made her glad. It was not for these she blushed. But for a little note and a tune in her head.

"All the success is due to you, Pippin. The lines saved it. The lines went over big. I didn't realize how bright and funny they were. They sparkled. They brought all the laughs. You have a gift—a hundred times bigger than mine. Can I write a play with YOU next time? Love, or whatever it is you send to platonic friends, but love, Gregg."

She read it again, flushed to the eyes—and strangely glad.

It was the morning after the play was staged. A rough and tumble affair, as a college farce usually is. But everyone said it was a wow. Chickie sat there with a glowing smile on her lips. She closed her eyes, afraid that she might weep in her pride and love. Pippin, between excited trips to the wings, squeezed her mother's hand:

"Awfully silly, isn't it, Helena?"

Chickie answered, and she meant it:

"It's wonderful. I can't believe you did it."

Recalls Mother's Look

Pippin recalled her mother's look and wiped a tear from her eyes. She got the flowers in a vase and stood at the window watching a little yacht dipping with the waves.

Her door opened. "Feel strong enough for a few sets of tennis?"

She shrugged into David's grinning face: "I can give you a run for your money any day, big boy."

David stopped and snapping a lily stuck it in his buttonhole.

"Nice flowers. Nice chap. Are you in love with Gregg?"

"I've put away all thoughts of love, Dad. Marriage isn't included in my plans for the future."

"That's a worthy and remarkable decision."

"Yes—and why don't you buy a yacht so we could jaunt off on the good, clean sea? Something should be done about this love problem, Dad. It gets people down in a pit. It's such a turgid, engulfing affair. It should be arranged so that young people could live FIRST and fall in love later."

"Yeah — pass an ordinance about it."

"I mean that you should discover some way to regulate emotions . . . prevent young lives from getting all messed up the way they do.

"Just think of all the glorious plans that are smashed because people are such fools they fall in love. Can't they see life ENDS with marriage? What beautiful, exciting thing ever happens afterward?"

"Come and visit me some time and I'll set you right on that little matter."

Not Against Love

"I know all about it. Sex is just a big whip that lashes you up the runway like sheep to get slaughtered. Before you realize it, your head and your dreams are whacked off. That's why people get taken in.

"I'm not against love, but only that emotion which gets the best of us. I want something done about that. We should be able to see the world first—travel the gay, gaudy highways—achieve and live!"

"So that's what you're planning? Two chummy Bohemian souls, like you and Gregg, would step about and have a look at Life while writing the best seller of the year. Fascinating future. Is that why you let down on the science and took so many literary courses last quarter?"

Cheeks flaming, Pippin flung about:

"I've not let down on the science. I was writing this play and needed dramatic technique. I've two years more for all those stiff courses. You see, Dad, I sort of plan to take up writing as a side line."

"Just nonchalantly, like that! Toss off the Great American novel between the big moments of discovering life itself. . . . Caesar also was ambitious. Is Gregg to be your partner on this side-line business?"

"You're all wrong about me and Gregg, big boy! The reason I like him so much is because he's completely free of this love emotion."

"I hadn't noticed," said David, winking. "He seemed to me quite sufficiently endowed."

Pippin was torn bitterly between her two selves. One self hungered greedily for life.

The other self burned to achieve. Love was their obsession.

The old people scolded. Wherever you went they were looking shocked and indignant.

One day Vivian took Pippin to visit her aunt.

Audrey Bell was a widow and childless. She earned a good living in real estate.

Discuss Novel

Audrey and three of her friends finished a rubber of bridge and now, over the tea cups, were discussing a novel on college life which Mrs. Arnold, Elaine's mother, had just read.

"I don't know where these novelists get their mad ideas. As the mother of two students I should like to give such authors a few pointers."

Vivian and Pippin helped themselves to cinnamon toast and drew up chairs.

"Where do they get all this flaming youth nonsense? Certainly Elaine and Paul are perfectly normal human beings. Elaine was popular before she started going exclusively with Tom. But neither of these young people of mine and dozens of others who come to the house on Sunday evenings are engaged in any of the wild antics this book describes. The author is supposed to be a college professor—at that!"

"What does he say that's so untrue?" Audrey gave Vivian a sweet glance.

"When you lay down the book you feel absolutely smirched. You'd imagine that not a girl on the campus has a remnant of decency; all the boys are dissolute and nothing goes on during the four years but one wild escapade after another. Of course, they all drink a little and all are 'emanicpated'."

"Is that a true picture of the younger generation, Vivian?"

"Why pick on us? There's plenty not quite right among the Foolish Forties if my eyes didn't deceive me the other evening at the Mark. There were four parties of college people. We behaved with great dignity by contrast with your crowd."

"Fair enough, but don't hedge," said Audrey tartly.

Pippin Disturbed

"Well—that book is a rank exaggeration. I know at least half a dozen ideal girls like Pippin here. There are also many decent men."

Mrs. Arnold tapped the table. "I think you can include Elaine and Paul in those categories, Vivian. Other mothers know the same of their children."

Vivian laughed:

"Leave it to the mothers and we'll all come out white as the driven snow."

She and Pippin went into the kitchen to make more tea. They looked at each other and shrugged. Vivian said:

"Aren't mothers a scream!"

Then Vivian showed Pippin the apartment.

"Nice little love nest, isn't it? Audrey has offered it to me for the summer. I wonder—should I take it?"

Disturbed, Pippin said:

"Why would you want this apartment?"

"Because I'm going to attend the summer quarter as I did last year. Then I'll be ready for a job in January. I've got to have a place to stay. The house, as you know, is always rented in summer. I'd be comfortable here and have a grand time. Audrey thinks it's all right."

"But there'd be a lot of talk. If Sherry were seen visiting you, for instance. Is it worth while to run that chance?"

"It probably IS, darling. But I don't want to be talked about. I've kept out of things at sufficient cost. Besides, there are the girls at the house to be considered."

Pippin said: "Couldn't two or three of them stay with you?"

Vivian sighed and sank on a chaise longue. She said, wearily:

"Everything is so complicated. I hate living in a little place like this with two other girls. But I guess that's the only way out."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate.

ONE OF THE MOST HIDEOUS CRIMES—ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Criticized severely from the beginning of the Civil War by all factions, scolded as tyrant, usurper, etc., Lincoln in his supreme patience and unfaltering energy aimed to save and perpetuate the Union and to abolish slavery. Successful at last and while the country celebrated the Appomattox surrender (April 9, 1865), the great emancipator was slain. Wilkes Booth, an actor, shot President Lincoln on April 14, 1865, as he attended a performance in the Ford Theater, Washington, D. C. Escaping, the murderer—resisting capture—was shot soon after in a barn set afire.

President Lincoln died April 15, 1865.

A conspiracy was unveiled against high Union officers (Seward, Grant, etc.) and four of the plotters were hanged.

Southern sympathizers had been instrumental in the assassination plot of Lincoln, but the South lost a great mediator in the President. The punitive measures disguised as "reconstruction" under which the South had to suffer would never have been imposed by Lincoln, just and fair to everybody. (United States Hist.)

THE ALKALI METALS—MANUFACTURE BY ELECTROLYSIS

The alkali metals (above) are the most active ones combining violently with water, giving hydroxides, the strongest bases. E. g. Na + H2O =Na (OH) + H. The metals are silvery, quickly tarnishing on air, forming layers of oxides, hydroxides, carbonates. These elements have the valence 1 + (tend to lose 1 electron).

Ammonium (NH4), the hypothetical metal, known only in compounds, acts like an alkali metal, thus mentioned in this group.

Alkali metals are produced conveniently by electrolysis from their fused hydroxides. The Castner cell (right) is generally used. To manufacture sodium, melted NaOH is introduced between the iron cathode H and surrounding anode F separated by iron gauze M. Starting direct current, Na is liberated at the cathode, floats to surface (D) into container C and is removed by a spoon. Reaction: 2NaOH = Na2 (liberated at cathode) + 2 (OH) (liberated at anode) and 2(OH) = H2O + O.

Sodium and potassium is extensively used in chemical industries. Sodium chloride (NaCl, table salt) is the most abundant of the chlorides. Sodium hydroxide, is the cheapest base. (Chem.)

NAPOLEON'S GENERALS COUNSEL RETREAT FROM BURNING MOSCOW (1812)

Napoleon virtually remade the political map of Europe betwen 1796 and 1812. He had subdued Netherlands, German provinces, Spain; taken vast portions from Italy, Austria; made Russia his servile ally. Still dissatisfied, he wished to break Britain's power, that had outmarshaled him on the sea and in the colonies. Unable to accomplish this by arms, he was seeking that end by boycotting British goods, forcing the subjugated states to join it. Britain retaliated by prohibiting trade with France and both navies pirated on violators.

Non-adherence to the boycott caused Portugal's royal family to flee to Brazil before Napoleon's wrath. For the same reason he marched against Czar Alexander I. Though victorious over Russia's armies he could not conquer the Russian winter and famine due to food destruction by fleeing Russians. He had to return from the burning Moscow, reaching France with a few thousand ragged men, remnants of the half million strong "Grand Army." After a Painting by Vassilli Vereshchagin

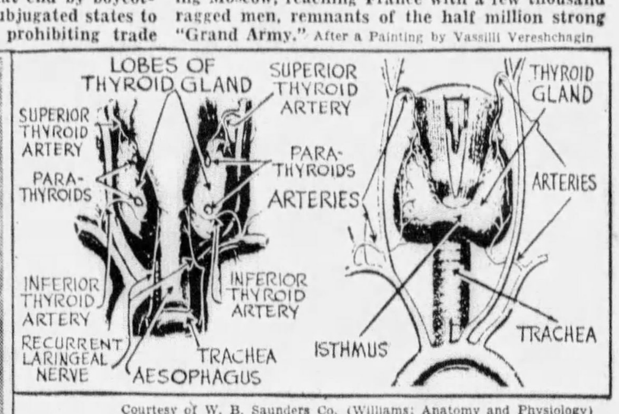
COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH

In this beautiful poem by Longfellow (publ. 1858) Miles Standish, Puritan captain of Plymouth, sends a friend, John Alden, with a marriage offer to fair Priscilla. She replies that if she is worth winning she is worth wooing and "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

He, though in love with Priscilla, stays faithful to his friend, who departs in anger. The news of Miles' death in battle releases John to marry Priscilla. After the marriage, Standish reappears, is reconciled to his friend. (American Lit.)

BASEDOW'S DISEASE



Courtesy of W. B. Saunders Co. (Williams: Anatomy and Physiology)

THYROID AND PARATHYROID GLANDS

The thyroid gland (above) has two lobes, one on each side of windpipe and larynx, connected with a strip, the isthmus. It is composed of hundreds of thousands of small, epithelium-lined closed vesicles interwoven with many lymph and blood-vessels, and filled with gelatinous fluid, the colloid.

Cells of thyroid gland produce a secretion containing the active matter, thyroxin, 60% of which is iodine. It is emptied into the blood stimulating cell—chiefly protein—metabolism. Its deficiency (hypothyroidism) causes in the young cretinism (retarded physical and mental growth), in the adult myxedema (fat collection, weakness, mental apathy). These diseases can be favorably influenced by administering thyroid extract. Overactivity of thyroid glands (hyperthyroidism) causes Graves' and Basedow's diseases (at left, a patient: nerves highly stimulated, rapid heart, weight lost, goiter, eyes bulge). Remedy: Reduction of secretion by removal of portions of the thyroid gland.

The parathyroid glands are four small structures (¼ inch diam.) embedded in the thyroid gland. Their secretion regulates the calcium level, the balance between various ions in the blood. Their disease results in tetany, contraction or spasm of muscles; also in unsatisfactory assimilation of lime, affecting bones, teeth; it may be fatal. (General Science)

Tech's Drama School

It Has Produced Distinguished Actors and Pittsburgh Is Proud of It

The drama school at the Carnegie Institute of Technology is celebrating its twentieth aniversary by presenting the two parts of "Henry IV," a Shakespearean play that is seldom seen on the professional stage, yet is not without interest. It is from it that we get the well-known saying, "Tell the truth and shame the devil."

This is the twenty-second of Shakespeare's plays to be presented by the drama students at Tech, a record unique in America. One of the most notable productions was that of "Hamlet" about 10 years ago, in which Hardie Albright played the title role. That he might the better feel the part he permitted his hair to grow to his shoulders and for a year in advance of the production fairly lived "Hamlet." He knew the play so thoroughly that he could almost recite it backward. This, added to his natural talent and the training that he received from the competent instructors at Tech, resulted in a performance that was breath-taking in its vividness.

Asked what he intended to do after graduation, this Monessen boy said:

"Go to New York and carry a spear for a year or two, I suppose."

But he did better. Almost immediately he was engaged for Eva LeGallienne's repertory company and a year or two later he was a full-fledged movie star.

Many of the Tech drama students have had somewhat similar experiences. Within a year or two after graduation they have played important roles in Broadway and Hollywood productions. Kenneth Thomson and Mary Blair are examples; and so, too, are Clara Bauersmith and Norman Foster. Woodman Thompson, one of Broadway's best-known scenic directors, is a Carnegie Tech graduate.

Richard Mansfield was so impressed by Carnegie Tech's drama school that he sent his son, Richard Mansfield, Jr., there as a student.

We mention these things as showing that Carnegie Tech's dramatic productions are almost if not quite of professional caliber. That Pittsburghers appreciate this is demonstrated by the fact that the Tech theater is filled to capacity, and many turned away for lack of room, at every performance. In its 20 years the Tech drama school has produced almost 400 plays to audiences totaling 30,000 a year.

The character of the plays is also noteworthy. Pittsburghers are given an opportunity, as exemplified by "Henry IV," to see classics of the drama that are rarely or never produced on the commercial stage. But plays more popular in their appeal are presented, too, of course.

The drama school has in its 20-year record many brilliant achievements. Pittsburgh is proud of it.

Mr. Mellon's Ancestry

Several Races Have Been Blended in Him to Make "A Typical Pennsylvanian"

Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, editor of the Altoona Tribune and former chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, has been investigating the ancestry of Andrew W. Mellon, and presents his laudatory findings in an article extending good wishes to the former Secretary of the Treasury on the attainment of his seventy-ninth birthday. What Col. Shoemaker has found should be of interest to Mr. Mellon's fellow-Pittsburghers and fellow-Americans.

Pennsylvania, one of the few colonies to grant religious freedom, attracted, more than any of the other colonies, people of many nationalities. It was the original "melting pot," out of which came people who could not say that they were of this or that European race because they were a blend of several, and so could call themselves nothing else but Americans.

Mr. Mellon's ancestors have been Pennsylvanians for nearly 200 years. They were Indian fighters and Revolutionary War soldiers. One of his maternal ancestors, "Little Jakey" Negley, who as a 12-year-old boy helped his father stand off the Indians until his mother succeeded in getting the rest of the children into Fort Ligonier, is one of the most appealing characters in that period of the state's history.

Col. Shoemaker proceeds to show that Mr. Mellon is a blend of several strains but predominantly a mixture of "Pennsylvania Dutch" and "Scotch-Irish;" and as there are not many families that have been in Pennsylvania for a hundred years or more that do not have those strains in their blood there is ample justification of Col. Shoemaker's characterization of Mr. Mellon as "a typical Pennsylvanian."

The Proposed Police Probe

Councilman Kane Calls Attention to Some Complaints of Long Standing

Whether or not Councilman John J. Kane's proposed investigation of the Police Bureau gets anywhere, it has served the useful purpose of again calling attention to some complaints of long standing.

For years it has been asserted that the bureau was subject to political control which interfered with its efficiency. Jobs on the force were part of the spoils of victory at the polls, and promotions and demotions were respectively the reward or punishment for political activity or inactivity.

Mayor W. N. McNair repeatedly made these charges during his campaign, and the people's expectation was that if elected he would divorce the police from politics. Yet the plain implication from Mr. Kane's call for a probe is that little or nothing of the sort has been done.

The proposal is a move in the right direction.

Not Forgotten

Peanuts.

The heavy duties of the President and First Lady of the Land include seeing thousands of faces and remembering an infinity of names.

Small wonder that Steve Zasillakos thought for a while that he was forgotten. Why, after all, could he expect that the great people in the White House would know of his plight? Weren't they busy thinking of so many forgotten men and women all over the land?

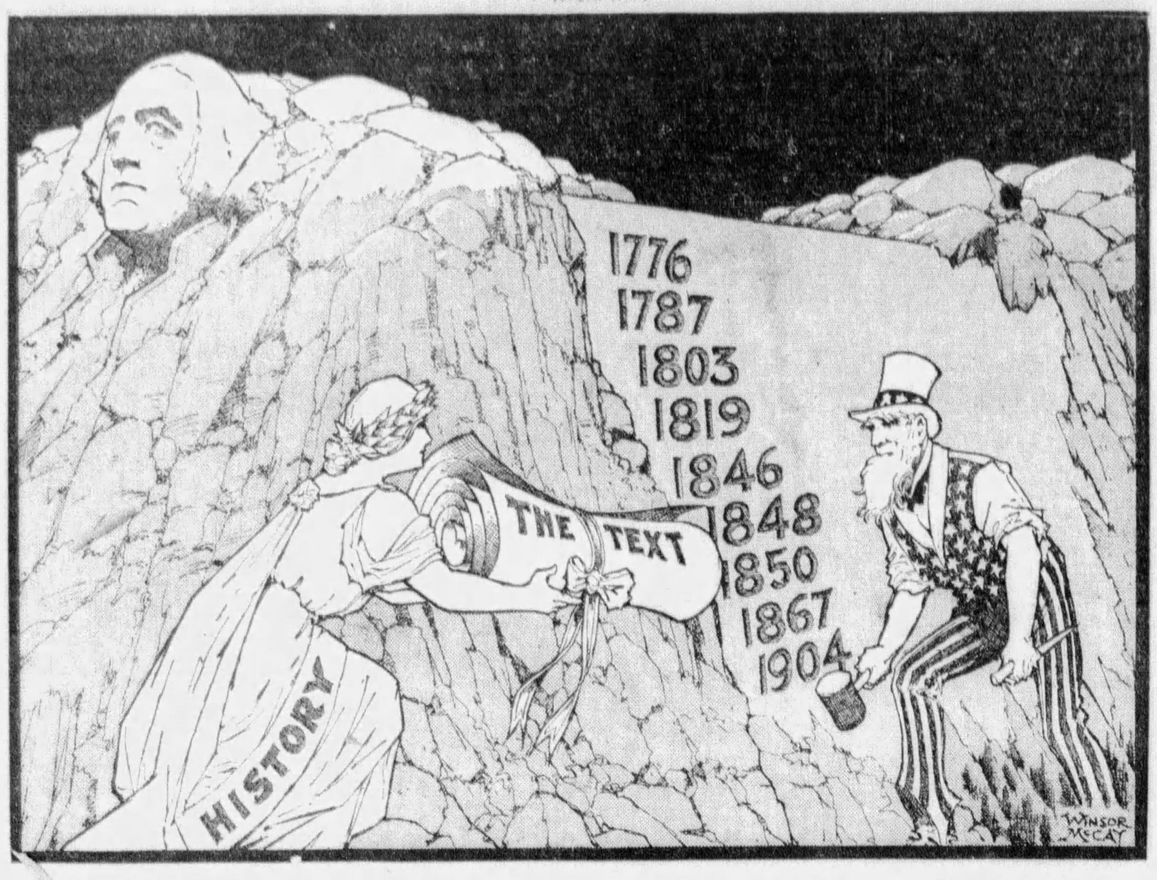
But Mr. Roosevelt missed him first. He noticed at once that Steve wasn't at the peanut stand where for more than 25 years he had sold his wares to persons going to and from the great white mansion.

By the time Mrs. Roosevelt noticed his absence, the police had heard that the President wanted them to cancel their order to make Steve move away.

Steve was back, thinking how wonderful it was that such a great man had the time to think of him and peanuts.

Who Will Write the Text?

(Copyright, 1934.)



Who will write the text for the Mt. Rushmore inscription?

This massive and majestic memorial of the Republic, carved in the solid granite of the Black Hills, will be a monument imperishable, surpassing even the Pyramids of Egypt, from which—in Napoleon's phrase one hundred years ago—"forty centuries looked down."

The text, which is to epitomize America's formative history, must be worthy of immortality.

And in order that the text may be the best all America can produce, ALL AMERICA is able to assist in writing it, through the nation-wide competition sponsored by the Hearst newspapers.

YOU may enter this competition—and YOU MAY WRITE THE CHOSEN TEXT!

For details see the Mt. Rushmore articles in this newspaper.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 27.—E. W. Howe may not lay down his pen after all. At 81 he sang a literary swan song by discontinuing his monthly. And put his house in order for a rest so richly deserved. But he had no sooner reached his Miami cabana than an avalanche of protest descended.

He must not quit! More than any time in the history of America his steel-trap sanity was needed, the letters declared. And so he is wavering, I hear. No other American has so impressed the world from the solitude of a small town. And no one is more bewildered by such re-action than Ed Howe.

To be called back at 81 by a reading public is something that has happened to no other person pursuing the business of writing. I am one of many who hopes he responds. He has proved what so many of us realize; that the common sense point of view tells everything.

Years have not worn him down to the gentle bleakness of most octogenarians. He is still querulously exigent of petty shams without resigning to thumb twiddling. At 81 he wears a flowing black bow, white flannel trousers and wonders with a wintry smile if Babe Ruth can smack the apple over the garden wall.

The gayety of bathrooms has always been one of my minor enthusiasms. Man regiments his forces for the daily battle in the morning bath. I recall a house Will Hogg and I rented in Beverly, opposite Tom Mix's, that had spreading butterfly wings of delicate sheen which one squeezed in lieu of the ordinary faucet turn. It was, of course, designed by a poet but encompassed an idea. And now bath rooms have gone suddenly drab. Instead of snow white they are tobacco brown, dull raspberry or even jet black. Towelings of brown, navy blue or 'rep purple add to the gloom.

Of all the extravagant baths, the most luxurious was in a new hotel in Amsterdam. As large as the average mid-town hotel bedroom, a thermometer registered the temperatures. A clock and rubber encased telephone were inset in the wall along with a radio dial. A rack held a celophaned array of soaps from the unscented to the highly perfumed—the entire lot of which went away from there in my hand bag.

George Bernard Shaw's prolific writing output is partially explained by a short-hand system he employs and is transcribed by his secretary, Miss Patch—and what a grand name for a secretary! With this method he can whiz out five times the copy of even the swift operator of the typewriter. Shaw does his best work in the late afternoon, right after tea.

Princess Der Ling, novelist and once of the household of her famous aunt, the Dowager Empress of China, is perhaps the most thoroughly Americanized Chinese lady in New York. She is a frequent first nighter, adept at the fox-trot and tango and can spout the latest American slang as fluently as the most confirmed Broadwayite. Also, I am told, she has never tasted chop suey or been in Chinatown.

* * *

It's none of my concern, but I never see Princess Der Ling without wondering if she has ever met Anna May Wong, who is as thoroughly American as the Liberty Bell. It would be interesting to overhear their privately expressed low-down on reactions to Occidental customs and manners. I think it was Harold Ross at a Paul Whiteman party one night who introduced a fellow to Miss Wong who talked to her in pidgin-English. She was a grand sport about it, for, although a precise English grammarian, she replied in allee samee chop chop.

Never-can-tell-note: Duncan M. Stewart, men's fashion artist, looks like a lawyer from the corn belt and was born within five minutes of Herald square.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

What Does This World Value Most—Brains or 'Savvy'?

Sixteen young people in the University of California were granted the right to wear the Phi Beta Kappa key the other day.

That, as you know, is supposed to be the highest honor a youngster can know—the mark of scholastic supremacy. Today those young people are envied by everyone on the campus. Presently they'll leave the campus—enter a waiting world—and then—

Will they then be envied and respected as they are today? Will they forge ahead of their fellows; make the big records of their generation? Perhaps. But history isn't very encouraging on this point.

For, oddly, the remarkable records haven't been achieved by youthful intellectuals, but by hard-working drudges who earned their degrees in the "school of hard knocks."

Does this mean that the Phi Beta Kappa key is nonsense? That college courses do not pay? That brains aren't appreciated in this world? Of course it doesn't. But it DOES mean that something beside intelligence is needed to make the grade in human society. And unless you have that something, your heavy brains are just so much excess baggage.

What is that something? The old westerners had a slang name for it—"SAVVY." If you didn't have "savvy" in frontier days you were a washout, and maybe a Late Lamented.

What did SAVVY mean? It meant sense, but a very special kind of sense. It meant knowledge of life. Of life in its infinite variety. Not an actual experience with royal courts or savage jungles—for many a man with superb SAVVY had never traveled further than his local round-up. But it implied a knowledge of—a familiarity with—THE COURTS AND JUNGLES IN HUMAN NATURE.

IT MEANT BEING HEP TO YOUR FELLOW MAN. KNOWING HOW TO GET ALONG WITH HIM—HOW TO USE HIM. IT ALSO MEANT KNOWING HOW TO GET ALONG WITH AND USE YOURSELF.

SAVVY was the secret of successful living in the dangerous days of our American frontier. IT IS STILL THE SECRET OF SUCCESSFUL LIVING.

You may be chock full of brains, crammed with knowledge, covered with honors. But if you don't know how to use your brains, they become a menace instead of an asset.

Why do so many Infant Prodigies and Campus Exhibit A's fizzle out in the adult world?

That's why. They face that world cock-sure of success. Since childhood they have been the Village Pride. Because of their unusual ability everything has been made easy for them, and all honors have been heaped upon them. Rarely have they been forced to adapt themselves to people or situations. Instead, life has been adapted to and for them.

As a consequence, though they may have genius rating by an intelligence test, they are not only untrained for mature performance BUT ARE ACTUALLY MORE IGNORANT OF REALITY THAN MANY A STUPID MANUAL LABORER.

Lack of SAVVY — that's what ails many a Highbrow.

Maybe—think it over—that is what ails you.

And, if it is, how'll you get this essential SAVVY?

In one way and in one way only—by getting out into the main stream and letting the tide knock you around.

There is but one straight road to success, and that is merit. The man who is successful is the man who is useful. Capacity never lacks opportunity. It cannot remain undiscovered because it is sought by too many anxious to use it.—Cochran.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The children of a man who has not been successful in life, resent his positive instructions to them as to how they should conduct their affairs.

This sort of reasoning comes as the children near the adult stage and are capable of passing judgment upon their parent's plan of life.

Many boys and girls leave their homes because they are so hampered in their desires that they feel they can be free only outside.

It is a bit difficult for parents to accord their adult children the deference which should be shown their ideas.

As parents they feel that their longer experience in life entitles them to be dictators to their young folk.

Instead of making suggestions they present demands and ridicule divergent opinions which the young people may advance.

It's strange that parents, who are often liberal with their children in financial favors and in providing opportunities for their enjoyment, should be quite the reverse in plans they have for their general conduct.

After the age of reasoning with your children, be their confidential friend, not their dictator.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Secret Thought

"It is only a thought in my heart," said he,
"Which no one shall ever know,
Unvoiced forever this thought shall be
While the long years come and go."

It was only a thought and he kept it there,
Safely locked in his breast for years;
But because his secret was something fair
It banished his doubts and fears.

And season by season it grew more strong,
Till his life waxed in force and grace,
For the thought in his heart wove a wordless song
And its message shone out from his face!

Oh, never a thought in the heart can lie,
In secret for year on year,
But at last it is glimpsed by each passer-by
And its meaning is plain and clear.

"It is only a thought in my heart," he said,
"Which no one shall ever see."
But that hidden thought was the thing men read
Through the whole of his destiny.

Human Side of the News

Search for Dillinger and Floyd Is One of the Greatest Man-Hunts in Many Years.

By Edwin C. Hill

ONE OF the greatest man-hunts in many years is in full cry. It's a double man-hunt, for the hounds of the law are hot on the trail of two of the most desperate killers in criminal history. One is John Dillinger, the desperado who escaped from jail at Crown Point, Ind., with nothing more formidable to aid him than a wooden pistol, whittled in his cell. The other is "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Oklahoma bank robber, with at least 10 notches on his gun. In at least 10 states they are being hunted, these savage, relentless killers, almost the last of their peculiar breed.

Within the past year federal and state police have rounded up practically all of the modern bad men, all except Dillinger and Floyd. Frank Nash, Killer Burke, Harvey Bailey and Machine Gun Kelly—and every single one of them quit without a fight, without firing a shot, when they were driven to the wall by the pursuing police.

These modern bad men are poor stuff compared with the old-timers of the West. They are murderers for the bloody hunger of killing. The old-timers, when the West was young, men like the James boys, the Dalton brothers, Billy the Kid, Al Jennings and Cole Younger, bank robbers and train bandits, had about them a slight touch of gallantry, even of chivalry. They gambled with Death, and when their hands were called, they faced their captors, boot to boot, and went out in the smoke of flaming guns. They seldom had recourse to cold-blooded murder, these old-time bad men, with their six-guns strapped low down on their thighs. They lived by the gun, and by the gun they perished, asking no odds.

But the modern desperado kills in cold blood, never giving their victims a chance for life, shooting only when they get the drop. And when they are cornered they throw away their guns, elevate their hands and scream for mercy. Very few of the old-timers ever went to jail, unless they were shot down and carried behind the bars. They died with their boots on, as Billy the Kid died at the hand of Sheriff Pat Garrett, as the Dalton boys went out, and Jesse James.

'Pretty Boy' Floyd Shows Nerve

THE ONLY one of the modern lot, who has displayed anything like the cold nerve of the oldtimers is "Pretty" Floyd, who is now being hunted the country over. For Charley Floyd is a kind of 1934 model of Billy the Kid, and there are astonishing similarities in their careers. Both went into crime when they were mere boys. Both were arrested and made miraculous escapes. It was Billy the Kid, back in the eighties who, awaiting the hangman's noose, slipped out of his handcuffs, killed two guards and fled on a stolen horse.

Charley Floyd, facing life in the penitentiary, dived head first through the window of a speeding train and lived to scatter death through the Southwest. He was a farmer boy in Oklahoma only nine years ago when he fell into bad company. Arrested for a payroll robbery, he spent several years in prison and came out a confirmed criminal. He became a flashy dresser, learned to operate a machine gun and became a wizard at driving a motor car. He has been known to speed through traffic at seventy miles an hour without scraping a fender.

In December, 1931, he robbed two banks in one day, and the next year, at Springfield, Mo., turned his machine gun on a posse and shot down six of the police. There is ten thousand dollars on his head today, and hundreds of men eager to collect the blood money. But not one of these alleged bad men of modern days could have lived in the same state with the best of the oldtimers—men who had no machine guns or fast automobiles—who depended solely on their own marvelous speed and accuracy with the six-shooter, and on their own impregnable nerve.

Bat Masterson, Famous Marshal

THE most interesting of the lot, in the mind of this writer, was the bad man whom he had the privilege to call friend—William Barclay Masterson—Bat Masterson, famous marshal of Dodge City, Kan. Bat Masterson was a bad man, only in the sense that he was a bad man for bad men to go up against, for most of his life was spent on the side of the law, as an officer of the law. Gentle, soft-spoken, courteous, extremely gallant to women, he had about him that quality of proven steel which can never be mistaken. And he knew not what it was to make a boast or a brag.

When he was fifteen he ran away from home to hunt with Buffalo Bill. He was only twenty when a noted gunman tried to steal a pot from him in a poker game. Bat challenged him. They went for their guns and when the smoke cleared away, the gunman had no use for the pot, or anything else in this world. At twenty-two he became marshal of the, then, toughest town in America, Dodge City, at the head of the old cattle trail. Before he retired to become Deputy United States Marshal in New York, at the invitation of President Theodore Roosevelt, he had eliminated thirty-seven men, every one of whom badly needed killing.

One of his most famous gun duels was in a Dodge City saloon. The gunmen, Alf Walker and Jack Wagner, had shot down his brother. Bat walked straight into the saloon, ordering the killers to draw. The two bad men passed out in the roar of guns. Bat walked out without a scratch. Now and then, under earnest persuasion, he could be induced to tell some of these tales of the old West in the making, talking along in his low, gentle voice, sipping spring water, his only drink.

A man from the head down and feet up, the late William Barclay Masterson, of the breed which made the West safe for the coming generation — a man four square.

Air Mail Revolt Headed By Senate Democrats

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Justice delayed is justice denied.—Gladstone.

AGAINST the tyrannical proposal that Congress ratify the un-American formula by which all domestic air mail contracts were cancelled without due process of law, a revolt in the Senate has set in under the leadership of Democratic senators. This is the best of news for all Americans who still believe that "government is protection"—protection for every citizen in his rights as a citizen.

No citizen would be secure in his rights if the legislative proposals of Senator McKellar of Tennessee and Senator Black of Alabama should prevail. They are pressing for enactment a bill that would bar from bidding for any new air mail contract any holder of a cancelled contract who dared to defend his innocence in a court of law against the allegations of Senator McKellar and Senator Black and Postmaster General Farley that all such contracts were obtained by collusion and fraud.

These contracts were canceled more than a month ago by Postmaster General Farley.

Bills of Attainder Are Forbidden

A RECENT witness before Senator McKellar's committee directed the committee's attention to the provisions of the Federal Constitution which prohibit Congress from passing "bills of attainder."

This witness, representing one of the companies whose contracts were cancelled without a hearing, cited several cases decided by the Supreme Court of the United States which defined a "bill of attainder" as a legislative act that inflicts punishment without judicial trial.

One of the decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States cited to show the unconstitutionality of the McKellar-Black bill is that of Cummings V. the State of Missouri, (4wall.277).

The case involved the constitutionality of an act of the State of Missouri adopted in 1865—at the close of the Civil War. This act provided that in an election no person should be deemed a qualified voter "who has ever been in armed hostility to the United States or to the lawful authorities thereof or to the government of this state."

This statute further provided that any person suffering from such disabilities should be forever barred from acting as a professor or teacher in any educational institution or in any common or other school, that no such person should ever be permitted to hold property in trust for the use of any church, religious society, or congregation, and that an oath must be required of such person before he or she would again be permitted to vote.

In September, 1865, the Rev. Father Cummings, a priest of the Roman Catholic Church, was indicted and convicted in the Circuit Court of Pike County, Mo., "of the crime of teaching and preaching in that month, as a priest and minister of that religious denomination, without having first taken the oath prescribed by the constitution of the state." He was sentenced to a fine of $500 and to imprisonment until the fine was paid. His conviction was sustained by the Supreme Court of the state.

Reversed By U. S. Supreme Court

WHEN THIS celebrated case was appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, it reversed the finding of the Supreme Court of Missouri. Justice Field delivered the opinion and held that the law in question was in the nature of a bill of attainder of ex post facto law. Speaking for the great tribunal, Justice Field, in that decision, which protected Father Cummings in his constitutional rights, thus defined a bill of attainder, against which the prohibition in the Federal Constitution is directed:

"A bill of attainder is a legislative act which inflicts punishment without a judicial trial."

It is against this tyrannical proposal in the Black-McKellar bill that Senator Logan, of Kentucky, a former Chief Justice of that state, is leading a revolt, with the support of other Thomas Jefferson Democrats and Abraham Lincoln Republicans in the Senate who have the courage of their convictions.

These Senators are demanding the same protection in 1934 for those citizens whose air mail contracts were cancelled without due process of law that the Supreme Court of the United States gave to Father Cummings, of Missouri, in 1865—protection against legislative punishment without a judicial trial.
